

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

"As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."—Joshua.

Fourteenth Edition.

BOSTON:

PRINTED BY S. N. DICKINSON & CO.

1846.

NOTE.—I have caused this reprint of the edition of 1829 to be made at the request of a Christian friend, whose silent and steady patronage of my little Manual demands my heartfelt thanks. By his generous aid, this volume has been sent to hundreds of poor families, and destitute neighborhoods; hoping thereby to soothe the sorrows of the afflicted, to cheer the soul of the contrite, and to strengthen the step of the heavenward Christian. May God grant to the Philanthropist, a happy union hereafter in heaven with those whose souls he has endeavored to enlighten with truth and sanctify by devotion.

P R A Y E R S .

SUNDAY MORNING.

ETERNAL and infinite Jehovah ! Framers of our bodies and Father of our spirits ! we adore thee as our Father and our God, and the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, — as that most high and holy Being, whom angels praise, whom dominions adore, before whom all powers fall down and tremble, and whose excellent glory cherubim and seraphim proclaim forever. On this morning of the day sacred to thee, we would come before thee, in the name of that Saviour, whose glorious rising this day commemorates. By thy good providence we are once more permitted to assemble in the tranquillity and happiness of the family circle. Thou hast watched over us during the past night, hast spared our lives, and made us the monuments of thy preserving goodness. And now, our Father, may we come to thee in the spirit of faith and devotion. Save us from the guilt of hollow professions and heartless prayers, — and let us not draw near unto thee with our lips while our hearts are far from thee.

We praise thee, God of Grace, for all those religious blessings, which we are now especially called upon most gratefully to remember, and for all the holy recollections which this day brings to our minds. Glory be to thee, Father of mercies, for that Saviour, who triumphed over the grave and made death his captive. We bless thee, that thou, who, in times past, didst speak unto the fathers by the prophets, hast, in these latter days, spoken unto us by thy Son Jesus Christ; that thou hast sent him to go before us in the way of duty and of suffering, to be our guide and deliverer, to save us from our sins, and to show us the way to thy favor, which is life, and thy loving kindness, which is better than life. How should we adore thy goodness, O God, that when spiritual darkness covered the earth, and mankind had wandered far from thee, thou didst stretch forth the arm of thy mercy, mighty to save, and powerful to bless, — and that the Messenger of thy truth and love appeared, the friend of sinners, and the guide to immortality. We bless thee, that though earth be a land of darkness, and over it be spread the shadow of death, yet there is an inheritance of glory reserved for thy children in a brighter world, — that though we are born to die, yet Christ hath taught us that we die but to live forever, — and through the grave hath opened to us the pathway to the mansions of bliss and glory. And we pray, O Father, that while we are grateful for the high and rich blessings of the Gospel, our hearts may be subdued to its dominion and sanctified by its influences; that we may live in the purity of christian faith, and die in the joy of christian hope.

Father in heaven! we beseech thee to be with us, and bless us this day, and prepare our hearts for thy service. O send out thy light and thy truth; let them lead us, let them bring us to thy holy place. In thine earthly temple, may we this day meet around thine altar, and there put away all our earth-born passions, our distracting cares, our vain and frivolous thoughts, and offer to thee that homage of the soul, which thou wilt not despise. May we enter thy gates with thanksgiving, and thy courts with praise, there to pour out our hearts to thee in the voice of prayer, and to seek some good instruction, some purifying, sanctifying, influences from thy holy word. O save us from a careless, formal, hypocritical worship; and when we receive good impressions, let them not be as the morning cloud and the early dew. We lament before thee, that we have so often forgotten thy goodness and violated thy laws, and that our souls have been so much estranged from thee, and from pure and holy things. We pray that this day, and during the whole of our lives, we may love thee more and serve thee better than ever yet we have done. May we leave behind, our follies and our sins, and press on toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. May the virtues and graces of the Gospel be the ornaments of our lives and characters. May we seek to imitate the example of our Saviour, and to transcribe into our own souls something of his meekness and humility, his fervent piety and patient resignation, his enlarged benevolence, his generous and holy zeal in doing good. Knowing that a day is coming, in which thou wilt render unto every one according to his works, may we be as those who live for eternity.

We pray for thy servant, who ministers in sacred things to the society, of which we are members. Bless his labors in the cause of Christ, and make him the instrument of turning many to righteousness. Let thy blessing rest on all the ministers of the Gospel; may they be animated, faithful, zealous, and successful in the office of imparting and enforcing the truths, the warnings, and the hopes of our holy religion. We pray that thy presence and blessing may be with all the assemblies of thy worshipping people this day,—and may the efficacy of thy word be displayed in turning men from the error of their ways unto thee, the living and true God. Grant, O God, that the kingdom of thy Son may be more widely diffused and more firmly established, and that all the nations of the earth may come to the knowledge and worship of thee, through Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. In his name we offer our prayer, and ascribe unto thee all power and glory forever. Amen.

SUNDAY EVENING.

FATHER of lights! Eternal God! At the close of this thy holy day, we would assemble around the family altar, to remember thy rich mercies to us. We would feel sympathy with the holy calmness of this hour; and approach thee as becomes those, who have learned of Christ; who have drunk deep of the spirit of Jesus; whose communion hath been with God, and who have been called to glory and immortality. With ready steps and with cheerful minds, have we joined our christian brethren, who keep this day holy to the Lord; and may the affections, which have been called out by the services of this day, now accompany our devotions, and go with us through the week.

Father of mercies! when we hear of thy rich provisions for our spiritual welfare, our souls would kindle into the highest praise.

Glory be to thee, that when all flesh had corrupted its way, and the world was dead in trespasses and sins, without the knowledge of thee, thine eye beheld man in pity, and thine arm was outstretched for his Deliverance. Blessed be thy name, that in the fullness of time thou didst send thy well-beloved Son, not that he should be the messenger of wo, not that he should condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved. Glory be to thee, that he is made of God unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption. How do we rejoice in his precious discoveries and his heavenly doctrines; in his astonishing works, and his spotless example! How are we filled with admiration that he was made perfect through sufferings; that he humbled himself and became obedient to the death of the cross; that he is set forth to be a mercy-seat through faith in him, and that he saves us from future misery, by affording us the means of escape. Glory be to thee, that by his death he has destroyed the terrors of the grave; that he is exalted above principalities and powers; that a name is given him which is above every name; that he is able to save to the uttermost all who come unto thee through him, and that he has entered into heaven as our Captain and Forerunner.

O God! never can we sufficiently thank thee for that bread of life which came down from heaven. Never can we be sufficiently grateful to thee, for preparing such a table for us in the wilderness of this world. Hungering and thirsting after righteousness, may we be satisfied with thy likeness; and do thou still feed us with religious wisdom. As we have received the Lord Jesus for our Saviour, O help us to walk in him; to be transformed into his image; to be tenderly touched by his sufferings, and to rely firmly upon his promises. May we make his cause our personal concern, and labor to promote it with all our powers. Being members of the same spiritual body, may we be careful to exercise friendship and kindness towards all men; and help each other, to the best of our ability, in the way of eternal life.

We thank thee, that means and opportunities are afforded us for strengthening our affection to thy Son, and for imbibing his holy temper and disposition. We thank thee for what our eyes have seen and our ears have heard this day. May the religious lessons we have received, sink deep into our minds, and have an abiding influence on our lives.

This day reminds us that Jesus Christ burst the gates of the grave, and led captivity captive. He now lives with thee in heaven. O grant that we may obtain all the benefits which flow from his death, his resurrection, and his glory. We presume not to come to thine altar trusting in our own righteousness, but in thine infinite compassion and unmerited kindness in Jesus Christ. Pardon our sins, according to the gracious covenant thou hast made with thy people through him. We desire to renounce every passion and pursuit, inconsistent with thy service, and with the gratitude we owe to our great Deliverer. And now we implore thy gracious assistance, O God, that we may be crucified unto the world, and that we may hereafter live by the faith of thy Son, who loved us and gave himself for us. In all the circumstances of this mortal life, may we tread in his footsteps with increasing fidelity and delight. Though we see him not, may we rejoice in him with joy unspeakable and full of glory ; and, at last, receive the end of our faith, even the salvation of our souls.

O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good ; and his mercy endureth forever.

God of the Sabbath ! we thank thee for sanctuary privileges. May thy word, preached in its purity, bring forth in us the fruits of righteousness. Bless with thy choice favor, the ministers of thy Gospel. May no root of bitterness springing up trouble us ; and enable us, whether we assemble in thy sanctuary or unite in our families, to meet together with one accord, to praise thee with gladness and singleness of heart, and to continue steadfast in brotherly fellowship.

Heavenly Father ! under thy care we are always safe. To thee, would we now cheerfully resign ourselves and all we possess. Grant to each of us, what our trials need. Be with us in danger ; and may we yet be spared to be useful in the world. We offer our prayers through the Son of thy love, ascribing to thee praises everlasting. Amen.

MONDAY MORNING.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful God! Maker of all worlds! Judge of men! Thy name is excellent in all the earth; and thy glory is above the stars. Thou inhabitest eternity, and dwellest in light which no man can approach.

We thy dependent and sinful creatures would bow before thee, acknowledging how unworthy we are to appear in thy presence, or to lift up so much as an eye to those holy heavens, where thou dwellest. O Lord! though we are thus unworthy to presume on thy favor, yet so great and condescending is thy goodness, as to encourage our addresses to thee, by many gracious promises of thy love and acceptance. With humble confidence, then, would we approach thy throne of grace, beseeching thee, in the name of Jesus thy beloved Son, to be merciful to us and forgive us according to thine abundant goodness.

We acknowledge, O Father, that we have acted foolishly and wickedly, by doing those things which thou hast forbidden, and by neglecting to do those things, which thou hast commanded: O let that divine mercy, which has spared us so long, lead us to repentance, that we may forsake our evil ways, and turn unto thee, the Lord our God.

Give us grace, we beseech thee, seriously to consider the great work we have to do, and the uncertainty of the time in which we must perform it ; so that we may not foolishly consume our days in vanity and indolence ; in the gratification of corrupt desires and empty wishes. Grant us aid to lay aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us ; and may we run with patience and perseverance the race laid out for us, looking unto Jesus.

Gracious God ! Thou hast mercy in all thy ways, and desirest not the death of sinners, but rather that they should turn from their ways and live ; look in pity upon us, and, through a Redeemer, enable us to conquer every evil habit and surmount every temptation. Look with thy favor upon our remaining part of life ; grant, if it please thee, that the days, few or many, which thou shalt yet allow us, may pass in reasonable trust, in holy fear, and ardent love. Strengthen our good purposes till they shall produce lives pleasing to thee. Enable us so to shun sloth and negligence, that every day may discharge part of the duties thou hast allotted us : and wilt thou, O Lord, further with thy help that labor which, without thy help, must be ineffectual. Enlighten us with divine knowledge ; animate us with heavenly hope ; comfort us in thy love, and aid us in all our good resolutions ; so that we, who have been created by thy power, and sustained by thy providence, may live to answer the high purposes of our being. Let us not be spared to add wickedness to wickedness ; but to experience thy favor, which is life, and thy loving kindness, which is better than life.

We are now to begin another term of duty ; wilt thou, O God, be with us. May our increase of days produce increase of grace : and as thy bounties are multiplying upon us, may we return thee the offering of holy lives.

Father of mercies ! thou hast defended us through another night, and bestowed on us another morning. We desire to dedicate to thee those lives thou art sparing. Give us wisdom, that we may know thee ; sanctify our affections that we may love thee ; put thy fear into our hearts, that we may dread to offend thee, and grant that in the conclusion of the day we may be able to review our conduct with increasing satisfaction, and have our hope in thy mercy still more established.

These our petitions we would offer through the Son of thy love, our Intercessor at thy right hand ; while we ascribe to thee praises everlasting. Amen.

MONDAY EVENING.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful God! who art infinitely exalted above every other being! look down in mercy upon thy needy and dependent children, who, at the close of the day, have collected around the family altar, with the sacrifice of prayer and thanksgiving. The faculties, with which we worship thee, are thy gift; and of thee are all things. We approach thee with the persuasion, that no tribute from mortals can add to thy happiness, or to thy glory. But we rejoice, that though thou art too great to need our offerings, thou art too good to despise or disregard them. We rejoice, that, whilst thou art superintending the concerns of the universe, thou lendest an attentive ear to the voice of our supplications. We bless thee for assuring us that thou art our Father.

Thy paternal care and goodness are conspicuous in our creation, our safety and our blessings. We would remember with gratitude, that thy favors have not been limited to this world; but that thou art training us up, by thy grace and care, for everlasting life. We thank thee for the instructions and examples of the wise and good, and for every opportunity of cultivating knowledge and virtue. Yet most of all, we praise and magnify thee, for the rich display of thy love in the manifestation of thy Son, Jesus Christ. With unfeigned gratitude we acknowledge, that by him thou hast given us thy heavenly truth to enlighten our minds and sanctify our hearts; and that in this life thou hast set before us a model of the most exalted goodness to encourage and animate our endeavors to serve thee. We bless thee for the promises of mercy and forgiveness, and for the hopes of immortality, which are confirmed to us in his Gospel. We rejoice that after he had suffered death upon the cross for the reconciliation of us to thee, he was raised by thy mighty power from the grave, becoming the Author of eternal salvation to all who obey him.

But while we bless thee, O Father, for thy goodness, we would, with shame and confusion of face think of our ingratitude. We lament that we have not duly hearkened to thy word, nor been sensible of thy great clemency and love. We have neglected the government of our thoughts, and the direction of our lives. We have permitted temptation to renew its strength upon us, and have exposed ourselves to thy righteous displeasure.

Parent of mercies! will it please thee to hear us through Jesus, thy well beloved Son; and through him blot out our sins and remember them no more against us. Enable us hereafter to serve thee with filial love and holy fear. May we now determine to devote to thee the remainder of the lives thou art sparing. O God! accept, defend, and sanctify us. What we know not, teach thou us. Whatever in us is evil, dispose and enable us to reform. Whatever in us is good, assist us to carry forward to perfection. Forgive our sins; pardon our ignorance. In thy great mercy, grant us such things as shall be good for us, though we may neglect to pray for them; and deny us such things as would be hurtful to us, though we should earnestly desire them. Help us to walk as in thy sacred presence, and to live as those who look forward to a day of inquiry.

God of the nations! bless the land in which we live. Give success, we pray thee, to the lawful and virtuous labor of its inhabitants; provide the necessary supplies for all their wants; and may public happiness be established on the lasting basis of public virtue. May war forever cease through the earth, and thy kingdom come and thy will be done.

In the spirit of charity we would commend all our brethren to thee; and may thy salvation visit them. God of the night, and of the day! we resign ourselves to thy watchful providence during the coming hours of rest. When we are unprotected, wilt thou protect us; and to thee who hast created us, to thee who hast redeemed us, to thee who art sanctifying the hearts of thy faithful servants, be honor and glory everlasting, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

TUESDAY MORNING.

O LORD, our heavenly Father! the great Source of life, the benevolent Power, in whom are all our springs of comfort and happiness! Thou art good and doest good continually; thy tender mercies are over all thy works. Our voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord! in the morning will we direct our prayer unto thee, and look up.

To whom should we look up with sentiments of gratitude at the beginning of every day, but to thee, whose care has protected us through the hours of darkness; whose goodness hath refreshed us with sleep? To whom, in our ignorance of what a day may bring forth, should we direct our prayers, with sentiments of trust in a paternal providence, and with mutual solicitude for each other's virtue and happiness, but to thee, our eternal Refuge, whose mercies towards us are great and constant? Hear, most gracious God, these our united prayers and thanksgivings, which the goodness we have tasted, and thy grace in Jesus Christ, encourage us to pour out before thee. It is our first, and may it ever be our earnest desire, to enter on the employments, and meet the events of every day, with a deep sense of the importance of religion. Dispose us, Father of our spirits, amidst all the cares and business of this life, to regard the salvation of our souls as the one thing needful. Make us a family of sincere Christians; render our habitation a holy sanctuary, the residence of piety and christian knowledge. Let every heart be an altar to thee. May the religion of Christ, possessing our wills and pervading our affections, become a bond of union, the spring of every virtue, the animating motive to every duty, a support under every trial, and the pledge of thy continued favor and everlasting love.

O Lord most holy! what we ask for ourselves, we desire for others. Increase the number of those who serve thee with holy joy, and with a christian life. Multiply the triumphs of truth over error; of the filial spirit of love over gloomy fears. In all the habitations of men, from the rising of the sun to the going down thereof, may the incense of acceptable praise, and the pure offering of virtuous lives be presented unto thee. Endue those who are appointed to rule over their fellow men, with superior wisdom and benevolence. Inspire all instructors of youth, and all teachers of religion, with an ardent concern to promote the greatest welfare of those for whom they labor. Incline the young, O God, to cultivate a sober mind; to remember thee their Creator, Redeemer and Judge; and to acquire those habits which shall secure their present usefulness and future peace. Lead those in the middle of life, to labor, while it is day, in thy service and for the benefit of their fellow men, before the night cometh. Support thine aged servants under all their infirmities, and help them by their example to convince the rising generation, that religion has power to shed comfort upon the decline of life, and to smooth the passage to the tomb.

In the arms of faith and prayer we would commend to thee the sick and the afflicted, and wilt thou be very near and gracious to them in weakness and trouble. May thy blessing be upon all our families. Grant that parents may be duly impressed with the high and solemn trust committed to their charge; and see that they set before their children examples, which they can follow with safety; and, when they die, leave behind them characters, which may be remembered with love and veneration. And may children be mindful of how much they owe to their parents; and be induced to do all in their power to promote their happiness. O God, grant that all, whether as parents or children, as masters or servants, as members of families, or as citizens of the state, may discharge their obligations with diligence, fidelity, and zeal. In every situation, may it be our chief care to do justly, to love mercy, and walk humbly before thee, our God.

In the name of our Redeemer we offer our prayer; and in him, the Resurrection and the Life, we look forward to a better and happier world, to which wilt thou at last receive us; and to thee shall be rendered ceaseless praises. Amen.

TUESDAY EVENING.

O THOU, who art over all! King of kings, Lord of lords! Creator and Preserver of all beings! Thou didst speak, and the world was made; thy providence supports the works of thy hands, and the happiness of thy creatures is thy constant care.

We rejoice in the assurance, that thou wilt hear us when we pray; and that thou takest pleasure in those who come unto thee through faith in Jesus Christ. As his disciples, Holy Father, we now come before thee, and through him implore thee to hear us in heaven, thy holy habitation, and when thou hearest, forgive.

With hearts truly moved with a sense of thy great goodness; with views such as they should have, who experience thy constant bounty and sustaining care, would we bow before thee in our devotions. Lift upon us, O Lord, the light of thy countenance, and give us peace. O let not our iniquities stand between thee and us; but, by the assistance of thy grace, make us such as thou wouldst have us to be. What in us is dark, wilt thou illumine; what is weak, wilt thou strengthen; what is erroneous, wilt thou correct; and what is low, wilt thou raise and support. Gracious God! our hope is in thee. To thee would we now surrender every thing. To thee we would give up ourselves, our relations, our friends, our all,—all that we possess, and all that we expect. Dispose of us as shall seem to thee fit. O Lord! may we be wholly and forever thine. O claim us as thy right; keep us as thy charge; love us as thy children; defend us when we are in danger; heal us when we are wounded; revive us when we are fainting; and raise us when we fall.—We thank thee, Giver of every good, for sparing us so long, and granting us so much. We would see the exhibitions of thy kindness, in our creation and safety ; in our being born in a land where the glad news of salvation by a Redeemer is preached. We would see thee, in our nature and condition ; in the structure and formation of our bodies ; in the nobler faculties of our minds ; in the exercise of reason ; in the intimations of conscience ; in the affections we cherish ; in the sympathies we feel ; and in the means of grace and the hopes of glory.

O that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men !

To thee, O Heavenly Parent, we owe it that we were not deserted in helpless infancy ; and to thee we owe exemption from what our ingratitude deserves. Thou hast been kind to us, though we have been unthankful. To thee we owe our strength, our health, and our family blessings. To thy mercy we owe it, that we are not in great affliction, or languishing on the bed of sickness, or groaning under the sharpest pains, or pining in want. May we ever acknowledge thee, with sincere gratitude, in thy bounty that cheers, in thy wisdom that directs, in thy truth that enlightens, in thy power that sustains, and in thy mercy that forgives us. O God, may we see thee as thou art, and where thou art. May we ever remember that we pass our lives in thy constant presence, and that death resigns us to thy gracious disposal. Convince us, O God, that it is more solemn to live than to die; since our condition in an eternal world is suspended on the characters we form here. O may our lamps be trimmed and burning, and we be like those, who are waiting for the coming of their Lord.

Our Preserver and Benefactor! while we thank thee for thy good providence over us through this day, we would give ourselves to thy paternal care through this night. Make not our beds our graves; but give us quiet and refreshing sleep, and enable us to see the light of another day, prepared for its duties; and to thee shall be the glory and praise forever, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

GLORY and honor be unto thee, the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God! who fillest the heavens and the earth with thy presence and thy love! Glory and honor be unto thee, the Father and Friend of man! who hast formed us after thine own image, made us intelligent, free, and immortal, and raised us to the dignity of thy children and thy worshippers. Thou hast bestowed on us another day ; and art inducing us, by thy multiplying favors, to prepare for higher satisfactions than this world can offer.

Adoration and praise be unto thee, the Father of compassion and God of grace ! that thou hast pitied thy sinful and erring creatures, and given us a Redeemer, who is made able to save to the uttermost. By the doctrines, the death, and the resurrection of thy Son, thou hast revealed to us thy character and will ; conferred on us the strongest assurance and pledge of thy mercy ; enriched us with comfort under all our trials and distresses ; encouraged and enabled us to prove faithful to duty ; delivered us from the fear of death and hell ; and set before us the path of life, which leads to endless pleasures at thy right hand.

O God ! how shall we express thy goodness ; how shall we estimate thy grace ? We are filled with amazement, when we recollect, that though thou art infinitely exalted, thou deignest to exercise such condescension and clemency towards us. To thee our homage, our affection, our all, are due.

Merciful Parent of the human family ! enable us to live under an habitual sense of the relation we sustain towards thee. O may the impression of thy greatness inspire us with reverence, and the remembrance of thy mercy lead us to consecrate our bodies and our souls as a living sacrifice unto thee. May a cheerful and constant obedience ever prove our gratitude, and a patient submission, under our afflictions, ever evince our trust. May we more and more rejoice in Jesus Christ as the Captain of our salvation; open our hearts to all his discoveries and commandments; make them the only rule of our faith and practice; aim continually at an increasing resemblance of his divine virtues; and rely with unshaken confidence upon the precious promises that he has sealed with his blood. By the influence of his holy Gospel, may we pass, with usefulness and comfort, through all the vicissitudes of this transitory state, and become qualified for an entrance into that world, where all his followers shall be happy with him forever.

God of the whole earth! may the religion of thy Son rule and sanctify the world. May wars and fightings cease from among men, and the arts of peace be multiplied. Bless, we fervently pray thee, our land. May our rulers rule in thy fear, and for the general welfare. May our people lead quiet and peaceable lives in all godliness and honesty. Vouchsafe to preserve to us our civil and religious rights; to protect us from the horrors of war; to bless us with healthy and fruitful seasons, and to prosper our agriculture, commerce, and manufactures.

Our Father who art in heaven! Thou hast carried us so far through our journey of life; we now ask thy presence and protection, during this day. Make us industrious, and useful, and happy. Be our God in life, our hope in death, and our everlasting portion.

We offer this our morning service, in the name and as disciples of thy Son, through whom to thee be all honor and glory forever. Amen.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

ALMIGHTY and eternal God! In thy hand our times are, and with thee is the number of our months. Having experienced fresh proofs of thy care and bounty, we would at the close of this day kneel before thee in supplication; and before we compose our bodies to sleep, would take a few moments from weariness to lift our thoughts to thy perfections, and send up our requests to thy throne of mercy. How grateful should we feel, that there is One above us, who will hear our prayers, and who can do for us more than we can do for ourselves. O God! without thy grace all wisdom is folly, and without thy help all efforts are vain. Thou hast been doing good to us continually. But alas! how often have we been unmindful of our dependence; how often have we permitted unsubdued passions to lead us from thee and duty; how often have we forgotten that we profess to be followers of the humble Jesus! Our God and Father! conscious of our errors and sins, we most anxiously supplicate thy grace and pardon. Through Jesus Christ be merciful to us sinners; and hereafter so discipline us that we may be duly sensible that we are pensioners on thy bounty and dependent on thy power. O suffer us not to make shipwreck of our best hopes, through ambition or vanity; but wilt thou keep our eyes from tears, our feet from falling, and our souls from death. Enable us so to govern our bodily appetites, that they may answer the useful ends for which thou didst implant them in our nature. Enable us to know ourselves, in order that we may eradicate our evil propensities, before they shall have gained a dangerous strength. To this end we pray for that effectual faith in Jesus Christ, which works by love and purifies the heart, which is a shield in every temptation, a guide in every duty, and a solace in every trouble. O may the true spirit of Jesus dwell in our souls, and the power of religion be experienced in our hearts. Grant us a more devoted love towards thee, and more genuine charity towards our fellow men. May we be Christians in spirit and in deed. Enable us to exercise that godly sorrow for our sins, which worketh repentance unto life, and may we place the Lord always before us. Grant unto us more fidelity and zeal ; more kindness and love ; more compassionate feelings and more benevolent affections ; more virtuous sympathies and a more devotional spirit. Lead us therefore to search the Scriptures daily, to study the oracles of divine truth with that seriousness and self-application which shall completely imbue our souls with the piety and purity which pervade them. Give to our understandings spiritual light. O thou fountain of knowledge ! give us wisdom, the assistant of thy saints : send her from thy holy heavens, from the throne of thy greatness, that she may be present with us, and labor with us, and teach us what is acceptable to thee ; throw not a cloud over our prospects, but give us hopes full of immortality. May we look beyond the perplexities of an earthly course to a higher portion and a better happiness than the world can give.

And now, O Holy Father, would we close our prayers, imploring with renewed earnestness, thy providential direction in all our ways; kind deliverance from trouble; abundant spiritual blessings for ourselves and others; gracious forgiveness of our manifold sins; more inward peace and satisfaction; greater progress in holiness; firmer establishment in every good word and work; and above all, a reception at death into thine hands, and a full admission at last to eternal glory.

These we ask, in his name in whom thou hast promised to hear us always; and through him wilt thou accept us now and ever. Amen.

THURSDAY MORNING.

O THOU, who art the Rewarder of all those that diligently seek thee! Merciful God, receive, with thy gracious audience, the prayers and praises of thy children.

We adore thee as the greatest and best of Beings, the Source of all power, wisdom, goodness and hope. Without thee we can do nothing; and on thee we depend from day to day. Thine energy sustains, thy presence animates, thy gracious influence blesses the universe. Our ways and purposes are exposed to thine inspection ; our joys and sorrows are dispensed by thy providence. Thy mercy has given us a Redeemer and Guide ; and thy undeserved love adds to our days and satisfactions, that we may be drawn to devote our hearts to thy service.

Receive our thanks, great God, for our being, our reason, our health, our friends, our food and raiment, and all the other comforts and conveniences of life. Most of all we thank thee for sending thy Son to save us from the consequences of sin and death, by raising us to faith, to purity and holiness. We rejoice that we are adopted, by Christianity, into the family of heaven, and are all enabled to cry Abba, Father. While we live on the earth, we pray that we may all be of one mind, love as brethren, and live in peace ; that thou, the God of peace and love, mayst be with us.

But, O Lord ! we lament the sins that separate us from thee, our Father. We are disobedient children, and have not done those things which thou hast required as our duty. We have wasted much time, abused many privileges, and omitted to pray to thee in the spirit of Christ. O God ! how shall we stand before thee, who knowest all our sins of ignorance and presumption ? We will come in the name of Jesus, our Mediator, and throw ourselves upon thine infinite mercy, entreating thee to make us truly penitent, that we may be forgiven. May the fetters of sin be broken, and we be visited by the liberty wherewith Christ makes us free.

May we, each one of us, do all in our power to advance thy glory, by advancing the good of our fellow men. May parents rightly estimate the talents put into their hands. In the momentous work of education, may they teach their children to view thee as a kind and watchful Father, who is able and willing to do more for them than any earthly parent. Forbid that they should ever forget, that their offspring belong to thee; and that, if, through their criminal neglect or bad example, thy moral creatures suffer, thou wilt require them at their hands. Grant them ability to strengthen every intellectual power and moral faculty, and give them wisdom to direct each to its proper object. O may parents impart to their children such views of thee, of Jesus Christ, and of duty, that, as they increase in age, they may increase in favor with God and man. And may children remember their solemn obligations to their parents, and do all in their power to gratify and assist them. May they recollect how many anxious hours have been passed for them; and be induced to make returns, by pure, industrious and good lives.

God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, may thy rich blessing rest upon the ministers of religion. Give them, we beseech thee, a large measure of the spirit of thy Son; the spirit of understanding and wisdom; the spirit of piety and virtue; the spirit of benevolence and charity. Replenish them with an enlightened and active zeal for the happiness of their brethren. Help them to shine as lights in the world; to be exemplary in their families; exemplary in their public walk, and exemplary in the performance of every christian office. While they study to approve themselves to thee, may they be honored and esteemed by those for whom they labor, and rejoice in the assurance that their work is not in vain in the Lord. And, finally grant, that they and we, being built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone, may become an holy temple unto thee.

Hear us, O God, of thine infinite mercy, in these our petitions, which we offer up in the name of thy Son; and thine be all the glory and praise now and evermore. Amen.

THURSDAY EVENING.

O THOU whose name alone is Jehovah ! who art the Most High over all the earth ! King of kings and Lord of Lords — to whom the world owes its being and support ! In compliance with thy gracious invitation, we would come to thee with our wants, and express to thee our gratitude. We would raise our affections to thee, in humble trust and supreme veneration. The heavens are thy throne ; the earth is thy footstool. Honor and majesty are before thee. Powerful is thine arm ; unsearchable are thy judgments ; righteous is thy reign, and with thee there is no respect of persons. Thy displeasure is revealed against all ungodliness and wickedness ; thy mercy is sure to the humble and penitent ; thy counsels are counsels of peace, and thy chastisements are chastisements of love. We address ourselves to thee, as creatures who cannot exist without thy support, who cannot be happy without thy blessing. We thank thee for all those satisfactions and comforts, which have sustained, cheered, and gladdened us in every stage of our pilgrimage. O God ! we would most devoutly thank thee, that we were made with capacities to know and love thee forever. In an especial manner, we bless thee for the divine mission of thy Son ; for redemption through him, even the remission of sins ; for the possession of his glorious Gospel ; for the privilege of freely inquiring into its meaning, and for the liberty of openly professing our faith.

What continual gratitude is due to thee, that his doctrines clearly enlighten the human mind ; that his precepts plainly point out the path of duty ; that his example incites and encourages our works of love ; that his death speaks peace and joy to the upright believer ; that his resurrection from the grave establishes our confidence in him, as our Saviour and Redeemer ; and that his ascension to glory enlivens our best and dearest hopes. — But, O Father, we lament our lukewarmness, our disobedience, and our ingratitude. We are sinful and weak and erring. Cast us not off, we beseech thee, but give us grace hereafter to use faithfully the talents we possess, and to act worthily of our holy vocation. We ask for christian faith and christian piety. Help us to shun all presumption, and to maintain a humble mind. Preserve us from those prejudices, which pervert the judgment ; from those passions, which debase the understanding ; from those mistakes, which weaken the principles of christian virtue ; and from those superstitious fears, which betray men into unworthy conceptions of thee.

Holy Father! assist us to know thee more and more continually; to understand thy will in our exalted destination; to make thee the object of our highest confidence and joy; to love thee with all our souls, and to walk according to all thy holy commandments.

Assist us to learn more of that Saviour, who was meek and lowly in heart; help us to take his yoke upon us, and find his promised rest and peace. Let our faith in him grow stronger and more efficacious, and the same mind be in us, which was in him. May his Gospel be completely successful in correcting our errors; in forming within us the divine graces of the christian character; in supporting us under the afflictions of this transitory life, and in preparing us for the glory which is about to be revealed. Having lived as his true followers, may the remembrance of his crucifixion and triumph banish every fear from our bosoms in the hour of death. And in the day of judgment, may thy grace give us the portion of those to whom the Saviour will say, — Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

O thou, our Great Preserver! We would, at the close of another day, call on thee with sentiments of religious gratitude for the many tokens of thy past care, humbly imploring thee to keep us this night under thy watchful eye, and, if consistent with thy will and our best good, permit us to see the light of another day ; and to thee, the Author of all our mercies, shall be glory, honor and dominion forever, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

FRIDAY MORNING.

O THOU who saidst, — Let there be light ; and there was light ! Infinite Jehovah ! thy hand laid the foundations of the earth, and stretched forth the expanse of heaven. How wonderful and majestic are the exhibitions of thy power ! But how infinitely superior art thou, the great Creator of all things. Thou rulest with an uncontrollable sway ; and all things are open to thine inspection and subject to thy will. Thou increasest the nations, and thou destroyest them. Thou killest, and thou makest alive. Thou woundest and thou healest. Thou bringest low and raisest up. Thou art God alone. Thou makest spirits thine angels, and flames of fire thy ministers. By thine appointment, seed-time and harvest, summer and winter, day and night, do not cease. The laws of nature are thy continued agency, and all their effects are the dispensations of thy providence.

With the opening day we would come to present to our heavenly Protector the tribute of thanksgiving. During the defenceless hours of sleep, thine eye hath watched over us, as though we were the only objects of thy care. Thy presence hath been the presence of a Father.

While we rejoice in the light which renews the face of nature, what thanks do we not owe thee, the God of nature and grace, that the dayspring from on high hath visited us! that the sun of righteousness hath risen upon us, with healing under his wings, to give light to them that sat in darkness and the shadow of death, and to guide our feet into the way of peace.

Heavenly Father! we lament the many unworthy returns we have made for thy great and undeserved goodness. When we review our past lives, and compare our conduct with the requisitions of thy holy laws, we find abundant reason for humiliation. We lament the wanderings of our minds, the coldness of our affections, and the languor of our prayers. We deeply lament that we know so little of religion, and feel so little of its power. O God! give us the comfort of thy pardoning love, that we may have hope. Make thyself known to us in our moral restoration : and grant, that hereafter we may have the supreme love of thee in our souls, a lively faith in thy Son, a pure christian benevolence to our fellow men, and in all our actions, the spirit of that law, which requires doing to others as we wish others should do to us.

In our daily intercourse with each other, may we obey the laws of equity and kindness. May we be honest and just in our dealings ; courteous and gentle in our conversation ; tender of the reputation of our neighbor ; candid to each other's frailties and infirmities ; kind and compassionate to the needy and the afflicted ; grateful to our friends and benefactors ; generous and forgiving to our enemies ; and charitable to all men.

Grant, O God, that we may be discreet in ordering our affairs ; industrious in performing the business of our stations ; moderate in our desires, and temperate in our pleasures ; and, at all times, heartily disposed to every good word and work ; that by patient continuance in well doing, we may seek for glory, honor, and immortality.

Bless each one of us now before thee ; and let the voice of joy, health, and safety, ever be heard in our dwelling : make our walls salvation, and our gates praise. May we be a family to serve thee. Enable us to distinguish things that differ, and to approve such as are excellent. Let neither poverty nor riches estrange our hearts from true religion. What we need wilt thou grant us, and what we possess wilt thou aid us to use aright. Let not praise fill us with pride, or censure with discontent. Impious would it be for us to prescribe to thee the manner in which thou shouldst regulate our lot. But, O God, however thou shalt deal with us, give us, we beseech thee, that holiness without which no man can see the Lord.

Aid us, Holy Father, in the duties of this day. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory forever. Amen.

FRIDAY EVENING.

SUPREMELY great and glorious Lord our God! Thou makest darkness thy pavilion round about thee. Thou art a being whom no mortal eye can see, and live. O let it please thee to give us right views of thine existence, agency, and perfections; knowing that no distance of place can remove us from thy presence, no length of time erase us from thy memory, no clouds of darkness veil us from thy view. May the solemn thought, that thou art with us wherever we are, sink deep into our minds, and have a practical influence on our lives.

Having this day united to partake of thy bounty, we would now unite to render thee our thanks. Blessed be God who daily loadeth us with his benefits, and giveth us all things richly to enjoy. We thank thee that the lines have fallen to us in pleasant places, and we enjoy a goodly heritage. Thou hast admitted us to the privileges of children; and while we live, we would celebrate thy praise. We would do thy will with increased fidelity, and bear thine appointments with entire resignation.

O God of wisdom! teach us the knowledge of ourselves. May we keep our hearts with all diligence, and amidst the trials of this world, maintain a constant habit of self-government. In prosperity, may we be humble, temperate, and charitable, remembering we are men; in adversity may we be patient, and wholly resigned to thine unerring providence. Save us, O gracious God, from anger and malice; from pride and presumption; and from the fatal influence of seductive examples. Give us prudence to direct our affairs; resolution to preserve our innocence; and wisdom to retain our integrity.

But especially we pray thee to revive in us the spirit of true religion. O revive an ardent zeal for thy glory, for the spread of truth, and for the practice of righteousness. May the entire and cheerful obedience of our lives praise thee. Prepare us for the scenes we are to meet in life; and when we shall have answered the purposes of thy wisdom and goodness here, grant us admission to that state, where we may see the sublimity of thy designs, and the wisdom of the means by which they are accomplished.

O God of the spirits of all flesh! hear our petitions for our brethren of thy family. As they are beloved and cherished by thee, may they be so by us. May we be enabled to lighten their burdens; to remove from their path the stone of stumbling; to befriend their good undertakings, and to unite them more closely to each other.

Reform the sad errors of the christian world. Grant that the worship of thee, O Father, in spirit and in truth, established by Jesus Christ, may every where prevail, that thy moral laws may not be rendered ineffectual by false notions of religion, nor the progress of the Gospel be obstructed by the wicked lives of those who profess it. Put an end to all usurpation over the judgments and consciences of mankind; and give us the gospel charity toward all, who in sincerity, differ from us in opinion. Bless, O God, the means of education ; and strengthen the hand that is extended to support learning. Send forth thy light and truth through the whole earth ; so that christian temples may be raised to thee in every land, and the incense of pure worship ascend from pious hearts, in every region. Smile upon our land and direct our rulers. — Bless the ministers of religion, and the people committed to their charge. — We would sympathize with those in sorrow and pain ; and may the interruption of their temporal enjoyments be abundantly compensated by their spiritual improvement. — Comfort those who mourn, and plead the cause of the orphan, the widow and the friendless. Be thou the guide of the young, the support of the aged, and all that to thy creatures, which their several wants require.

Gracious Giver of every good ! we thank thee for the salvation of the day past. Another step is taken in the journey of life ; and as our days speed their flight, grant that we may number them so as to apply our hearts to religious wisdom. Be thou our guide and defence through all the changes of time and nature ; and at last receive us to thyself in glory, through Jesus Christ our Redeemer. Amen.

SATURDAY MORNING.

O THOU, whose name alone is Jehovah! who art the Most High over all the earth! Who is a God like unto thee, glorious in holiness, doing wonders? Who, by searching, can find out God? Who can find out the Almighty unto perfection? O Lord! there is none great but thee! Who shall number the ages of thine eternity; or describe the brightness of thy glory; or define the limits of thy power; or enumerate the treasures of thy goodness; or fathom the depths of thy wisdom; or estimate the riches of thy grace? Such knowledge is too wonderful for us! With profound veneration we would adore the Being we cannot comprehend. From thee, who livest forever and ever, we, who are but of yesterday, would ask protection and guidance. We would rejoice that thy power is constantly directed by unerring wisdom, and exerted in effecting the purposes of thy boundless love. We, this moment, stand the monuments of thy sustaining care; for we have again been raised from the insensibility of sleep, to a conscious existence. We are before thee now, to render our thanksgivings as the disciples of Jesus Christ. To thee our spirits would ascend in the prayer of faith. Heavenly Father! we acknowledge with gratitude the daily bounties of thy providence; our temporal favors; our spiritual privileges; our private mercies, and the share we have had in public blessings. O may we show our thankfulness in our strict compliance with all thy laws. We pray for steadfastness in our religious purposes, and deprecate that transient goodness, which is compared to the morning cloud and the early dew. Cleaving to thee and holding fast that which is good, may we endure unto the end. Increase, O God, our delight in thy law, and direct our examination of the sacred Scriptures. With just solicitude may we ask for the right paths. Excite our diligence in reading, meditation, and prayer. Preserve us from following a multitude to do evil; arm us against the influence of corrupt society; may our choice of companions fall upon such as fear thee and keep thy commandments; fortify us against the enticements of sinners; and prevent our entering the path of the wicked. May we be content with that portion of good things allotted us, trusting thy fatherly care to fulfil our reasonable hopes, and supply our necessary wants.

We invoke thine influence to beget within us a strong and practical faith in Jesus Christ. May we meditate upon thy purposes in giving a Saviour to the world, till our hearts are warmed with true devotion. O God! we pray for more religious zeal, for more active piety, more christian charity, and more divine light. Grant to each of us greater fidelity in our several stations; and while on earth, may we work the works of thee, our God, who placed us here. May our expectations, relative to futurity, influence every thought, wish, and pursuit. May we consider ourselves as stewards, and remember the account we are to render of our talents. And O may it be our happy lot in the day of inquiry and sentence, to hear the approving words, Well done, good and faithful servants.

May the ministers of the Gospel experience in themselves those renovating influences of religion which they preach to others. By them, may the hungry receive the bread that came down from heaven, and the thirsty receive the pure waters of life; by them may the stranger be taken into our great Shepherd's fold; and the prisoner be visited by the liberty wherewith Christ makes his people free.

Everlasting Father, most holy and merciful! thy children look to thee for the protection of life in this world, and for its happy continuance in the next. It is our first and earnest desire, to perform all our duties, under a deep sense of the importance of religion, leaving our interests to thy disposal.

And now will the God of peace sanctify us wholly, and preserve us blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and present us faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy. To the only wise God, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

SATURDAY EVENING.

O THOU, who art the King eternal, immortal, and invisible, the only wise God, wilt thou hear us with favor when we pray, and grant us thine assistance and blessing. O Lord, open thou our lips, and our mouths shall show forth thy praise. Thou art the first, and thou the last, — the ever living and true God.

At the close of another day and another week, we are assembled in the scene of our domestic blessings to give thanks to thee and to glorify thy name. We are thy creatures, and we would come to acknowledge our entire and absolute dependence on thee; we are thy children, and we would look to our Father in heaven with reverence and love; we are cherished and supported by thy bounty, and we desire that our hearts may rise in the offering of gratitude to thee; we are frail, and ignorant, and weak, and we would pray for thy guidance, and instruction and support; we are sinners, and would implore the mercy of the God of grace. Enable us, O God, to come before thee with a deep and impressive faith in thy being and providence, with joy in thy wise and righteous government, with gratitude for thine unnumbered mercies, with the spirit of acquiescence in thine appointments and of submission to thine authority. By all around us, and all within us, we are taught that thou art good, and that thy tender mercies are over thy works. If sometimes the portion of life is bitterness and sorrow, we bless thee for the assurance we have, that afflictions are messengers sent for wise and good purposes; and that like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him; for he knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are dust. From thy bounteous hand, O God, all our blessings descend, and every day we experience thy goodness in our social enjoyments, in the health of our bodies, in the peace of our minds, and in our means of improvement and happiness. Through Jesus Christ thy grace has been continually proffered to us, and the light of divine truth has been shining upon us. We would particularly remember with gratitude the mercies which we have received during the past day and the past week. In the midst of our various cares and pursuits, thou hast been pleased to protect and bless the members of this family; and, notwithstanding our follies and sins, our day of grace is yet prolonged, and we are spared, while so many have gone down to darkness and dust.

O God, may each heart among us be an altar to thy praise. Suffer us not to go on from day to day, and from week to week, supported by thy power and blessed by thy bounty, and yet unmindful of the hand which upholds us and makes us happy. Give us grace to be grateful, as we ought, for that best gift of thy goodness, the gift of thy Son, our blessed Saviour. Glory be to God in the highest for him, who came to seek and to save that which was lost, to proclaim peace and mercy to man, to bring back thine erring children to thee, their Father, and to introduce us to an inheritance of hope incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away. O thou, whose mercy is not wearied by our ingratitude, we pray that our hearts may be touched and softened by a sense of our own unworthiness. What are we, O our Father, that thy blessings, temporal and spiritual, should be thus lavished upon us? We confess that we have wandered from thee, and wilt thou restore us; that we are polluted, and wilt thou purify us; that we are guilty, and wilt thou pardon us. Especially we pray that thou wouldst forgive us for the errors, and follies, and the sins, of which we may have been guilty during the past day; and enable us, for the future, to have better motives and better purposes, more purity and earnestness in good things, more love and devotion to thee.

O thou, to whom the darkness and the light are both alike, and who art the Protector of all that put their trust in thee; before we retire to repose this night, we would raise our hearts to thee, and seek thy blessing. We beseech thee to have each member of this family in thine holy keeping, and shelter us under the wing of thy providence. May we rise in the morning with hearts prepared for the duties and instructions of the sabbath; may our minds be filled with tranquil, devout, and solemn thoughts and remembrances; and may the things which belong to our everlasting peace, possess our souls.

We offer our prayer in the name of him, who hath loved us and given himself for us, through whom be rendered unto thee, the most high God, unceasing praises. Amen.

SUNDAY MORNING.

OUR Father who art in heaven! hallowed be thy name. As the children of thy family, and the objects of thy care, we would now come to dedicate to thee the lives thou hast spared through another night. Thine ever watchful providence hath been over us for our safety. We have laid ourselves down and slept, and have awaked; because thou hast sustained us. With grateful and humble joy would we hail the return of this day, consecrated to the special exercises of piety, the instructions of religion, and the outward worship of thee our God. We bless thee for the institution of a day of sacred rest; a day set apart from worldly cares and employments; a day which we are to keep holy by worshipping thee, who art a spirit, in spirit and in truth. In the name, and as the disciples of Jesus Christ, we would present our united tribute of prayer and praise to our Creator, Preserver, and Benefactor. We would acknowledge thee, as the only living and true God; the high and lofty One, who inhabitest eternity. Thou, O God, dwellest not in temples made with hands; the universe is thy temple. Thy mind pervades creation. We cannot retire from thy presence. Our thoughts and purposes are exposed to thy view, and thou knowest more of us than we know of ourselves.

Thine eye is at this moment upon us. O God, most holy! we come to ask for mercy, because we have sinned; and to implore the influences of thy spirit, because in thee is our hope. We rejoice that there is one above us, who is infinitely wise, powerful, and good; who loveth us more than any other being loves us; who careth for us more than any other being can care for us; who careth for us more than we care for ourselves.

Heavenly Father, we desire to sanctify this day, as we ought, to thee; and as we now remember with gratitude the salvation of the night past, may we this day meditate upon the salvation, which is offered us in the Gospel. Enable us, with lively faith, to remember him who died that we might live; and so to attend to the things that concern our everlasting peace, that this day may be as one of the days of heaven to our souls. Gladly may we embrace the opportunities, with which as a family we are favored, to go up together to the place, where thy name is adored, and where pardon and acceptance are proclaimed in Jesus Christ. Dispose us, we entreat thee, to engage in the solemn duties of thy house, with sincerity and fervor. May we have the spirit of Jesus; so that our devotion shall be pure and exalted. May we receive with attention and candor, the instructions and admonitions of the Christian preacher. With submission of heart, may we bow to the authority of thy precepts; and with gladness may we receive the declarations and promises of thy mercy. With ardent desires may we ask spiritual blessings for ourselves; and with true charity intercede for others.

O Lord, we are thy servants, bound to give thee that which cometh from thy hands. We would this morning consecrate ourselves to thee with the deepest solemnity; resigning to thee those hearts which thou hast formed for thyself; surrendering all that we possess to thy gracious disposal; humbly praying that nothing may ever separate us from thy love. Thus beginning the life of heaven here, may we attain its full enjoyment hereafter.

God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! while with gratitude we remember our distinguished privileges, we anxiously pray that they may be extended to all the children of thy great family; so that all may know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.

Be merciful, O Lord, to the whole human race. Known unto thee are all thy wants, and thou art able to do exceeding abundantly above what we can ask or think. From thee, who art plenteous in goodness, may they severally receive those blessings which are expedient for them. May our relations and friends obtain that favor in thy sight, which thou bearest to them that love thee; and in every thing that concerns them, may they be under the direction of that wisdom, which can alone determine what will be most conducive to their present and eternal welfare.

O Father, we again ask thy presence and blessing with us this day; and may we spend it, knowing it may be the last Sabbath we shall see on earth. Hear us through him who is the way, the truth and the life, while we ascribe to thee, God over all, praises everlasting. Amen.

SUNDAY EVENING.

O THOU, who hearest prayer! We acknowledge thee, the only proper object of religious worship. Thou art God in heaven above; and upon the earth beneath there is none else. Thou art the first and thou the last. Thou art God alone. We would think of thine attributes, with profound veneration and with cheerful trust. Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory. In every place we are surrounded, supported, inspected by thee. If we ascend into heaven thou art there;— if we make our bed in the grave, lo! thou art there;— if we take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there thy hand shall lead us, and thy right hand shall hold us. Thou knowest our down-sitting and our uprising, and art acquainted with all our ways.

Power also belongeth unto thee, O God. In thee is everlasting strength; and none can stay thine hand, or say unto thee—What doest thou? Thy wisdom is equal to thy power. Thine understanding is infinite. Thou art light, and in thee is no darkness. O the depth of the wisdom and knowledge of God!

Holy art thou, O Lord, in all thy works. Just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints! We would give thanks at the remembrance of thy holiness. Though clouds and darkness are round about thee, justice and judgment are the habitation of thy throne.

Good art thou, O Lord, and thy tender mercies are over all thy works. Thou art love; and as a father pitieth his children, so thou hast compassion on those who fear thee. We will give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, and his mercy endureth forever. Although the fig-tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vine; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flocks shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stall; yet will we rejoice in the Lord; we will joy in the God of our salvation.

O God, most high and holy! we come, sensible of the presence in which we stand; and though it is weakness which addresses omnipotence; and though it is ignorance which supplicates perfect wisdom; and though it is the voice of imperfection, to a being of spotless purity; yet we come with childlike confidence, in that new and living way, which thou hast appointed to the sinful children of men; believing thou wilt hear our prayers and pardon our transgressions.

We beseech thee to accept our most grateful acknowledgements for the unspeakable blessings of the Gospel. Never can we sufficiently thank thee for that exalted Redeemer, whom thou didst raise up to save mankind, by turning them away from their iniquities. We bless thee, that for this end he was born, and for this cause he came into the world, that he might bear witness to the truth; and we believe he is the Christ the Son of the living God. We thank thee for the disclosures he made of thy paternal character, and of our duties and destination. We bless thee for his doctrines and his example; and when he was delivered up for our offences, we would most devoutly thank God, that he was raised again for our justification, and became the first fruits of them that slept. Praised be God, who hath begotten us to a lively hope, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Through him we look to thy mercy for the forgiveness of our sins; and for grace to help in future times of need. Through faith in the Redeemer, may we have that godly sorrow, which worketh repentance unto salvation: and by prayer and watchfulness may the renewing influences of christianity become effectual in our souls; so that forgetting the things that are behind, we may press forward to the mark for the prize of our high calling of God in Christ Jesus. In future may we suffer no iniquity to have dominion over us; but may we be filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, to the glory and praise of God.

Holy Father! with true gratitude for thy sustaining care, would we ever welcome the return of a day devoted to the sacred interests of religion. We thank thee for the many advantages and pleasures of public worship, which we have this day enjoyed. May it be among the sabbaths in which we have so meditated upon thy character, as to have elevated our piety and purified our hearts. O may we not abuse the means of grace, by resting in them, but carefully keep in view the end they are designed to promote. If we have presented our prayers to thee this day with a lively faith in thy Son, grant that they may produce in us a firmer trust in thy love, and perfect charity for all mankind. May the same mind be in us which was in Christ Jesus; and so may religion prepare us for the changing scenes of life, for the closing hour of death, and for the solemn day of judgment.

Grant thy presence and blessing, O God, to thy faithful ministers of all denominations. While they dispense the word of truth with sincerity, may they be successful in reforming the wicked, instructing the ignorant, and in having Christianity acknowledged in all its worth, and felt in all its power. Help the good in every land to diffuse light and true religion. Bless all our churches; and hasten, we pray thee, the time when thy name shall be honored and adored throughout the earth; when all nations shall acknowledge thee alone their common Father, and Jesus Christ their common Saviour. In his name we offer our prayers; and at the close of this day, consecrated to the memory of his resurrection, we would humbly ask thy favor, protection, and blessing; while we ascribe to thee, the kingdom, the power, and the glory forever. Amen.

MONDAY MORNING.

O God, the Creator of the world and of all things therein ! Our souls would bow with reverence before thee in prayer, feeling our imperfections as we ought in the presence of our Maker. Because thou, O Lord, art good, and gracious, and powerful, we come to thee ; and we would have thee on every side to strengthen, animate, guide and console. May we be in thee, and wilt thou be in us. We would see the displays of thyself in nature. The heavens declare thy glory, and the firmament showeth forth thy handy work ; day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge of thee.

Thou art the God of our lives ; and we lift up our souls unto thee, with the voice of thanksgiving, for thy merciful care of us the past night ; and would now humbly implore the continuance of thy protection and blessing through the following day. With renewed vigor we would praise thee who hast caused us to sleep in peace, and awake in safety. To thy service, O our heavenly Preserver and Benefactor, we devote our invigorated powers, both of body and mind. May we go forth to the various labors and employments of our stations, under a deep sense of our obligations to thee ; and may we be in thy fear all the day long. O may a sense of thy presence, and a regard to thine authority, and the hope of thy gracious acceptance, direct all our views, and govern all our actions. If we should, this day, be tempted by the prospect of unrighteous gain, or the allurements of sinful pleasure ; grant us the understanding and resolution to turn from them ; and let integrity and uprightness preserve us. While our thoughts are amidst the concerns of earth, may we be careful to reserve our affections for what is pure, and holy, and eternal. May we be temperate, industrious and charitable ; so that a review of life may afford us comfort, when nothing but our characters shall remain to us.

As sojourners on earth, we would humbly entreat of thee, O Father of mercies, those supplies of temporal good, which will most conduce to our future welfare. If it be thy heavenly will, defend us from the many dangers to which we are exposed. Prosper us in all our just undertakings ; and may we advance thy glory, by being eminently serviceable to our fellow men. Fit us, O Lord, for what is before us in life ; and whatever shall be our condition, may the purposes of thy providence be answered in us.

As our day is, so may our strength be. Enable us to meet the adversities of this probationary state, with prepared minds ; with patience, fortitude and resignation. May we take sober views of life and its duties ; estimate well the great objects of probation, and see ourselves as thou seest us. Knowing that our stay on earth must be short, may we often think of the world to which we are hastening. O ! may a firm trust in thee and a lively faith in Jesus Christ, carry us through every trial, and prepare us for thy presence.

Father of lights ! what we ask for ourselves, we ask for our brethren ; beseeching thee, the universal Parent, to do for them and for us, as thine unerring wisdom sees best.

In the spirit of faith and charity, we desire to present these our requests ; humbly relying on that everlasting, unchangeable mercy, which thou dost manifest and declare by Jesus Christ ; in whose name we offer to thy sacred majesty, glory and praise forever. Amen.

MONDAY EVENING.

EVER living and ever blessed Lord our God !
At the close of another day, in which we have experienced thy care and goodness, we are assembled together to adore and praise thee, as our heavenly Father; in whom we live, and move, and have our being. Thou art the Source of good, the Author of our mercies. Accept, we beseech thee, our unfeigned thanks for our being, our reason, and all other endowments of soul and body; for our health, food, and raiment, and all the various comforts of life; above all, for that rich mercy which gave us a Saviour to redeem us from sin and death, and to lead us to a knowledge of thee and a sense of our duty. We bless thee for thy patience with us, notwithstanding our many and great provocations; for all the directions, assistances, and comforts of thy holy spirit; for thy continual care and watchful providence over us, through the whole course of our lives; and particularly for the mercies and benefits of the past day. We beseech thee to continue these thy blessings to us, and give us grace to show our thankfulness, in a sincere obedience. Reform whatever is amiss in the temper and dispositions of our souls; that no impure thoughts, unlawful designs, or inordinate desires, may rest there. Free our hearts from envy, hatred, malice, and all uncharitableness; that we may never suffer the sun to go down upon our wrath; but may always go to our rest in peace, charity, and good will, with a conscience void of offence towards thee and towards men. Imprint upon our hearts such a dread of thy judgments, and such a grateful sense of thy goodness to us, as may make us both afraid and ashamed to offend thee.

But, O God, we lament that we have not had that fear which keepeth from evil. We would come in our unworthiness, acknowledging our manifold violations of duty. But remembering thou hast promised forgiveness to the truly penitent, we earnestly implore, through Jesus Christ, the exercise of that mercy thou keepest for thousands. May we possess that deep contrition, which shall make us effectually return to thee, from whom we have wandered. Help us to imbibe the spirit, adopt the principles, and copy the example of our Saviour. Help us to cherish a lively remembrance of that great day, in which every one must give an account to God of all his thoughts, words and actions; and be rewarded according to the deeds done in the body.

Father of lights and God of all grace! we pray for the spread of the Gospel through all nations; and may as many as have received this heavenly gift, live as becomes it. Be gracious unto thy church; and grant that each member may walk worthy his holy vocation. Bless all in authority over us; and so rule their hearts and strengthen their hands, that they may punish wickedness and vice, and maintain pure religion and social order. Send down blessings upon our relations, friends and neighbors. Reward all who have done us good; pardon all who have done us evil. Be merciful to those in trouble and anxiety, and grant them more and better than we can ask or think.

We again, O Father, give thee thanks, that in mercy another day is added to our lives.

We now, in the solemn act of prayer, dedicate ourselves to thee, in a sober, righteous and godly life; in which resolution do thou, O God, confirm and strengthen us; that as we grow in age, we may grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Through the dangers of this night, wilt thou be our shield. Grant to us that refreshing sleep which shall fit us for the duties of the coming day. We commit ourselves to thy care, having a firm trust in thy providence; ascribing to thee all might, majesty, and dominion forever. Amen.

TUESDAY MORNING.

Our Father who art in heaven, the Source of life, the Parent of all intelligent beings, by whose inspiration we have received understanding! We beseech thee to look in mercy from heaven, the habitation of thy holiness, upon us, thy dependent children. Fill us with the spirit of prayer and supplication, that we may serve thee with reverence and godly fear. Grant that we may receive the adoption of sons, and fashion ourselves according to the example of him, who hath called us with a holy calling. May we be conformed to the image of the Son of God, who labored and suffered and died for our redemption.

Inspire us with a due veneration of thy sacred majesty; and in thought, word and action, may we hallow thy name. Oh, that thy name might be hallowed among the heathens; may all the Gentiles glorify thee for thy mercy, and rejoice together with thy chosen people.

Almighty King of kings, may thy kingdom come. May we demean ourselves as obedient subjects of thy moral government, by a cheerful and universal compliance with thy laws. May thy word have free course and be glorified, till every thought shall be brought into obedience to thee, and the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of the Lord and of his Christ, and all people, nations, and languages, serve him, to whom thou hast given dominion and glory.

Heavenly Father, behold we are here thy creatures and subjects. In every occurrence of life, we would say, It is the Lord, let him do what seemeth him good. May thy will be done concerning us and by us. May the submission of thy creatures on earth be as sincere and constant as it is in heaven.

Knowing that the blessings of this world, as well as of that which is to come, are at thy disposal, we offer up our requests unto thee for such supplies of the good things of this life, and such a disposition to enjoy them, as thou in thy wisdom knowest to be best for us. Give us this day our daily bread. Bless our substance, and prosper the labor of our hands. Give us neither poverty nor riches to our hurt. Feed us with food convenient for us. Having food and raiment, as thy goodness orders, may we therewith be content.

Above all, we beseech thee to pardon the great and numerous sins and follies of our past lives. Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. From thy forbearance shown to us, may we learn to govern every emotion of anger, and to abstain from every degree and kind of revenge. We would forgive one another, even as thou, through Jesus Christ, hast forgiven us.

Lead us not into temptation. In all our conflicts with the enemies of our purity and salvation, may we have the assistances needful to prevent our falling into sin. We beseech thee to fortify our minds, to carry us safely through every trial, and guide us in the paths of innocence and integrity. May thy grace be sufficient for us, and thy word abide in us, that we may come off conquerors through him who hath loved us.

Deliver us from evil; save us from our sins; and redeem us from all iniquity. O God of our salvation, defend us from all our spiritual enemies. Remove from us the way of lying; incline our hearts to thy testimonies. Cleanse us from secret faults, and keep us back from presumptuous sins.

O thou, who art great and greatly to be praised; good and greatly to be loved; we address these petitions to thee, believing thou art able to do exceeding abundantly for us, even above what we can ask or think; for thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

TUESDAY EVENING.

God of the morning and of the evening, who makest the outgoings of the one and the other to rejoice! It is good to give thanks unto thee, O Most High; to show forth thy loving kindness in the morning and thy faithfulness every night. Let our prayer be set forth before thee as incense, and the lifting up of our hands as the evening sacrifice. We adore thee as the highest, holiest, and best of Beings,—the true and living God,—God in heaven above and in the earth beneath. Thou art the first and thou the last, and beside thee there is no God. Thou art ever with us, upholding, sanctifying, and blessing us. The structure of our minds and bodies is curiously wrought by thee. Thyself invisible, all things are done by thee,—yet, who by searching can find out God? With laborious efforts we strive to imagine thy being. Our thoughts range through the wonders of creation in attempting to conceive of thy greatness. Thou hast given to the stars their light, to the deep its waters, to the earth its planets, to nature its richness, and to thy creature man, health, reason, and virtue. We ascend to the heavens above, and fathom the depths below; but we cannot find out the Almighty unto perfection.

Great Source of life, light, and happiness! to such a Being we would have the morning and evening witness our devout consecration. As a worshipping family we have now entered our closet, and we would regard this as the place of our prayer and the altar of our oblations. Here let thy mercy receive us, thy Gospel invite us, thine inspirations move us, and thy discipline reform us; — here let us bewail our guilt, pour out our souls, receive thy blessing, participate in thy love, and look forward to thy rest. May every avenue through which worldly cares and pleasures enter the mind, be now closed, and our offering be the sacrifice of contrite hearts.

We thank thee for our spiritual privileges. With admiration and grateful joy we reflect, that from the counsels of thy mercy for mankind, we are, in Jesus Christ, enlightened by the wisdom he taught, made partakers of the righteousness and forgiveness of which he is the minister, sanctified by his truth, and become heirs of eternal redemption. Penetrate our minds with such a lively sense of thy distinguished goodness, as shall engage all within us to love and reverence thy holy name. May the Saviour be precious to each one of our souls. From his lips may we learn thy holy will; and from his life learn how to conform to it. And while we view him as the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world ; whose mission, doctrines, example, and death have brought in everlasting redemption for sinners, we fervently implore that he may be revealed in us, that Christ Jesus may be formed in us, that we may partake of his spirit, and be created in his likeness. If we have this day wandered from thy paths, and followed the devices and desires of our own hearts, offending against thy holy laws ; through him wilt thou look upon us in mercy, and record not against us our follies and presumption, but lead us to that repentance which is unto life.

Eternal Father ! we pray not for ourselves alone. Let our brethren of thy family severally receive of thee those supports without which they cannot exist, and that blessing without which they cannot be happy. As no man liveth to himself, may it be our aim to communicate, and, by communicating, to enjoy happiness ; and thus influenced by the spirit of humanity, let us never cause an unnecessary pang to any human being. Fashion us, thou pure and perfect Spirit, to such a resemblance of thyself, that all our views, purposes, and actions may centre in what thou requirest.

Holy Watchman of thy chosen people, who dost never slumber nor sleep ! while we review, the day past, thankful for thy sustaining care and unfailing bounty, — thankful for the blessings and enjoyments it hath afforded, — thankful if we have been equal to its trials and faithful in its duties, we would now resign ourselves to thy guardian providence for the coming night, remembering that time, which is hastening upon us, when we shall make our bed in the grave. Pardon what thy pure eyes have seen amiss in us, and accept us through him who is passed into heaven for us, — and in his name, which is above every name, shall be ascribed to thee all honor and glory forever. Amen.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

INFINITELY great and glorious Lord our God ; whose name alone is Jehovah ! Thou coverest thyself with light as with a garment, and art the original Source of life, order, and happiness ! Though thou art far above our most exalted conceptions, and incapable of receiving any accession to thy felicity by the service of men or angels ; yet, blessed be thy name, thou hast revealed thyself to us, as a God hearing prayer, and hast encouraged us, by our morning and evening devotions, to maintain with thee a sacred intercourse. And since thou hast given us, in Jesus Christ, a boldness of access to the throne of grace, and made prayer a condition of acceptance, and promised, if we ask aright, to fit us for the blessings thou wilt bestow; we desire, at this time, with true piety and christian faith, to unite in this our duty and privilege.

Holy Father, we come to ask strength from thee, who alone canst impart it; and protection from thee, who alone canst save; and assistance from thee, who alone canst help; and mercy from thee, who alone canst forgive.

We have sinned, Father, against Heaven and in thy sight, and have lightly esteemed the rock of our salvation. We have permitted the trifles of the world to interrupt our religious duties, and engross our time and affections. O God! we justly deserve thy frowns. But knowing we cannot endure thine indignation, we fly to that rich mercy tendered in Jesus our Mediator; and as thy perfections are the ground of our hope and render thee the only proper object of our prayers, we would now devoutly pray thee to exercise towards us that mercy, which is the crowning attribute of thy nature.

Not weighing our unworthiness, pardon our iniquity, and justify us freely by thy grace, through the redemption there is in Christ Jesus.

O may we hereafter set the Lord always before us, and live as passengers going through a world of danger, to meet their Judge. O God, for aid and guidance we would fly to thee, whose name is the refuge of thy people; and may we feel ourselves supported, beyond the mere power of nature, by a higher power than nature knows.

If trouble, and sorrow, and disappointment are to be our portion, and we are to be travelers through the wilderness of human life, O God! wilt thou be with us. From the flinty rock, wilt thou give us water; in the dew of evening wilt thou give us bread; and may thy cloud of mercy overshadow us by day, and thy pillar of fire lead us by night, till thou shalt conduct us safely to our promised heaven. O grant our prayer, that we become wiser and better by all we suffer, as well as all we enjoy. With Christian devotedness may we take up our cross and follow our Master; and when our spirits would faint, may we look to Jesus, who went up to his Father's throne, by the steps of suffering. Thou hast placed us here, O God, to learn the great lesson of preparation for life eternal. Suffer us not to waste the hours of probation; but make us faithful to thee, ourselves, and each other, and fit us for what we are capable of enjoying.

In thee, who hast preserved and helped us hitherto, we put our trust for the whole of our future life. Into thy hands we commit ourselves, our friends, and brethren of mankind. To thee, in an especial manner, we commit the cause of Christianity, which is the cause of human happiness.

Graciously accept our thanks, thou Giver of all good, for having preserved us another night, and bestowed on us another day. O grant that we may meditate on thy law this day with joyful veneration, and keep it in all our actions, with firm obedience. Hear us through him who is our intercessor at thy right hand ; while we ascribe to thee, the Author of our condition, all glory, dominion, and praise forever. Amen.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

EVER blessed and glorious Lord our God! the Father of all the families on earth! We come now to worship thee as thy rational offspring. We would begin and end every thing with thee. Having finished the business and enjoyed the blessings of the day, withdrawn from the converse of the world, we unite, as a family, to acknowledge thy fatherly goodness towards us, exercised with a constancy and kindness, as if we were the only objects of thy parental care and bounty. What shall we render unto the Lord for all his benefits? We adore and thank that friendly Providence, which has sustained us to this hour; and we sincerely rejoice that we are disposed to appear before thee this evening, as a worshipping family. Above all, everlasting thanks be to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, that we, belonging to the household of faith, are called to the inheritance of the children of God.

For thy rich mercy's sake in Jesus Christ, forgive the sins with which we are chargeable; forgive us wherein we have trespassed against each other in the course of the day that is now closed; and let not our past transgressions provoke thee to visit our dwelling with thy displeasure.

To thee, our Protector in heaven, who crownest our days with favor and mercy, we desire sincerely to renew the surrender of ourselves. May the love and fear of thee dwell in our hearts and rule in our house. As we mutually share thy bounties, may we mutually love each other:

And now, O God, our prayer to thee is, that we may hereafter be followers of thee, as dear children. May our tempers, as the children of the God of love, be more mild, compassionate and benevolent. May we be as Jesus was,— holy, harmless and undefiled. Let our passions, subdued by a reverence of thy authority and presence, be more composed and better governed. May our graces and virtues be strengthened and improved; our love to thee, our Father, increased; our love to Jesus made effectual, and our love to each other abound more and more, in all that is amiable and pure and affectionate. O, may our lives be filled with the fruits of righteousness, to the honor of our relation to thee, our Parent, as thy sons, and the heirs of eternal life. With these holy and devout sentiments and wishes, we would compose ourselves to sleep; and during the hours when no earthly eye watches for our safety, when we are insensible of danger, and unable effectually to provide for our defence, O, almighty and gracious Preserver, keep each of us from evil; and restore us in the morning with renewed vigor of body and mind, to the duties and pursuits of a useful and virtuous life.

We commend to thee our friends and relatives, our native land, and the whole family of man; beseeching thee, to do abundantly for their good, above what we can ask or even think; and when we shall have answered here the great purposes of thy goodness in our creation, we urgently pray thee to accept us to the rewards of faithful children in thy kingdom above, through thine infinite mercy declared unto us in Jesus Christ, through whom we would ever ascribe to thee all honor and glory. Amen.

THURSDAY MORNING.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful Father! Thou seest our inmost purposes, and searchest our hearts. Enable us, at this time, to withdraw our thoughts from the concerns of the world, and hold undivided communion with thee, the Father of our spirits. Thy name is excellent in all the earth, and we would worship thee as the beauty of holiness. We come with our intercessions and prayers in the name of Jesus Christ, our Advocate and Redeemer; and, in this all-prevailing name, we would most fervently pray thee to remember not our offences! For the glory of thy name, turn from us all those evils we have most justly deserved. Spare us, good Lord, spare thy people who are penitent; and according to the multitude of thy mercies, have compassion on the work of thy hands. Deliver us, we entreat thee, from all evil ; from the dangerous assaults of temptations ; from lusts which war against the soul ; from all the deceitful allurements of this world ; from thy just displeasure, and from future condemnation. O deliver us, we beseech thee, from all blindness of mind, hardness of heart, and contempt of thy word and commandment ; from pride, vainglory and hypocrisy ; from envy and hatred ; from malice and cruelty, and all uncharitableness. In the time of our prosperity, in the time of our adversity, in the hour of death, and in the day of judgment, gracious God, deliver us.

Give us now, we beseech thee, to grow in grace ; to hear thy law with meekness ; to receive it with pure affection, and to bring forth the fruits of the spirit. Preserve us, if it be thy will, from dangers ; from hurtful lightnings and tempests ; from plague, pestilence and famine ; from war and wasting calamities. Give and preserve to our use the kindly fruits of the earth, so that in due time we may enjoy them. And now, O Father, our hearts' desire and prayer to thee is, that it may please thee to have mercy upon all men, and to bring into the way of truth all such as have erred and are deceived. Guide and bless all thy sincere worshipers in the right way, that embracing and holding fast the doctrine of eternal life, they may know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. May it please thee to rule and govern the Christian church, according to the simplicity of the Gospel; and to lead all professing Christians to the right knowledge and practice of their holy religion. Restrain, O God, every kind and degree of persecution, spiritual tyranny and oppression; and may all show themselves disciples of Christ, by loving one another. May unity, peace and concord, reign through the world, and mankind enjoy the rich blessings of order and good government.

Bless our rulers, and enable them to execute justice and maintain peace. Illuminate all ministers of the Gospel with clear knowledge and understanding of the truth as it is in Jesus; and may all seminaries of learning extend useful arts and virtuous principles. O God, with Christian sympathy, we pray thee to succor, help, and comfort all who are in danger, necessity, or tribulation. Defend all who travel by land or by water. Provide for the fatherless and the widow. Support the aged, and show pity upon all prisoners and captives. Strengthen such as do stand; raise up those who fall; and comfort the feeble-minded.

Heavenly Parent, we ask a blessing on our friends. Reward our benefactors; forgive our enemies; and let it please thee to have compassion upon all men.

We would not forget, O God, that tender care which has watched over us another night. While we are grateful in having thee for our support, we would cheerfully resign all to thy guidance and disposal this day. Let thy blessing be with our several employments, and never let us undertake what we cannot ask thee to prosper. Be with us on the right hand and on the left; and to thee, Most Holy, shall be praise forever, through Jesus Christ. Amen.

THURSDAY EVENING.

ETERNAL God, the Creator, Preserver, and Governor of the Universe, whom all the hosts of heaven venerate and adore! We desire to bow before thee this evening, with composed minds, devout affections, and fervent piety. In lengthening out our days, it is thy gracious design, to spare us for repentance and future improvement. In thine hand, O Lord, our breath is; and because thou hast not withdrawn thy parental support, we are still upheld in life. If we have this day overcome temptation to evil, if we have in any respect obeyed thy holy will,

and done good in the world ; unto thee be the praise. But we take shame to ourselves, that we have hitherto profited so little by the continuance of us in life. How many hours, as they have passed, have accused us of negligence !— Holy God, we are weak and erring ; but as thou rememberest we are dust, we would penitently supplicate that mercy, which thou hast promised through thy beloved Son. In him, we beseech thee, be gracious toward our past failings, and awaken us to future diligence, so that we may make our calling and election sure. Let our faith in the Saviour be something more than a cold assent of the understanding. Let it, we anxiously pray thee, penetrate our inmost souls, warm and invigorate our best affections, elevate us above the world, and make us live for the future. Especially let it make the aged sedate and exemplary ; the middle aged, industrious and pure ; let it protect the young in their innocence ; and make all, of every age, pious and holy.

Suffer, O God, no inordinate desires ever to prevail upon us, to break through the sacred boundaries of wisdom, virtue, and true religion. May we be like Jesus, our great exemplar.

With regard to our temporal condition and the continuance of life itself, we would readily refer these, O Father, entirely to thy wise disposal. We earnestly pray that thou wilt give us wisdom to conduct ourselves well and wisely, under whatever events thou shalt appoint to us. May all conduce to our security and improvement in the holy and divine life. Lead us, in whatever way thou pleasest, to the perfection and happiness of our natures. By christian dispositions, by an upright conduct, and by a steady perseverance in duty to the end, may we be prepared to meet death with serenity of mind, to stand before thy bar with christian hope, and to become blessed in the inheritance of eternal life.

Preserve, we beseech thee, among Christians, the sacred bond of unity. Among less important differences, may all discern the supreme value of piety, charity and holiness; and may we show our love to Christ, by practising his commands.

O thou common Parent of all! continue thy care over the nations that unhappily know not thee. Raise up chosen instruments to carry amongst them the right knowledge of thee, the only true God, and of Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent as the messenger of thy truth to men.

God of grace and consolation! be thou the kind deliverer of all under afflictions, whether of mind, body, or estate. Pity those who labor under the pressure of poverty. Dispose to kindness those who are able to afford them relief. Succor the tempted. Defend the oppressed. Support the persecuted for righteousness' sake. Comfort the sorrowful. Speak peace to the troubled mind. Spare desirable and useful lives. Prepare such as are near death for an exchange of worlds. Be thou the tender Guardian of the destitute; the Father of the fatherless; and the widow's God. Reward thou our benefactors; and if we have enemies, Father, forgive them.

We thank thee, O Lord, for thy goodness and care to us, through the day that is now closing. Praised and adored be thy great name for all we enjoy or yet hope for. May we lie down this night in peace with God, with our own consciences, and with all mankind. May our sleep be refreshing and tranquil; and through thine all-protecting providence, may the morning light find us in health for the duties of the day. Hear us, Holy Father, as thy children, through Jesus Christ. Amen.

FRIDAY MORNING.

HOLY, holy, holy Lord God Almighty! Heaven and earth are full of the majesty of thy glory. The glorious company of the Apostles praise thee. The goodly fellowship of the Prophets praise thee. The noble army of Martyrs praise thee. The holy church throughout all the world doth acknowledge thee, the Father of infinite majesty. We thy servants, though a small part of thy great family, would come in humble trust and with pure hearts, to join our praises and prayers with those of the spirits in thy presence, ascribing glory and honor, dominion and power, to him who sitteth upon the throne, forever and ever. We would acknowledge thee, the great and good Source of existence. Wherever we turn, we behold convincing proofs of thy being, agency, and care. We will extol thee, O Lord our King; we will bless thy name forever and ever. Thou didst breathe into us the breath of life, and thine inspiration hath given us understanding. In thee we live, and move, and have our being. O God, our heavenly Father, who hast safely brought us to the beginning of this day, defend us in the same by thy mighty power, and grant that this day we fall into no sin, neither run into any kind of danger; but that all our doings, being ordered by thy governance, may be righteous in thy sight. May we live as seeing thee, who art invisible; and wilt thou, who art the author of peace and lover of concord, in knowledge of whom standeth our eternal life, and whose service is perfect freedom, defend us, thy humble servants, in all assaults of our enemies; that we, surely trusting in thy defence, may not fear the power of any adversaries. May we have the piety and fortitude which were in Jesus Christ.

Hear our intercessions, O Lord, for the land in which we live; and wilt thou, who art the high and mighty Ruler of the universe, who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers upon earth, behold and bless with thine abundant favor all those who rule over us in our national and state governments. Replenish them with the grace of thy holy spirit, so that they may always incline to thy will and walk in thy way; endue them plenteously with heavenly gifts, so as to enable them most effectually to advance learning, peace and holiness.

O God, the Creator and Preserver of all mankind, we unitedly beseech thee for all sorts and conditions of men, that thou wouldst be pleased to make thy ways known unto them, thy saving health unto all nations. More especially we pray for thy holy church universal, that it may be so guided and governed by thee, that all who profess and call themselves Christians, may be led into the way of truth, and hold the faith in unity of spirit, in the bond of peace, and in righteousness of life. Finally, we commend to thy fatherly goodness all those who are anywise afflicted or distressed, in mind, body or estate, that it may please thee to comfort and relieve them, according to their several necessities; giving them patience under their sufferings, and a happy issue out of all their afflictions.

But while we acknowledge thee, O Father, as the supreme Disposer of our condition, we would not overlook the mercies which surround us. We, thine unworthy servants, would give thee most humble and hearty thanks for thy goodness and lovingkindness to us and to all men. We bless thee for our creation, preservation, and all the comforts of this life; but, above all, for thine inestimable love in the redemption of the world through our Lord Jesus Christ; for the means of grace; and for the hope of glory. And, we beseech thee, give us such a due sense of all thy mercies, that our hearts may be unfeignedly thankful, and that we may show forth thy praise, not only with our lips, but in our lives, by giving up ourselves to thy service, and by walking before thee, in holiness and righteousness, all our remaining days.

Merciful God, wilt thou go with us through this day. Aid us in all our duties, shield us from every harm, and bring us at last to thyself; which we ask, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

FRIDAY EVENING.

O THOU, on whom all eyes wait, all creatures depend! Our God and Father! We come now, in the solemnities of prayer, to spread out our wants before thee, who alone canst relieve them, and to dedicate to thee the lives thou art sparing. Aware of the sacred presence in which we stand, may our devotions be the ascent of our souls to thee.

O thou, whose ear is this moment open to our cry! we desire to bow before thee with profound veneration and holy fear, remembering the distance there is between thee and us. Infinite, eternal God! we come to submit our ways to thy guidance, our interests to thy disposal. On thee we depend for our continuance in life, both in this world and the next. To thee we would piously look for safety amidst unforeseen exposures; for the means of subsistence; for our daily bread; for our necessary raiment; for the vigor of health; for fruitful seasons; and for all the supports and comforts of life.

On thee must we depend for our social blessings ; for our religious privileges ; for the benefit of divine instruction ; and for all our opportunities of improving in virtue and piety. To thee would we render thanks that a Saviour was sent to bless us, by throwing light upon the path of duty ; by setting before us a spotless example ; by imparting the renewing influences of Christianity ; and by yielding himself up to death, that he might become the author of eternal salvation to all who obey him.

O God ! who can declare thy mighty acts ? who can show forth all thy praise ? If we speak of thy mercies, they are more than can be numbered. We will give thee thanks so long as we live ; every day will we bless thee, and we will praise thy name forever.

But whilst we acknowledge thy kindness with gratitude, it becometh us to confess with heartfelt penitence that we have sinned against thee. We have disregarded thine all-searching eye, and have offended against thy continual goodness. Merciful Father, we sincerely lament our past unfaithfulness and disobedience ; and earnestly entreat that thou wouldst not be strict to mark iniquity against us. According to thy rich grace in Jesus Christ, grant us mercy and pardon, so that we may return to thee, humble and penitent : and do thou, O God, never suffer us again to wander.

Learn us, in whatever state we are, therewith to be content. In prosperity, make us humble and thankful, willing to show kindness to our brethren. In adversity and affliction, may we not despise thy chastening, nor faint when we are rebuked of thee. O may we cast our cares upon thee, who carest for us, knowing that whatever thou doest, thou doest for our future welfare.

We would now commit ourselves into thine hands, and may all our devotions produce in us the fruits of good living, to the honor of thy name; so that continually advancing in our likeness to thee, the great object of our worship, we may, at length, be trained up to dwell with thee, under a more perfect discipline and in higher services, in thy heavenly kingdom.

But, O God of goodness! while we supplicate for ourselves, we would not forget to ask thy choicest favor upon our friends. May those who are united to us by the ties of nature or affection, be united to thee in the ties of piety and holiness. Preserve thou their lives, and make them instrumental of good in their day and generation.

Bless thou the hoary head; and may the aged, as they see the time at hand when they must meet thee and give an account of their stewardship, have the testimony of conscience, that in simplicity and in godly sincerity, not by fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, they have had their conversation in the world. May those in the vigor of life remember that all their powers are from thee, and that they are therefore to dedicate to thee what thou hast given them. And may the young remember, that now is the time to lay the foundation for useful and happy lives; and wilt thou, O Father, guide their inexperienced feet.

Hear us, in heaven, thy holy habitation, and when thou hearest, return an answer of peace; all which we ask, through Jesus Christ. Amen.

SATURDAY MORNING.

INFINITE and Eternal God! We adore thee as possessed of every attribute which can claim the affection and reverence of rational beings. Thy power acts by thy wisdom. Thy goodness has affixed a healing and restoring efficacy to moral punishment. Thy justice is not severity. Thy mercy is always in exercise, and endureth forever. Thy benevolence, wishing to exert itself, gave existence to the universe; and thou hast no object before the happiness of thy creatures. All thou doest now, or ever will do, will be according to that infinite mercy which loves to forgive, and that unceasing goodness which loves to bless. Glory be to thy name for the assurance, that thou art our Father, and that our Father is Love.

Thanks be to thy name, for the various interviews the world has had with thee its Maker. We rejoice in thy rich promises to Abraham, that in him, all the families of the earth should be blessed. We thank thee for the long succession of prophets, through whom thou didst pour increasing light upon a benighted world. But glory be to God in the highest, that in the fullness of time thou didst send forth thy Son, who, in the counsels of thy wisdom, was he, who was to come, the Messiah, the last Prophet, through whom thou wast to have direct intercourse with man. Never, O Father, can we sufficiently praise, and bless, and magnify thy holy name, for the gift of a Saviour, a Redeemer, an Intercessor and an Advocate. Our souls would kindle into the highest praise, when we read that his advent was announced by angels, and that his character at his baptism was attested by thy voice from heaven, declaring, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased! Glory be to thy name, that thou didst give thy spirit to him without measure; and didst fill him with thy wisdom; and clothe him with thy power ; and so communicate to him thy will, that he appeared on earth, the perfect, visible representative of thee, who art invisible. Blessed be God ! that, by astonishing and benevolent miracles, he confirmed his title to the Messiahship ; that he disclosed thy whole character in all its benignity ; that he unfolded the moral nature of man, and marked out the duties which spring from it ; that he announced the terms of pardon and acceptance with thee ; and established, by his resurrection, the doctrine of eternal life.

O God, let us ever devoutly thank thee for the high and sacred character he sustained ; and may we always view him in the divinity of his mission, the divinity of his office, the divinity of his doctrines. Give us to see the connection that his laws, his example, his sufferings and death, have with our salvation. Grant that the animating motives and the awful sanctions of Christianity, may take such deep hold of our minds, that we shall break off our sins by repentance, and our iniquities by turning unto thee ; and shall hereafter live the lives we live in the flesh, by faith in the Son of God. O may we grow in grace ; press on toward perfection ; abound in the work of the Lord ; have our conversation in heaven, and our hearts there ; live piously and godly in the world, looking for that blessed hope, the appearance of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, who shall recompense to every man according to his deeds and character, whether they be good or evil.

In his name, who died that we might live, we bring these requests to the throne of grace, and in his own prayer would further call upon thee.

Our Father who art in heaven! Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into trial, but deliver us from evil; for thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory forever. Amen.

SATURDAY EVENING.

O THOU, who remainest the same through the succession of days and weeks, of months and years! Through all the revolutions of time, thou, O God, art the same unwearied goodness. All things proceed from thee, and thy presence is the life of the world. In thy hand is our breath, and it is of thy mercy that we are not consumed.

Parent of good! at the close of another day and another week, we would come to return our humble thanks for the mercies which have crowned this period; and to implore their continuance. Whilst many have been cut off, and have passed into eternity, we are yet left, the spared monuments of thy sparing favor. Whilst many have fallen on our right hand and on our left, we have escaped; to witness that thou art good to the evil and unthankful.

Unfailing Source of life and mercy! Thou in wisdom didst place us on this stage of action. Thou didst uphold us in the helpless days of infancy; and thou didst preserve us amidst our exposures. Thine unseen hand led us safely through childhood, and the slippery paths of youth. We tasted of thy bounty before we were capable of acknowledging the source from whence it came. With each returning day, and week, and year, thy blessings have been multiplied upon us; and when we review the many instances of thy paternal goodness, we are constrained to say, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us. Yea, through riches of divine love and forbearance, thou art continuing us in a state of trial, giving us space for repentance, and favoring us with the means of grace and reformation.

To thy providence we owe the establishment of civil society ; the institution of wise and salutary laws ; the progress of useful knowledge ; the advantages of commercial intercourse ; and all the improvements and blessings of social life. From thee, we derive all our opportunities of becoming acquainted with ourselves, and with thee, our Maker ; and of acquiring the habits, and enjoying the pleasures of virtue and piety. To thee we are indebted for the instructions and examples of the wise and good ; for the benefits of a virtuous education ; for the opportunity of social worship ; for every advantage which we derive from the sacred institutions of religion ; for the excellent rules of virtue which Christianity prescribes, and for the powerful motives it suggests, to persuade us to a steadfast perseverance in well-doing. It is through thine unchangeable and everlasting mercy, that we are made capable of extending our views and desires beyond this present life, and that we are inspired with the joyful and animating hope of immortality.

All happiness proceeds from thee ; unto thee all praise and gratitude are due !

Almighty God ! in view of all thy goodness, we now, with deeply impressed minds, ask thine assistance to enable us hereafter to live, as becomes those who are so highly blessed. Relying on God, we would, in the presence of each other, and before thee, form the most serious and deliberate purpose, to correct whatever hath been wrong in our past temper and conduct; and to live in future as the true and faithful disciples of Jesus Christ. Trusting that thou, who art our Guardian and Friend, wilt give us all needful aid, we commit ourselves into thine hands. May we be wholly and forever thine; and do thou, O God, accept us.

Lord of life! keep us in safety through the night that is coming. May the refreshment of sleep prepare us to enter on the day sacred to devotion; and when our days and weeks on earth shall be closing, and the night of death shall come, may we then fall asleep in Jesus, looking for that morning of the resurrection, when we may be admitted to nobler services in thy heavenly temple. Amen.

OCCASIONAL PRAYERS AND THANKSGIVINGS.

PRAYERS.

FOR A SICK PERSON.

BE merciful, O Lord! in a particular manner to this family, into which thou hast permitted sickness to enter. Graciously support thy servant under thine afflicting hand. If it seem good in thy sight, bless the means which are using for *his restoration and usefulness. May the fruit of affliction be the taking away of sin. Endue him with patience to possess his soul, and to resign himself to thine all-wise disposal. And may every disorder we feel in ourselves or observe in others, make us more sensible of the frailty of our nature, and engage us to apply our hearts, with greater diligence, to that wisdom which shall prepare us for death and eternity.

*The words his, him, he, &c. printed in Italics, may be changed into her, she, &c. as the occasion may require.

FOR A SICK CHILD.

O THOU, who art a present help in every time of need! Our trust and hope are in thee! O God, we come with our intercessions for thy young servant, who is laboring under pain and sickness. We beseech thee, if it be thy will, to remove the disorder under which he labors, and to restore him to strength and health. Suffer not the wishes and hopes of his parents to be disappointed; but in thy great mercy, spare him to be the comfort and support of their advancing years, and to be useful in the world. But whatever thou hast determined concerning him, thy will, O God, be done. Into thy hands we commit ourselves and all our enjoyments; we desire, at all times, patiently to submit to thine appointments; and we humbly pray, that, whatever shall be the issue of this visitation, thou wouldst endue the minds of those whom it more nearly concerns, with resignation to thy holy providence; and may we all, by what we suffer as well as what we enjoy, be trained up for that world, where there shall be no more sorrow, nor pain, nor death.

IN TIME OF SICKNESS.

O THOU, who knowest what is best for us! in this time of sympathy and distress, we call upon thee, who art a great Physician of soul and body, for compassion and deliverance. With humble submission to thy wisdom and goodness, may we regard the lives dear to us, as at thy disposal, and in every instance bow to thy holy will. Thou, O Lord! healest all our diseases, thou redeemest our lives from destruction, and crownest us with loving kindness and tender mercy. Our help is in thee alone. Look upon us, we beseech thee, in pity and in love. Rebuke the malady which prevails among us, and may the lives and health of thy people be precious in thy sight.

IN TIME OF WAR.

WILT thou, who stillest the noise of the seas, and the tumult of the people, cause the wrath of man to praise thee, and the remainder of wrath do thou restrain. Suffer not our enemies to be thy scourge unto us; but remove from us the calamity of war, and may the alarm thereof no more be heard in our streets. Prevent, we beseech thee, the effusion of human blood, and cause our enemies to be at peace with us on just and honorable terms; and may we long enjoy the blessings of tranquillity, having none to molest or make us afraid. O God! wilt thou hasten the time, when the reign of peace shall commence under the Prince of Peace, and when wars shall cease to the ends of the earth.

AFTER THE DEATH OF ANY PERSON IN A FAMILY.

ETERNAL God! without whose direction and providence, nothing happeneth to us in life or death; out of the depths of affliction and sorrow, unto thee do we lift up our souls; for our help and our hopes are in thee. Our lives are in thy hands; and all our enjoyments are at thy disposal. Thou didst at first call us into life, by thy mighty power; and, when thou takest away our breath, we die, and return to the dust.

In the midst of life we are in death; to whom shall we go for succor, but unto thee, O Lord, who changest not, and who hast been the refuge of the children of men, in all generations? The Lord liveth; let our hearts rejoice; and let the God of our salvation be forever exalted. Under all the troubles of this mortal life, thy mercy which endureth forever, is our confidence and joy. Behold thy servants, O Lord; do with us whatsoever seemeth good in thy sight; not our wills, but thine be done. The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who, according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to the lively hope of an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away.

Sanctify unto us, O God, the dispensation of thy providence which hath taken from the bosom of this family one of its members. May we, when we see one after another called away, be induced to consider what manner of persons we ought to be. May we submit to thy will, and be able to make a wise improvement of thy dealings. O may we live as those who have here no continuing city, and prepare to follow those who have gone before us.

AFTER THE DEATH OF A NEIGHBOR.

EVER LIVING God! in whose sight a thousand ages are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night! be thou the support of thy servants who are now mourning the loss of a relative and friend. Sanctify, we beseech thee, this visitation of thy providence. May they experience the consolations which religion affords. By the frequent instances of mortality around us, may we learn to know our end, and the measure of our days, what it is, that we may know how frail we are. Neighbor after neighbor art thou calling away, and house after house hath witnessed the footsteps of death. Merciful God! O teach us to live in such a manner as we shall wish we had done, when we come to die. Whatsoever our hands find to do, may we do it with all our might, since there is no work or device in the grave, whither we are going. Give us grace to follow the good examples of those who have departed this life in thy faith and fear, that at length we may, with them, be partakers of thy heavenly kingdom. May we glorify thee on earth, and finish the work thou hast given us to do, that when we shall leave this world we may rest in peace; and being found acceptable in thy sight, may we be received to the reward of faithful servants, through the riches of divine grace in Jesus Christ.

FOR A PERSON GOING ON A JOURNEY.

ALMIGHTY God! the preserver of all thy creatures, and the Confidence of the ends of the earth! We would humbly recommend to thy gracious protection, thy servant, who is going from us. While far distant from us, may thy providence defend him. Preserve him from the peculiar dangers to which he may be exposed, and above all from moral evil. Succeed him in all his lawful and honorable designs, and restore him to his friends in innocence and safety, that he may have fresh occasions to celebrate the praises of thy goodness with a thankful heart. And may we long live together, to enjoy the pleasures of domestic life, and to manifest our thankfulness for thy various mercies.

FOR A PERSON GOING ON A VOYAGE.

ETERNAL and merciful Jehovah! thou art our Protector, and thou art our Hope. Thou spreadest out the heavens, and rulest the raging of the ocean. At thy command the winds and storms arise; and at thy word they are still. Receive thy servant, we beseech thee, under thine almighty protection. Preserve him from the dangers of the sea, and the attempts of wicked men. Be with him in other lands for his security and his health; and may his life be very precious in thy sight. In the appointed time, wilt thou restore him to his native country in safety, to enjoy the fruits of his industry and labor, the benefits of society, and the endearments of domestic life, with a thankful remembrance of thy mercies, who art the Giver of all good.

FOR RAIN.

O THOU, who art the Author of nature! thou didst promise to give rain unto thy faithful people, in due season; and hast promised, by thy Son, that all who seek thy kingdom and the righteousness thereof, shall receive all things necessary to their bodily sustenance; send us, we beseech thee, in this our necessity, such moderate showers of rain, that we may receive the fruits of the earth to our comfort and relief. No longer, we pray thee, make the heavens over our heads as brass, nor the rain of our land, powder and dust. But wilt thou, who art the Father of the rain, visit and water thy weary heritage, that there may be grass for the cattle, and corn for the service of man. The year, O God, is thine; and wilt thou crown it with thy blessing.

FOR FAVORABLE WEATHER.

FATHER of mercies! while we acknowledge thee in all thy dealings with us and bow with submission to thy chastisements, we would implore thy smiles upon this season, in which our plenty may be turned into scarceness. We would see thee in what we suffer. May thy blessing yet be upon the year; and the fruits of the earth in due time be brought to perfection. O may we learn by thy dispensations, to amend our lives; and while we rejoice in thy clemency, may we keep from abusing thy various bounties by intemperance. Grant that we may use them with sobriety and thankfulness, being bountiful and charitable to those who are in want. Forgive us, O Lord, our many transgressions, and deal with us according to thine abundant mercy in Jesus Christ.

THANKSGIVINGS.

FOR RECOVERY FROM SICKNESS.

To the praises which we always owe thee, the Author of every good, for all thy kindness, we would at this time call upon our souls to thank thee, with peculiar emotions of gratitude, for the restoration of thy servant to health. Thou hast preserved him from death; thou hast spoken the word of healing and he liveth. We will unite to praise thee, for thou hast heard our supplications, and art become our salvation. Thou hast chastened us; but hast delivered us from the evil we feared. Perfect the recovery of thy servant. Give us a deep sense of thy mercy in this instance; assist thy servant to devote himself to thy glory; and enable us all so to improve the blessing of health, that we may look forward with joy to that world, where there will be no sickness nor pain.

FOR PEACE.

O THOU God of peace, and lover of concord! accept our heartfelt thanks for the return and continuance of our national peace and tranquillity. May we be duly sensible of this instance of thy goodness to us, and by making a proper improvement of it, secure thy future favor, and thus be that happy people, whose God is the Lord. Unite the hearts of all mankind in the bonds of brotherly love; and may the happy time soon come, when the calamities of war shall cease forever, and peace and righteousness universally prevail.

AFTER A JOURNEY.

O FATHER, our Refuge and our Strength! protection, comfort and success are all from thee. We join with thy servant in returning thee thanks, for preserving him from all the dangers to which he has been exposed, and for restoring him to his family and friends, in health and safety. While we rejoice in every instance of thy goodness to ourselves or friends, may we be careful to express the sense we have of our obligations to thee, by a suitable life and conversation.

AFTER A VOYAGE.

WE thank thee, Lord of heaven and earth! that thou hast graciously watched over thy servant during his exposure to the dangers of the sea. Thine arm hath been under him for his safety. Write upon his heart the characters of gratitude. May he be duly sensible of thy continual providence, and determine to dedicate to thee the life thou hast preserved.

FOR RAIN.

O God, our heavenly Father! who by thy gracious providence dost cause the rain to descend upon the earth, that it may bring forth fruit for the use of man; we give thee humble thanks that it hath pleased thee, in our necessity, to send us a joyful rain, and to refresh and fertilize the earth, to the great comfort of us thy servants, who desire to be grateful to thee for thy seasonable kindness, and to acknowledge ourselves indebted unto thee, not only for this but for all the blessings we enjoy.

FOR FAIR WEATHER.

O God, who hast mercifully relieved us in this seasonable and happy change of weather! we praise thee for this mercy; and far from overlooking the common bounties of thy providence, we desire to receive them with true gratitude, and to show our thankfulness by using them as we ought. While we live by thy goodness, may we live to thy praise.

FOR A FRUITFUL SEASON.

BOUNTIFUL Benefactor! all that we possess proceeds from thy munificence. To thy sovereign goodness we are indebted for all the advantages of our condition. We rejoice at this time with humble thankfulness in the gifts of thine undeserved bounty; that thou hast caused the earth to yield its increase, and crowned the year with thy goodness. Year after year hast thou furnished out the treasures of nature for our support, and we have had all things richly to enjoy. Whilst thou art thus sending down thy blessings upon us, dispose us to live in a sober, temperate, and charitable enjoyment of them, and to bring forth the fruits of holiness all the days of our life.

FOR HEALTH, OR ANY PARTICULAR BLESSING.

O THOU first and best of Beings! We thank thee that the voice of health and peace is heard in our habitation. Imploring thy favor for the future, and acknowledging thy goodness in all the various blessings bestowed on us; we would particularly offer thee our fervent thanks for the recent and important blessing, which fills our hearts with joy. For the pleasure it yields, for the relief it affords, and for the circumstances of comfort it brings, accept, O Father, our heartfelt praise. While thy smiles are upon us, may we remember that our strength is from thee, and that when thou withdrawest thy face, we are troubled. O may thy goodness lead us to thee; and may we rejoice as though we rejoiced not, considering that the fashion of this world passeth away.

FAMILY PRAYERS ADAPTED TO PARTICULAR TIMES.

AT THE CLOSE OF THE YEAR.

ETERNAL Jehovah! in thee we live, and move, and have our being. In thy hand is our breath; it is because thou hast sustained us, that we have continued to this day. With praise to thee, the God of our lives, we come into thy presence, and worship at thy footstool. Thou art the unfailing Source of mercy. Thou didst bring us into this world, and place us in this probationary state. Thou didst shield us from every danger, during the exposures of infancy; and every day have we tasted that the Lord is gracious. We fed upon thy bounties, before we knew thee to be the Giver of every good and perfect gift. Thou hast helped us in all our troubles. Often hast thou healed our diseases, removed our sorrows, and renewed our strength. Thy candle has shone upon our dwelling, thy love has nourished us, and thy smiles have gladdened our hearts. In the past, what fresh instances of paternal love do we remember. Whilst many, during this period, have been cut down, and have passed into an unseen eternity, we are yet numbered with the living. Through the riches of thy long-suffering and forbearance, thou art continuing us in a state of trial, giving us a space for repentance, and favoring us with thy holy Gospel, and with all necessary means of grace and reformation.

God of compassion; take not thy holy spirit from us. Continue to us thy heavenly blessings. Prepare us for future changes in our condition, and let them be sanctified to our truest interest and happiness. We commit ourselves to thy care; we devote ourselves to thy service; we refer all events concerning us, to thine infinite wisdom and fatherly goodness. Lead us seasonably to consider the things that belong to our peace. Give us realizing views of death and a judgment to come. Enable us to depart from the world, when thou shalt call us away, with tranquillity and comfort of mind, exempt from the terrors of guilt; and bring us to the enjoyment of thy favor in the realms of light and glory, through the mediation of Jesus Christ our Saviour. Amen.

AT THE BEGINNING OF THE YEAR.

O THOU who art the same from everlasting to everlasting! God of the spirits of all flesh! Preserver of the children of men! hear in mercy thy servants, who raise their hearts unto thee. We acknowledge, that, in seasons past, we have often been too earnest about things of sense and time, too regardless of the objects of faith and futurity. We confess we have too often walked in a vain show, and disquieted ourselves in vain. Our years have been spent like a tale that is told. We cannot deny that we have been oftentimes undutiful and unthankful. Shouldst thou judge without mercy, we must be utterly destitute of hope. Shouldst thou deal with us according to our sins, we must be miserable indeed. But we rejoice that thou desirest not the ruin of thy creatures, but rather that they should repent and live. It is our desire, O God, to cast off all the unfruitful works of darkness, and to walk as children of the light and of the day. It is our purpose, that this year shall witness our greater reformation from every thing that is amiss in us, and our increasing improvement in the graces of the christian character.

If it be consistent with the purposes of thy inscrutable wisdom, we pray, O Lord! that our lives may be spared; not merely that we may enjoy an animal existence, but that we may be furnished with an opportunity of doing and becoming better. We commit all our concerns to thee; and would submit to those circumstances, which thou, who alone knowest what is best for us, shalt ordain. If thou wilt, we desire the continuance of health and comfort. If thou shouldst send sickness or adversity to us, may we be prepared for these and all other changes in our condition. If it be thy decree, that this year we should die, may we be ready for our departure. We dare not say we will do this or that; but we would cherish one resolution, to become and always to be such as thou shalt be pleased to approve.

Heavenly Father! do thou preserve us from every injurious delay. Let not the night of darkness, in which no man can work, overtake us unawares. Forbid that we should ever presume on life, or boast of to-morrow, or be immoderately attached to earthly things. May we always do with diligence what thou shalt appoint us to perform. If death shall approach us by slow advances, may it find us well employed; and if we are suddenly called to exchange worlds, may it not be our lot, to have treasured up fear and remorse.

O thou, who art the God of our lives and the length of our days! We would begin this year with thee; and in thy service we would spend it. Aid us in all our doings by thy most gracious favor, and preserve us from every evil. And when our years shall cease to revolve on earth, O receive us to thy presence, where there is neither beginning of years nor end of days. Hear us, O God! through our great Mediator; and unto thee, the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honor and glory forever and ever. Amen.

SPRING.

O GOD! the Creator and Preserver of all things! With unerring wisdom thou maintainest the beauty and order of nature. We look up with joy and confidence to thy gracious power, which causeth the returning seasons to know their place. Thou hast sent forth thy spirit; thou renewest the face of the earth. The laws of nature are thy government, and the effects of them are the dispensations of thy providence. Summer and Winter, seed-time and harvest, cold and heat, are directed by thee. At one time thou givest snow like wool, and scatterest the hoar frost like ashes; at another time thou bringest food out of the earth, and causest grass to grow for cattle, and herb for the service of man.

Because thine eye is upon the year, from the beginning even unto the end, we are now called to rejoice that the Winter is past, the rain is over and gone, the flowers appear upon earth, the singing of birds is come; the tree puts forth its leaves, and the fields give forth their fragrance; the mountains and hills break forth into singing, and the trees of the forest clap their hands. O Lord, how manifold are thy works!

We bless thee for the beneficial influences of the heavenly bodies; for the light of the sun, and the constant revolution of the seasons, and all the rich provision thou hast made for our present support and delight. We bless thee for all our comforts during the inclemencies of the Winter which is now past; for all the pleasant intercourse of domestic life, and the kind offices of mutual friendship and good neighborhood; and, above all, we rejoice in our capacities for contemplating thy mighty works with emotions of religious praise and pleasure.

We now behold the effects of thy powerful energy. All nature bespeaks a present Deity. We would look up to thee, from whom cometh our help. May devotion invigorate and sanctify the labors of the approaching season. May he who plougheth, plough with religious hope. May he who soweth, duly rejoice in the expectation of his reaping. As our great Exemplar hath taught us, we pray for our daily bread; and wilt thou feed us with food convenient for us. Bless thou the springing of the year, and enrich the earth with the rain of heaven; let our pastures be clothed with flocks, our valleys covered with corn, and the year crowned with thy goodness.

Above all, we beseech thee to multiply the spiritual seed of divine truth. Crown with an abundant blessing our spiritual labors; and while we reap the harvest of bread, O may we reap the richer fruits of righteousness. By our spiritual improvements, may we be like unto that earth, which, drinking in the rain that cometh oft upon it, bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, and receiveth blessing from God; and not like unto that, which, bearing thorns and briars, is rejected, and nigh unto cursing, whose end is to be burned.

Establish us in every good word and work, and unite us more closely to him who is the true vine. As branches in him, wilt thou mercifully spare and purge us, and may we glorify thee, our heavenly Father, by bearing much fruit. Unto thee, O God, who art the Author of our condition and the Foundation of our hope, be praises everlasting. Amen.

SUMMER.

ETERNAL God, the Creator of the world, whose almighty power and continual agency are seen by the things which are made! we beseech thee to enable us to derive instruction from the prospects of the present season. We would raise our thoughts to thee, by whom the sun rises in his strength, and in his daily course diffuses light and heat over the world; by whom the earth is overspread with trees, and herbs, and flowers; who art the Father of the former and latter rain, and nightly begetteth the drops of the dew. We adore thee in all the various productions of the earth, which thou art now causing to advance to maturity for the support, comfort, and delight of thy creatures. We desire never to forget thine hand in the glorious scenes by which we are surrounded, or cease to receive all the moral lessons thy works convey. While we gratefully adore thy goodness in the present circumstances of this life, teach us to trust in thy mercy and deliverance when adversity shall overtake us. May we preserve on our minds an affecting sense of this truth, that all flesh is grass, and the glory of man as the flower of grass. Having been planted in thy vineyard, may we bring forth much good fruit, so that we may finally be numbered, among those who are not cumberers of the ground. May our faith increase continually. O grant, that by the milk of thy word we may grow up unto him in all things who is the head, even Christ. Make our souls as a well watered garden; and may the soil, by divine cultivation, yield all the peaceable fruits of righteousness.

We bless thee, whose works as well as words speak thy will, for the confirmation which the season affords to our religious faith. The corn of wheat that was cast into the ground, has resumed the body that pleased thee. We will inquire no more,—How are the dead raised up, and with what bodies do they come? We rejoice in the prospect of the peaceful bow in the clouds, the early pledge of thine inviolable fidelity, and repose ourselves under the shadow of the Almighty.

O that man would praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men! Blessed be the Lord God, from everlasting to everlasting, and let all the people say, Amen.

AUTUMN.

O THOU, who art giving us all things richly to enjoy! Bountiful Father! we bless thee for the rich provisions which thou hast made for our bodily sustenance. Although we have not walked in thy statutes, and kept thy commandments as we ought, yet, by thy mercy, the land has yielded her increase and the trees their fruit. We praise thee for the blessings of the harvest, which have been so abundant, and beseech thee to direct us in the temperate and frugal use of thy various bounties. O may we not expose ourselves to the accusation of wasting thy goods, nor abuse them in riotous living. With humble thanks we would receive and enjoy thy gifts, acknowledging at the same time that we are not worthy of the rich fruits of thy providence.

Grant, O Father, that our souls may be impressed with divine lessons from the prospects of the season. We have been planted in thy vineyard; we have been united to a choice vine; but, alas! we confess with shame, that we have not brought forth grapes that are good, but wild grapes; and thou mightest in just judgment have taken away the hedge, broken down the wall, trodden under foot the vineyard and commanded the clouds no more to rain upon it. But we are witnesses of thy divine patience and forbearance. Spare us of thy grace, and grant us a further season to bring forth fruit. When thy love does not constrain obedience, may thy terrors persuade; and by the expectation of the harvest in the end of the world, may we be awakened to sobriety, diligence, and watchfulness. O may we all, at this season, receive the joyful assurance, that the wise and worthy shall reap in due time, if they faint not. Assist us, O God, while we are amidst the rich favors of thy providence, to live to thy praise. We offer our prayers through him in whom we have a hope full of immortality; and in his name be glory to thee forever. Amen.

WINTER.

SUPREMELY great and glorious Lord our God! before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth or the world, from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God. The things which our eyes behold shall perish, but thou shalt endure; — they shall be changed, but thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end. Thou art calling us, at this time, to witness the periodical decay of nature; yet not without a hope, from the immutability of thy character and laws, that there will be a renovation.

In the order of thy works, thou art now giving snow like wool, scattering the hoar-frost like ashes, and sending thy cold, before which none can stand. With devout gratitude we retire to our warm habitations, and solace ourselves with the unity and love of our domestic retreats. We would be particularly mindful of our brethren who inhabit the cheerless house of want. O may not our hearts be cold, when we see the naked; nor our hands be shut against the hungry. May the poor everywhere have occasion to bless the rich, and may prayers, thanksgivings and alms, unitedly ascend to thee. Appear, O Father, for the protection of those who are coming on our sea-coast at this dangerous season; when they are tossed and afflicted, do thou deliver them, and bring them to their destined haven.

O thou who rulest the year! may our reflections on the season carry religious lessons to our hearts. We adore thy incomprehensible power, which ordains, in their proper order, the effects we now behold. Thou sendest forth thy commandment upon the earth, and the windy storm and tempest fulfil thy pleasure. By thee, the waters are hid as with a stone, and the face of the deep is frozen. All is the work of thy almighty strength and boundless wisdom. We desire to be filled with a sense of thy care and love, when we consider thy multiplied provisions for the support and comfort of man and beast, during this barren, inclement season. We rejoice before thee in the assurance that the elements are under thy control, subject to thy invariable laws; and that in the appointed time, thou, who bindest the sweet influences of Pleiades, wilt loose the bands of Orion, renew the face of the earth, and spread life and beauty through all nature.

O thou who hast given senses and speech and reason to man! preserve us from misemploying the leisure now afforded us in excessive or hurtful diversions; but may we use it for cultivating our minds, examining our hearts, and laying up stores of knowledge and goodness. O may the changes of the year lead us to consider how the fashion of this world passeth away, and to place our affections on thee, the unchangeable and eternal good.

By the death of the powers of nature, thou warnest us to remember that we are mortal; and that if, by reason of strength, we live many years, we may expect old age to benumb our faculties, and destroy our activity. By our diligence and fidelity in youth and manhood, may we provide comfortable reflections and pleasing hopes, to cheer us in the days of infirmity and in the Winter of life.

Blessed be thy name, that as we know thou wilt make the fields, now desolate, to rejoice, so thou wilt raise from the dead those who sleep in Jesus; that this mortal shall put on immortality, and this corruptible shall put on incorruption. O make us thy upright and faithful servants while we live, that we may die in peace, and rest in hope, and rise in glory, through Jesus Christ, the Prince of life. Amen.

ANNUAL FAST.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful God! the righteous Lord who loveth holiness; who art a consuming fire to the disobedient and impenitent, but a compassionate Father to such as repent and turn to thee. We would come before thee this day with a humble confession of sin, and the deepest self-abasement, beseeching thee to impress on our minds every argument to repentance and amendment, and to pour out upon the people of our land the spirit of prayer and humiliation.

O thou Supreme Director in human affairs!
We thank thee for the advantages of our condition ; that we enjoy liberty, safety and plenty ; that we do not groan under the miseries of tyranny, and bloodshed, and ruin ; that thou hast given us fruitful seasons, and preserved us from famine, pestilence and war. Surely the lines are fallen to us in pleasant places, and we have a goodly heritage. Yet we have made unworthy returns for thy loving kindness, and shown ourselves undeserving of thy mercies. We lament that plenty has been abused by luxury, and liberty by licentiousness ; our ease and safety, by strife, envyings and divisions. We lament that so little of the power of godliness is manifested ; that so many restrain prayer before thee ; and, after all the expressions of thy will, do yet trample on the authority of thy laws. Surely it is of thy mercy that we are not consumed, and because thy compassions fail not.

O God ! awaken us, we entreat thee, to a sense of our manifold and repeated provocations ; pardon the crying sins of our nation ; forgive all who humble themselves before thee this day ; and spare thy people. Show us the things which belong to our peace, before the best day of reconciliation be past. Fill us with that godly sorrow for sin, which works true repentance. O may we no longer abuse thy mercies, but keep, this day, the fast which thou hast chosen ; and loosing every bond of wickedness, become a peculiar people, zealous of good works, so that thy displeasure may be turned away, and thou mayest delight to build us up, and not to destroy us.

Grant, we earnestly beseech thee, this day, healing mercy unto us who have corrupted our manners ; who have been indifferent to thy worship ; neglected the interests of early education ; indulged a spirit of animosity ; and made no suitable resistance to the inundation of profaneness and immorality. Animate us to rise and join with one heart and soul in promoting the honor of thy name, the interests of religion, and the prosperity and happiness of our land. May it not any longer be a source of lamentation to the righteous, that no man repents of his wickedness, saying, What have I done ? May every one rend his heart, and keep such a fast as thou hast chosen.

O thou, who rulest in the kingdoms of men ! we intercede for all in authority. The hearts of rulers are in thy hands. Restrain their evil passions, and endue them with that wisdom which is from above, which is first pure and then peaceable. May all their consultations and measures contribute to the stability of our times, to the prosperity of all conditions of men, to the welfare of our children, and to the spreading of thy name and glory in the earth. These blessings we ask, not presuming on the ardency of our prayers, on the sorrow of our minds, or the humiliation of our bodies, but upon thy mercy to repenting and returning sinners, through Jesus Christ.

Universal Parent and Governor! be merciful to the whole race of man; enlighten all who sit in darkness and error; send forth a spirit of peace and good will; restrain the violence of unreasonable men; exalt the meek; put an end to all deception; smile upon the interests of learning; and may no weapon, formed against the rights and happiness of man, prosper. Multiply, we beseech thee, the patterns of christian virtue, and the instruments of benefaction to men; extirpate idolatry; direct all flesh to the knowledge of thy Son; and may thy kingdom come, and thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.

God of our fathers! We look to thee for thy blessing upon the year, and for thy guidance and protection of us. Vouchsafe to keep us by thine almighty providence at every period; and at the end of our earthly course receive us to thyself in glory, through him who gave himself for us; through whom to thee be ceaseless praises. Amen.

ANNUAL THANKSGIVING.

O THOU, who art good unto all, who exercisest loving kindness in all the earth, and who hast come nigh to us by Jesus Christ, thy Son ! It is thou who holdest our souls in life ; who givest us our daily bread, health in our habitations, peace, in our borders, and who crownest the year with thy goodness ! We desire, this day, with affectionate gratitude, to recount thy mercies, and piously to ascribe honor and blessing, glory and praise, to thee, our Rock and Fortress, our Strength and Redeemer. We would rest this day before thee, and make it a season of temperate feasting and religious gladness.

How precious have been thy thoughts unto us, O God ! how great is the sum of them ! We bless thee for thy smiles upon the year ; for the warm influences of the sun ; and for timely and refreshing showers upon our fields. We bless thee for preserving our houses from the ravages of fire ; for all the health and pleasures we have enjoyed in them ; for every portion of bread which has given strength to our bodies ; for whatever has arrested the progress of disease ; and for the tear of sympathy which has comforted our trouble. We thank thee for every cheerful sensation, when alone ; for the pleasures of friendly intercourse ; for the privileges of public worship ; for the maintenance of civil order ; the continuance of peace ; the administration of justice ; for every encouragement to well-doing ; every manifestation of useful truth ; and for all the advantages of our condition.

God of goodness ! direct us graciously to a right improvement of all thy mercies. Preserve us from the wicked indulgence of all fleshly lusts, and from wasting our substance in riotous living. May we enjoy our earthly possessions with temperance, cheerfulness and contentment. Protect us against the snares of prosperity. May we honor thee with our substance, be rich in good works, and duly esteem thee, the Rock of our salvation.

Perpetuate our privileges both private and common ; continue to us the enjoyment of our civil rights ; disappoint the devices of the crafty ; prolong the days and usefulness of those public men, under whose administration the righteous flourish, who cause every man to sit without fear under his vine and fig-tree, and who make our land a quiet habitation. O God ! grant peace, order and plenty in our families, our villages and towns, and throughout our country. May our rulers have wisdom to direct, and integrity to pursue, such plans as shall best promote our highest good. Wilt thou bless all fountains of useful science; heal and cleanse their waters; dispel the mists of ignorance; arrest the progress of profaneness and vice; make the people of our land humble before thee; peaceable in their civil and social relations; and zealous for the establishment of liberty, order and truth. O may we never, by our ingratitude, incur that censure,—I have nourished and brought up children, but they have rebelled against me.

And now unto the Governor among the nations, on whom their safety and prosperity ultimately depend; unto the King of kings and Lord of lords, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, forever and ever. Amen.

CHRISTMAS.

SUPREMEY blessed and glorious God! We bring this day our sacrifice of praise for the glad tidings of the gospel; we welcome the first rising of the Sun of righteousness, and would join with the angelic host in ascriptions of praise to thee who sittest on the throne forever and ever. We bless thee, O Lord God of Israel, for sending, in the fulness of time, the Messenger of thy holy covenant; for raising up a horn of salvation in the house of thy servant David, and performing the mercy promised to the Jewish fathers, by the mouth of thy holy prophets. We are excited this day to direct our thoughts to Christ, our Saviour and our Lord; to the corner stone, tried and precious, which thou didst lay in Zion; to that great salvation, which thou didst prepare before the face of all people. Glory be to thee, O God! for the grace and truth manifested in Jesus, the Son of thy love, the prophet whom thou didst anoint with thy holy spirit without measure.

We bring praise to thine altar, Father all glorious! for divine compassion shown to a world lying in wickedness. Thou didst send forth thy Son, to redeem men from the curse of the law, to proclaim remission of sins, to deliver us from the wrath to come, to abolish death, and bring life and immortality to light. We hear the glad tidings of the Prince of peace, we are instructed by the Son in the Father's will, and to us is made the gracious offer of eternal life. Cheerfully and thankfully would we embrace the merciful invitations and offered blessings of the gospel. Our eyes see, our ears hear the things with which kings and prophets desired an acquaintance. May we both value and improve the inestimable advantages which we have received, and whilst we piously con-ness that the lines have fallen to us in pleasant places, and we have a goodly heritage, may we practically remember, that it will be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah, in the day of judgment, than for us, if we refuse the great salvation, which began first to be spoken by the Lord. With unfeigned thanksgivings we accept the unspeakable gift of the Saviour, by whom we are inspired with confidence in thy paternal love, and by looking unto whom we learn to consider thee under the glorious and consoling relation of our Father, and are filled with full assurance of the richness of thy mercy. May the joy of truly believing, ever reign in our hearts. O may we with our whole souls obey him, whom we receive as the Way and the Truth and the Life. In his steps we desire diligently to tread; and we beseech thee to grant, through him, that we may finally with him be exalted to heavenly glory and happiness.

Almighty Father! may the peace of Jesus Christ rest upon the whole earth; may his kingdom be established and extended, and rule over all. Wherever Christianity is planted, may it be watered; may the Gospel be instrumental, to the remotest ends of the earth, in spreading knowledge and comfort, righteousness and peace. May the cheering rays of the Sun of righteousness penetrate to the north and the south, the east and west, and all flesh approach, with acceptance, thine holy altar. . May the voice of him who bringeth good tidings, be heard in Jerusalem; and while the cities of Judah behold their God, may the earth be filled with the knowledge of the Lord.

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us in him with all spiritual blessings in heavenly things; who hath granted unto us, to enjoy the day which the patriarchs foresaw, the prophets foretold, and the righteous men of the earth desired to see.

Hosanna to the Son of David, who comes in the name of the Highest to save us! Glory be to God, that there is peace on earth, and good will from heaven to men! Salvation and glory and honor and power be unto the Lord our God for ever. Amen.

PRAYERS FOR INDIVIDUALS.

MORNING PRAYER FOR AN INDIVIDUAL.

ETERNAL, and almighty God! Wherever I turn, I behold proofs and manifestations of thy being, presence and constant agency. By thy power were the heavens created, and all the host of them by the breath of thy mouth. Thou spakest and it was done; thou commandest and all things stood fast. The indulgent Benefactor of all the beings which thy hands have formed, thou art every where present, watching over them. Thy mercies unto me are new every morning; they are repeated as fast as the fleeting moments of my life. To all my temporal mercies, thou hast added the privileges of religion, and the animating hope of immortality. I would be thankful, O most merciful Father, for all the blessings of which I am a partaker, as the creature of thy power, the care of thy providence, and the disciple of thy Son. In reviewing the goodness which has crowned my days, I am furnished with the strongest motives for praising thy name, and for placing a cheerful unbounded trust in thy faithfulness and love. Before I could raise my thoughts to thee, before my heart could feel its obligations or my tongue express them, thou wast my never failing friend, my unceasingly bounteous benefactor. Thou hast brought me to riper years; assigned to me my lot in life; conferred personal and social mercies on me; and caused even disappointments to be salutary. Thy favors are more than I can number, and far beyond what I have deserved. O God, strengthen my memory to recollect them; awaken my sense of gratitude; teach me justly to value, thankfully to acknowledge, and wisely to improve them.

But, O Father, amidst thy bounties I have been disobedient. I have sometimes disregarded thy presence, inspection, and authority. I have many besetting sins; for I have permitted my passions to indulge themselves. I lament, in thy presence, that my piety is not more habitual and efficacious; that my benevolence is not more pure and extensive. God of mercy, to thee I come through Jesus Christ for thy grace. O give me sincere repentance; create within me a clean heart, renew a right spirit within me, and enable me hereafter to walk with steady feet in the way of thy commandments.

Suffer me not, O God, to be a stranger to myself in my intercourse with mankind. Endue me with fortitude in the cause of truth and virtue; but grant that I may always behold with candor the errors and prejudices of others, and bear with a meek and forgiving temper their reproaches and their unkindness. O form me to a disposition which delights in doing good, which seeks occasions to instruct the ignorant, to relieve the wretched, and to advance the interests of peace, truth and righteousness. In the exercise of such a disposition, teach me to meet with patience and submission, scenes of disappointment and suffering, persuaded they are the dispensations of thine unerring wisdom and infinite benevolence; and so conduct me through this life, that I may be prepared to leave it with a mind supported by cheerful reflections, and by humble but animating hopes.

Hear my supplications, heavenly Parent, for all my brethren of mankind; for the increase of christian knowledge and virtue; for the happiness of my native land; for the relief of the poor; for the support of the afflicted; and for the best interests of my relations and friends.

God of my life! I gratefully acknowledge thy watchful care of me through the past night. Thou hast been my Protector whilst I was unconscious of my being, and incapable of guarding against danger. My renewed powers of body and mind I desire to dedicate to thy service. I invoke thine aid in the business, and thy direction amidst the events of the day; and unreservedly confiding in thy fatherly kindness, I ascribe unto thee, through Jesus Christ my Saviour, everlasting praises. Amen.

EVENING PRAYER FOR AN INDIVIDUAL.

O THOU, who hast borne so long with me, and done so much for me! Merciful God! whom to know is my highest wisdom, and whom to worship is my noblest service! Retiring from every mortal eye, with a mind raised above all mortal cares, I would contemplate thy perfections and providence, and hold sacred intercourse with thee, the Father of all spirits.

Thou reignest, and all is well. Thy government is the government of perfect love, directed by unerring wisdom, and carrying its measures into effect by resistless power. By methods which my limited faculties are unable to comprehend, thou causest good to arise out of apparent evil, and order to spring from apparent confusion. Although no finite mind can fully comprehend the glories of thy nature, yet every finite being can repose in the thought, that they consist in infinite, eternal and unchangeable perfection. Though clouds and darkness may be round about thee, yet righteousness and judgment are the habitation of thy throne; and thou wilt in the end, make all things work together for good to those that love thee and keep thy commandments.

It is my earnest desire, O Father, that my mind may be open to the full influence of these consolatory and animating truths. Deeply impressed by them, may I dismiss every anxious, selfish and repining thought; may I welcome with a thankful and contented temper the allotments of thy providence, and indulge no wish but to resolve my will into thine; and by a strict conformity to the eternal laws of truth and righteousness, to become the voluntary instrument of accomplishing thy designs. Grant me to be duly thankful for that light which came from heaven by Jesus my Saviour. May I take his yoke upon me, and learn of him who was meek and lowly of heart, that I may find rest to my soul. O may I understand the connection which the Redeemer has with my salvation. Help me in all respects to walk worthily of the high and holy vocation wherewith he has called me; worthily of the great and important privileges that are conferred upon me; and worthily of the glorious hopes that are set before me.

For every instance in which my past temper and behaviour have been contrary to the rules and spirit of the Gospel, I earnestly supplicate thy pardon and forgiveness. Teach me, I pray thee, in what my true dignity and happiness consist; and let not earthly hopes and fears have dominion over me, in opposition to the suggestions of conscience and the principles of religion.

Anxiously I pray, that I may cherish and exercise proper dispositions towards thee, my Maker. Since thou art my Parent and Friend, may I reverence and love thee above all the objects of my regard. Since thou art my Benefactor, may I be thankful for thy mercies and joyfully confide in thy providence. Since thou art the final Judge of all men, may I study to approve myself in thy sight; and may every thought of my mind, every feeling of my heart, every word of my tongue, and every action of my life, be such as will bear thy inspection and the impartial scrutiny of thy tribunal. O God! I would commit my personal and social interests to thee, my faithful Creator; and when thy wisdom shall call me hence, may I be able, knowing in whom I have believed, to depart with the composure and the hopes of a real Christian.

Father of all! let it please thee that the knowledge and spirit of the Gospel be diffused through thy whole family. Bless our land and all who rule over us. May thy choice favor rest on the ministers of religion, and upon all societies of Christians. May the afflicted, in the beneficial effects of their afflictions, be able to see the hand of a kind Parent. May my friends be thy friends; united one to another by mutual kindness, and to thee by holiness and piety.

O thou, who hast brought me to the close of this day in safety,—confidently do I commit myself to thy care and protection during the slumbers of this night. Watch over me, O Father! in my defenceless moments; and after quiet and refreshing sleep, raise me up fitted for the duties and events of another day. And when this succession of days and nights shall be no more, receive me into that state, where I shall serve thee without intermission, and yet without weariness, through a cloudless, a happy, and an eternal day. These my thanks and requests I would offer, in his name, through whom I have hope in thee, and, to God most holy, be praise everlasting. Amen.

SABBATH MORNING PRAYER FOR AN INDIVIDUAL.

SUPREMELY great and infinitely glorious Lord our God! whom archangels adore, and before whom seraphs veil their faces! With the hosts of heaven, who celebrate thy praise, I would join my feeble offering on earth. With a heart deeply penetrated by a sense of thine infinite and unspeakable greatness, I would humble myself before thee, rejoicing that there is a name in which I can approach thee with hope and trust. This day commemorates the resurrection of my Lord and Saviour, and confirms to me thy gracious promises. In the prevailing name of the Redeemer, I come into thy sacred presence; and as the lover of the souls thou hast made, I come to resign all I am, and all I have, into thy hands, imploring thee to be henceforth my God, my Benefactor and my Portion.

Thy laws, O God! I hail as my unalterable guide; thy goodness, as the theme of my constant praise; thy mercy, the object of my ready trust; thy universal providence, the subject of my highest joy; the securing of thy favor, my utmost ambition; and the imitation of thy holiness, the end and aim of all my actions. Without thee, O Lord! I am weak and needy. I have nothing, but what I receive from thee; I can do nothing without thy strength, and see nothing without thy light. In thee is my being, my happiness and my hope.

Father of mercies ! I lift my soul to thee in gratitude, for the rich supplies I have received at thy hands. A returning Sabbath, with all its hallowed associations, speaks to me of thy goodness. Every day, and hour, and moment, has laid me under fresh obligations to love, and fear, and serve thee. Thou hast made the outgoings of the morning and evening to rejoice over my head. But to all these proofs of thy care, thou hast added the last demonstration of thy love, in giving thine only-begotten Son to live and die, that he might put me in the way of being happy. Adored be thy name, blessed God ! for this inestimable gift ; most humble and hearty thanks would I render thee, for the redemption of the world through our Lord Jesus Christ. I glorify thee, for his birth, life, death, resurrection and ascension ; for his gracious intercession at thy right hand, and for all the blessings of the christian covenant. O grant that such distinguished goodness may have its full effect on my heart.

But what can I say to thee, O my Benefactor ! whose kindness I have abused ; whose mercies I have slighted ; whose promises I have rejected, and whose judgments I have contemned? I have offended against knowledge and conviction; against thy most inviting promises, and thy most dreadful threatenings; and thou seest all my sin. But O my Father! I have hope through Jesus Christ, in whom thou hast promised to receive true penitence instead of purity. In his name I come for mercy, and through him supplicate for that deep and unfeigned sorrow, which shall produce in me every needful change and amendment of life.

And now, O Lord! with many sins to be repented of and forgiven, I come to ask for thy guidance and blessing in future. As I have much to be forgiven, may I love much, and ever be ready to forgive the penitent. From this Sabbath, may I begin to live for God and heaven. May doing thy will, become henceforth my purpose and joy. Let not sin leave its destructive effects on my mind or heart, whereby the image in which I was created shall be defaced; but let me effectually shun that precipice to which sin would lead me, and tread that path of the just, which leads to everlasting life. From the shame and burden of sin, I would turn to thee, who art my glory and comfort. I need thy gracious spirit; be thou the giver and the gift. Enstamp thy divine image on my soul, that I may hereafter be altogether thine. As my hope is in thy mercy, through a Redeemer, O keep me, through him, unto thy heavenly kingdom. Bless my meditations this day, and prepare me for thy house. Enable me so to acquaint myself with thee, that I may be at peace. Make me mindful of the uncertainty of this short life, and the certainty of that which is eternal; and never let me purchase the happiness of this world at the expense of thy favor. Give me contentment and a quiet spirit; give me devout affections and heavenly hope; give me patience and humility; a firm faith and a prudent zeal. May I always act conformably to the light of my own mind, and the precepts of Christianity.

But, my Father, I pray not for myself alone; I pray for all my brethren of thy family. Pity those who know not thee, and have not heard of thy name. O may thy name be known over the whole earth, and thy saving health to all nations. May the truth as it is in Jesus, enlighten every mind, and his promises gladden every heart. May the ministers of religion be zealous and successful heralds of the Gospel; and may the hallowed fire of the altar, touch and purify their lips. Bless the pastor of this flock, and may his labors, this day, be effectual for the subversion of vice, and the establishment of pure religion. I pray for my friends, and wilt thou bless them; I pray for my enemies, and wilt thou forgive them. Let the sorrowful sighing of the afflicted come up before thee for thy compassion, and suffering of every kind be visited by thy mercy.

God of the morning! thou art the Author of the light. Thou hast caused the dayspring to know his place, and with gratitude I see the light of the sun — I pray, that, like that orb, I may without weariness pursue my heavenly course; and having gone through the duties and trials of earth, may I at last exchange them for the joys and glories of heaven. I ask and offer all, in that name which is above every name, through which be ever rendered to thee, immortal praises. Amen.

SABBATH EVENING PRAYER FOR AN INDIVIDUAL,

O THOU who hearest prayer! with childlike confidence I approach thee as the Being who delightest in the happiness of thy creatures, and who art nigh to them when they call upon thee. In the name of my Redeemer, I come to ask thine audience and blessing.

How happy have I been this day, in the privilege of meeting my brethren in the house of worship, and of offering, with them, our united tribute of prayer and praise to thee, our common Benefactor. A day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I bless thy name that another Sabbath has been afforded me, for increasing my knowledge of thee, and my faith in thy Son. At the close of this holy day I would renew my acknowledgements, and meditate on thy character.

Thou, O God! art infinite in wisdom, to teach; infinite in power, to defend; infinite in holiness, to sanctify; infinite in goodness, to supply the needy; and infinite in mercy, to forgive the penitent. In the calmness of this hour I would feel thy presence, and remember that the darkness hideth not from thee. Thy constant love has continued to me the being thou gavest me at first, and while I live I would magnify thy name.

But, O Holy Father! it is with shame I acknowledge my transgressions. Thou needest not my confession to inform thee of my guilt; for thine eye hath been ever upon my path. Wherewithal shall I come before a holy God? Sighs and tears and promises will not answer the demands of thy law. I have abused the precepts of my christian education, and have indulged many unhallowed passions. Comparing myself with the spotless purity of thy law, as I have heard it this day declared, I am wretched and miserable.

But I remember my Saviour, and I fly to that covenant of grace, which he has sealed with his blood. Through him, God of compassion! be merciful to me, a sinner; and may true contrition wash out all my stains.

And now my urgent prayer is, that as thou hast allowed me to call thee Father, I may henceforth render thee the love and obedience of a child. I came from thee; I would therefore live in thee, so that I may return to thee, at last, in glory. Gird me with strength for thy holy service; and may my knowledge of thee be exhibited to others, by my adding to my faith a noble christian courage in defence of thy truth; by a constant victory over my corrupt propensities; by a moderate use of all lawful comforts; by a meek and quiet spirit under all my trials, and by entire resignation to thy holy will. May I show my faith in the Saviour, by having my gratitude kindled at the view of his labors and sufferings for me. May I read his holy Gospel with the spirit in which it was written; may I be instant in prayer, faithful in the use of all christian ordinances, and exemplary in my whole conversation. Especially may I keep holy the appointed sabbath, and treasure up what I have heard this day, to my everlasting profit. I pray for purity of heart. Strengthen me to preserve blameless my soul and body, and never let me gratify any propensity, but for the noble purposes for which thou didst implant it. Knowing how difficult it is to escape from evil tempers and indulgences, O give me courage to vanquish them, by resistance at first. Let thy spirit be my perpetual monitor, that I may be secure against every assault.

O my Father! I ask to be useful to those around me. Give me industry, temperance and gentleness. If I cannot assist the needy by my alms, or deliver the oppressed by my power, O let me diligently exercise love in abstaining from all uncharitableness of speech, and from all frowardness of temper. May I look upon the failings of others with pity; and be as ready to forgive my brethren, as thou art ready, through Jesus Christ, to forgive me.

God of the nations! bless the whole family of man; and may rulers and ruled be instrumental in thy hand, of enlarging the Redeemer's kingdom, and promoting the final reign of truth and righteousness. Strengthen the hand that is extended to present the Gospel to the heathens; and may the happy time soon come, when the fulness of the Gentiles shall be brought in, and all Israel shall be saved; when the knowledge of the Lord shall fill the earth, as the waters fill the channels of the deep.

Wilt thou smile upon the family in which I live; upon the religious society with which I worship, and upon thy servant our beloved Pastor. May he be eminently useful in his pious labors; and receive, at last, the joyous approval—Well done good and faithful servant. I pray thee to reward my benefactors, and to forgive my enemies; be thou a present help to all who are in trouble; heal any who are sick; comfort those who mourn; supply the wants of the needy; be the God and husband of the widow, and the Father of the fatherless.

My heavenly Protector! I again depend on thy watchful care, for another night. Keep me in safety during this season; and when the first rays of morning shall visit my waking eyes, then wilt thou lift upon me the light of thy countenance. I offer my prayer to thy sacred majesty, in the name of my Saviour and Redeemer, through whom, to thee, be all honor and glory for ever. Amen.

MORNING PRAYER FOR A COMMUNICANT.

(Before the celebration of the Lord's Supper.)

God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; I adore thine unspeakable goodness in raising up this Deliverer from sin and death, for a benighted and guilty world. I praise thee for the spiritual and heavenly blessings which thou hast bestowed on me, through his mediation, sufferings and resurrection. What gracious instruction flowed from his tongue! What spotless purity marked his life! What love and zeal filled his heart! With what patience and kindness did he seek those that were lost! What astonishing miracles attested his mission! What benevolence was exhibited in his painful death on the cross! How triumphantly did he conquer the grave and ascend to thy throne in heaven! Indulgent God, how complete is his redemption, how attracting and transporting the thought of his compassion and victory! What light, what comfort, what encouragement, what hope can I need, which the Gospel of Christ does not abundantly supply?

O thou who seest in secret, I confess I am unworthy of my christian privileges, and that I have not adorned my profession, as I might, by a holy walk and conversation. In condemning myself, I feel I must be condemned by thee. Spare me, O Father, through him that died for me. Through thine infinite goodness, in Jesus Christ, remember not my sins; but give me that true repentance which is unto life.

To-day thou invitest me to the memorial of my Saviour's dying love. May I keep this christian passover with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth. May I regard the Supper as a means, not as an end. May I hear the invitation of Jesus, and go to his table with lively faith and pure gratitude. May I appear there in the wedding garments that are required. Eating the bread and drinking the cup, as emblems of his body and blood, may I embrace the covenant of mercy and find redemption through him. O let the remembrance of his love, his sufferings, his death and his glory, comfort, support and strengthen me, in life and in death. Heavenly Father, be thou with thy servant who ministers in the sanctuary; with my fellow communicants, and with all my christian brethren. Dispose all who encircle thine altar, to feel and act as friends, partakers of the same grace, and heirs of the same blissful inheritance, through Jesus Christ our Saviour. Amen.

EVENING PRAYER FOR A COMMUNICANT.

(After the celebration of the Lord's Supper.)

FATHER of mercies, and God of Love !
Thou hast caused thy goodness to pass before me this day. Follow with thy blessing what I have been permitted and enabled to perform in obedience to the injunction of thy Son. If my affections have gone forth toward thee in warm devotion, and if the death and sufferings of my Redeemer have produced proper reflections and awakened proper purposes, to thee be praise. I thank thee that I have this day sat down with my brethren at the table of the Lord, and remembered my absent Saviour in the sacred and impressive rite in which he desired to be remembered. I have received the cup of blessing, given me by the hand of mercy. I have renewed my vows, acknowledging thee to be my God, and Jesus to be my Saviour. And now, with heartfelt earnestness, I pray thee to preserve me from being unfaithful by not holding fast a good conscience. Help me to follow my Saviour wheresoever he would lead me ; to abide in him as the true vine ; and to stand fast in the liberty, where-with he makes his disciples free. May his love for me, which was stronger than death, constrain me to love him in return. Enable me at all times to remember his new command, that we should love one another, even as he loved us. O raise my affections from earth to heaven, and assist me to be steadfast and immoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord. May I regard the world, as an object that I am soon to give up forever; and may I therefore set my affections on things eternal.

I thank thee for the privilege I have this day enjoyed. May I come with boldness to thy throne of grace, in my Saviour's name, and may his peace keep my heart in every changing scene. Grant me to be his true disciple; triumphing in this, that my Lord, who was once dead, lives and reigns forever, and has gone to prepare mansions for those who love him.

Once more, O thou Parent of all, I implore thy blessing upon thy church universal, and upon the whole human family. Comfort every sorrowful soul. Bring into the way of truth all such as have erred and are deceived. Bring the wickedness of the wicked to an end. May truth, and righteousness, and peace, gladden the whole earth. Let thy grace be multiplied upon the religious society of which I am a member, and upon the pastor of the flock. Let all with whom I am connected, and who are dear to me, be enrolled in the book of life.

Hear me, O Father, through him, whose doctrine was that bread which came down from heaven; guide me safely through my earthly pilgrimage, and at last receive me to thyself in glory. Amen.

PRAYER AFTER ENTERING A CHURCH.

O THOU, whom we have assembled to worship! Infinite God! May I remember that this is none other than the house of God, and that this is the gate of heaven. Assist me, O Lord, and accept my services. May I worship thee in spirit and in truth. Wilt thou aid him who is to lead in our devotions; and dispose my heart to seriousness, attention and reverence. Grant that I may improve this opportunity to the honor of thy holy name, and the benefit of my soul, through Jesus Christ my Saviour. Amen.

PRAYER AT CHURCH, AFTER THE SERVICES ARE ENDED.

BLESSED be thy name, O Lord, for this opportunity of attending thee, in thy house and service. Grant that I, and all who profess thy name, may be doers of thy word, and not hearers only.

Pardon our wanderings and imperfections ; and accept us in our services, through our only Mediator and Advocate, Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRAYER FOR AN AGED PERSON.

O THOU great Author and Supporter of life ! thou art the same from everlasting to everlasting ; in thy duration there is no succession, one day being with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day ! Thou hast been the Refuge of thy children in every age ! To thee I would raise my soul with thanksgiving and supplication. Thou hast maintained my frail existence, through many years, and crowned its successive periods with thy mercy. Where should I begin, or where should I cease, if I would enumerate the favors which thy hand has bestowed on me ! With what incessant kindness hast thou supplied the wants both of my soul and body, opened to me many sources of satisfaction, shielded me from dangers and calamities, consoled and sustained me under trials and distresses, and conducted my feet in the path of peace ! What gratitude do I owe to thee, especially for the light and assistance of thy holy Gospel ; for its precious promises and animating hopes, and for the many opportunities and means of improvement which I have enjoyed! Hitherto thou hast led and supported me; and my only trust is in thy sure and never failing mercy.

Heavenly Father! I confess to thee my many errors and transgressions, with sorrow and repentance. Of thine infinite goodness, forgive whatever I have thought or said or done amiss in the long course of my pilgrimage. Let my hoary head be found in the way of righteousness. Whatever I may have neglected, whatever remains to be done, assist me to perform immediately with conscientious fidelity. If I have injured any, enable me to discover-it, that I may make due reparation, and be at peace with all men, before I go hence. O Lord! sanctify my mind, correct my passions, and preserve me from every sin to which I am exposed. Save me from a selfish, censorious, severe, impatient and dissatisfied temper. Teach me to be thankful to those who contribute to my ease and comfort, to rejoice in the happiness of all around me, and with a friendly spirit to instruct and admonish the rising generation. Help me especially to render the religion of thy Son attractive and venerable in their estimation, by setting them an example of cheerful piety, and by entertaining a holy confidence in thy providence and grace.

God of compassion ; my strength is now often labor and sorrow, and I shall soon go down to the grave. Forsake me not, I beseech thee ; cast me not off in the time of my old age.
 Let my affections be fixed among the things which are above ; let the prospect of heaven support me in every hour of suffering ; and when my heart and flesh fail, be thou the strength of my heart, and my portion forever, through Jesus Christ, my Saviour. Amen.

PRAYER FOR A PERSON IN MIDDLE LIFE

FATHER of lights, and Source of being ! I bless thee for conscious existence ; for the rank allotted me among the works of thine hands ;
 for my intellectual and moral powers, for all my capacities of enjoyment, and for all that variety of objects around me adapted to their nature and improvement. I bless thee, the father of knowledge, for all the assistance in the pursuit of science and virtue, which thou hast afforded me, through the channel of friends, teachers, books or conversation. Most of all I bless thee, for the light, consolation and hope, which thou hast put into my power to obtain, by the careful study of the holy Scriptures, by serious meditation on their important doctrines and discoveries, and by an impartial and diligent use of them in the regulation of my faith, temper and practice. O may I show forth my gratitude for these many favors, by devoting my powers to thy service.

Gracious God! thou hast brought me to this period of life, when my strength is upon me, and when I am able to make the greatest exertions. Wilt thou teach me the duties which this season requires. Forbid, great God, that I should misapply or trifle with any portion of that precious time, for the use of which I am accountable at thy bar. May I regard my time and all my opportunities, as talents which thou hast lent me. May I remember that the obligation and the ability to do good are of equal extent; and wilt thou graciously dispose me to fulfil the measure of my duty.

God of wisdom, enlighten my understanding to discern the great objects of existence. O let me never weakly imagine, that thou hast placed me so high in the scale of being, only to enjoy the fleeting gratifications of the body. May I seek a happiness more exalted and durable, more pure and refined; a happiness, flowing from obedient appetites, well regulated affections, increasing knowledge, the exercise of piety and benevolence, and the well grounded hope of thine approbation and favor. While my thoughts are engaged in the things of earth, may I reserve my affections for what is pure, ennobling and heavenly.

Pardon, O Father! the many sins I have committed. I have indulged passions which are offensive in thy sight. I have wasted many hours, and have not always placed thee before me. Pardon, through the Saviour, these violations of thy law; and O enable me hereafter to live wisely. May I be more industrious, thoughtful and decided; have a more tender regard to those who depend upon me for aid, support or counsel; have more philanthropy, more piety, more true holiness, and more religious zeal. Keep me from idle amusements, and vicious company. Arm my soul against the thousand temptations which beset me, and whenever I act, may I do good.

I now give up myself, O God, to thee. I ask thy power to strengthen my weakness; thy wisdom to direct my ignorance; thy bounty to supply my wants, and thy mercy to pardon my numerous sins. Go with me through this world of danger. May I perform my part well, and at the close of life have the testimony of my conscience, that in simplicity and in godly sincerity, not by fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, I have had my conversation in the world. Hear me, holy Father, through my Saviour and Redeemer. Amen.

PRAYER FOR A PERSON IN ACTIVE BUSINESS.

RIGHTEOUS and merciful art thou, O Lord, in the ordination, that by the sweat of our brow we should eat bread. Thou hast created all beings, that they might enjoy their existence; and thy wisdom is manifest in every provision for their welfare. Thou lookest upon the earth, and fillest it with blessings for them.

Thou art calling all to activity and labor, that they may be useful to each other, and be preserved from the evils of idleness and vice. It was the Saviour's meat and drink to do thy will, and to finish his appointed work. Merciful God! let me not esteem it a burden, that I am called to activity and solicitude. I ask thy divine grace, to give me faithfulness and alacrity in the duties of my employment. As I am fixed in business, not for my own private interest alone, but for the good of society, O implant and increase within me a principle of truth and good will towards all men, that I may always abhor the thought of enriching myself, by the gains of secret fraud or base ambition. Keep in me a conscientious regard to that great principle of doing to others as I would that they should do to me. May I never forget that the wages of unrighteousness bring down thy quick displeasure, and that the prosperity of the wicked shall destroy them. Amidst undue eagerness for wealth, wilt thou sound in my ears that momentous question, — What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Save me from the snares of covetousness, and may I remember that the day is approaching in which earthly riches cannot profit me. O grant, that amidst all my pursuits, I may preserve a supreme regard to the one thing which is most needful; and secure those heavenly treasures which can never be taken away. To this end, O God! I ask the guidance of thy gracious spirit; and while my thoughts are steadily fixed on earthly objects, may I be careful to reserve my affections for what is pure and heavenly. Knowing the tendency of the world to extinguish all sense of spiritual blessings, may I maintain such constant suspicion of these earth-born passions, as shall keep me from every inordinate pursuit of temporal good. May the law of truth be written on my heart, so that iniquity shall never be found in my mouth.

If my means increase, grant me a liberal hand to the poor and needy; and may I use what thou impartest, with temperance, gratitude and charity. May I do much to promote good learning and pure religion; and by benefiting society, may I prove that thou hast not blessed me in vain.

Giver of every good! I ask thy smiles upon my labors and pursuits. May I be prospered in all my lawful undertakings; and by fidelity and prudence, by industry and benevolence, may I do honor to the religion I profess, and at last receive those higher rewards, which earth cannot bestow. In the name of him who died to redeem us from the power of this evil world, I offer this my prayer, ascribing to thee, the Disposer of my condition, praise everlasting. Amen.

PRAYER FOR A PARENT.

ALMIGHTY God, Creator of men! from thee come our choicest gifts. Thou hast bestowed on me children, and inspired my heart with the most ardent affection for them. Thou hast committed them to my care, and commanded me to educate them as Christians, as intelligent and immortal beings. O make me fully sensible, I entreat thee, of the solemnity and importance of this charge; and give me thy gracious assistance, that I may train up my offspring in the way in which they should go. -Enable me to entertain abiding convictions of the value of good instructions, and the necessity of early religious impressions. Enlighten and direct me in the choice of proper means for cultivating pious and virtuous principles in their tender minds. Make me constant and faithful in sowing in their hearts the incorruptible seed of divine truth, that they may love religion early, and early walk with God. Increase my solicitude to set before them the pattern of a holy and good life; and never suffer me to forget, that what I say and do cannot fail to influence the formation of their temper and character. I pray to be preserved from the extremes of angry impatience and undue severity, and of excessive indulgence and misguided fondness. Direct me to the most rational and salutary expressions of my love to them; and help me to adapt my conduct to their several dispositions. And while I study to bring them forward on the stage of action, with those advantages which are suitable to their situation, let me always remember, that the care of the soul is the one thing needful, and let it be my highest concern to prepare them for eternity and heaven.

Gracious God! save me, I pray thee, from the most grievous calamity which parents can feel; that of beholding their children vicious and miserable. O protect and bless those for whom my heart beats with the tenderest anxiety; and let them never be led astray by wicked principle, or seductive examples. Whatever thou mayest deny me, grant that I may see them walking in the truth, adorned with innocence, piety and virtue. Vouchsafe to forgive any errors in my conduct towards them, and to supply all my deficiencies. When I shall be removed hence, let me die with the consciousness that I have not wilfully neglected my duty to them. And in the great day of resurrection and judgment, grant that we may be found together before thy throne, and that I may be enabled to say — Here am I, O Lord, and the children which thou hast given me.

I offer my requests in the name of Jesus Christ, my Lord and Saviour. Amen.

MORNING PRAYER FOR A CHILD.

ALMIGHTY God, Maker of heaven and earth! my Creator, Preserver and Benefactor. Early will I seek and praise and love thee. In the hours of sleep, when I could not defend myself, thou hast defended me. Thou hast brought me to this morning in health, and I will now show forth thy praise. I thank thee for all the powers of my body, and for all the faculties of my mind. My present blessings are more than I can number, and more than I have deserved. I have sinned against thee ; for I have left undone many things which I ought to have done, and have done many things that I ought not to have done. As thou hast promised to forgive me through Jesus Christ, if I am heartily sorry, I anxiously pray thee to look in mercy on my sins, and enable me to do better in future. O make me sensible of the importance of forming right habits on my entrance into life ; and enable me to keep a constant guard over my thoughts, my feelings, my words, and my actions. May I remember that thine eye is always directly upon me. Help me to gain good learning ; so that when the aged, the wise and the virtuous leave the world, I may be prepared to fill their places, and be useful in society. May I remember how much the happiness of my friends depends on my good conduct, and may I be all that my parents and instructors wish me. Assist me to live as thy obedient child, and to be a christian in spirit and in deed. O God ! I look to thee for guidance and assistance this day and every day of my future life, and when I die, may I be received into thy heavenly kingdom, through Jesus Christ, my Saviour. Amen.

EVENING PRAYER FOR A CHILD.

O LORD, my heavenly Father! I thank thee that thou hast added another day to my life; and hast not suffered any evil to befall me. I praise thy name for the food which thou hast given me; for the raiment with which I am clothed, and for all the kindness of my parents and friends to me. Thy mercies, O God, are as many as the moments of my life. Especially I thank thee, that thou hast taught me through Jesus Christ, what I ought to know and do, in order to be useful here and happy hereafter. O my Father! guide my inexperienced feet. As I grow in years, may I, like the holy child Jesus, increase in wisdom and in favor with thee and man. May I be industrious, so that I may be useful; and virtuous, so that I may be happy. I pray that I may avoid bad company; and seek continually to please thee. May I remember that thou art with me wherever I am, and that thou seest me in all I do. I would now recollect what I have done this day; and if I have said or done any thing contrary to thy holy will, I pray thee to forgive me. Bless my dear parents, my relations, my teachers and friends, and all my fellow men. I desire to give up myself to thee for this night, and wilt thou defend me from every harm, and may I awake in the morning, prepared to serve thee better than I have ever served thee before. Hear me, O God, in these my prayers, through Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE SEAMAN'S PRAYER.

O THOU, who stillest the raging of the sea, and the noise of its waves! All powerful God! I lift up mine eyes to thee, from whom cometh my help! Thou holdest the winds, and at thy command they go forth. Thou art God of the sea. Preserve and support me, I beseech thee, during my exposure on the deep. While I am thus dependent on thee, do thou be with me for my safety. Let me not utter thy name, but with the greatest reverence; nor forget, that to thee I owe my security, and that thou holdest my soul in life. Fortify me in the seasons of peril; not by blind courage, but by an unbounded confidence in thy care and goodness. Let it please thee to give success to my undertakings; to conduct me safely to my desired haven, and return me to my family and friends, with gratitude for thy sustaining providence. Impress deeply upon my mind the value of those domestic ties which bind me to my relatives and family. May their constant solicitude and anxious prayers for me, produce serious effects on my mind. May I be induced to improve wisely the many leisure hours I enjoy; and gain some useful knowledge for my future life. Especially, O God, let me be thoughtful of the Sabbath day to keep it holy; and as I am here deprived of public worship, may I read thy sacred word with seriousness, and meditate upon it with devout prayer. Enable me, O Father, to have a strong faith in him who rebuked the winds and the sea, and there was a great calm. May I ever say to my tempestuous passions, — Peace, be still — and look forward toward the haven of eternal rest. And when the sea shall give up its dead, and each one be called to judgment, then may I find my name written in the book of life, through Jesus Christ, my Redeemer. Amen.

FOR A SICK PERSON.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful God! who hatest nothing that thou hast made, and who hast not thought even a crown of everlasting life too much to promise to thy children! I desire humbly to own and reverence thy hand in my present sickness. All the causes which can operate upon me, are in thy hand, as the ministers of thy pleasure. I repose entire confidence in thy wisdom. May my bodily suffering bring good to my soul, and lead me more justly to value health and strength, and to employ them to nobler purposes than I have done, if this sickness shall not be unto death. Let me take that view of life from my sick bed, which can be taken from no other place. With submission to thy will, I pray for the removal of my disorder, and for the perfect restoration of my health. Thy will, O God, and not mine, be done. Endue me with resignation, patience and meekness, under the pains of disease and the irksomeness of confinement. Above all, prepare me for death. Blot out my numerous transgressions, through thine infinite mercy in Jesus Christ, and dispose me to do what is necessary for the great exchange of worlds. Thou dost not willingly afflict or grieve thy children, and I believe thou intendest good to me by this fatherly correction. May I yet live to perform my duties more acceptably. May no increase of pain produce repining, or draw from me an inconsiderate prayer. Into thy hands I commend myself, desiring to be numbered with those who love thee, and to find by experience all things, and this sickness especially, working my spiritual good. Help me to finish; while I live, the work thou hast given me to do. If I have injured any, I would be truly penitent, and when I die, may I be at peace with all men. O may I at this time, whatever the issue of this sickness may be, fix my heart steadfastly upon thee, and have a lively faith in that blessed Saviour, who led the way through the grave to the immortality beyond it. Through the wilderness of this world, let me ever bless thee for the manna and the rock. On the brink of Jordan let thy promises be precious. In the last hour let my faith in a Redeemer be strong, and grant me to ascend into thy blissful presence in the chariot of love and praise. O Lord, hear! O Lord, forgive! Be my God in life, my hope in death, and my everlasting portion, through Jesus, my Saviour! Amen.

AFTER RECOVERY FROM SEVERE SICKNESS.

BLESS the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits; who forgiveth all thine iniquities, who healeth all thy diseases, who redeemeth thy life from destruction, and who crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercy. I praise thee, great God, that, although thou hast chastened me, thou hast not given me over unto death. I praise thee that thy powerful arm has arrested the progress of the destroyer, and helped me out of all my troubles. I thank thee for every comfort and alleviation of pain, with which thou hast been pleased to furnish me, and especially for the love of my friends, and the promises of thy Gospel. I acknowledge thine inexpressible goodness in restoring me from the brink of the grave, and from the anguish of suffering, to endeared connections, to enlivened hopes, to new opportunities, and to increased motives for cultivating christian affections, for abounding in good works, and for laying up treasures in heaven.

O Father! let not these opportunities be neglected by me, but be wisely improved to thy glory.

I have experienced thy power and compassion. May I ever live in the exercise of a grateful confidence in both, and be duly sensible of my total dependence on thy providence and government. I have been brought near to the realities of the world to come; brought to feel the worth of thy favor, and the value of a conscience void of offence. Almighty God! let the convictions I have had of them never be extinguished in my heart. Enable me at all times to entertain that humble contrition for my sins, and that penitential sense of my need of thy mercy, which the nearness of death was instrumental in producing. Help me to appreciate, as I ought, eternal things, and to do all that thou requirest, in order that I may secure • thine approbation and friendship. May the resolutions I formed, when sick, now be effectual.

Thou hast enabled me to realize the vanity and uncertainty of the world. Preserve me from attaching too much importance to its pleasures, honors or possessions; and assist me constantly to remember how rapidly it is passing away.

Thou hast taught me by sickness the worth of friendship; and the offices of kindness, which have been performed for me, have, with thy blessing, cheered, consoled and supported me. My God! never let me be insensible of the love of those whose hearts thou hast warmed with good will towards me. Make me ready to return their benevolence on every occasion. Let me be softened with humanity towards all that suffer; and let me never behold the bed of sickness, without sympathy and charity.

It was thy Gospel, O thou God of all consolation in Jesus Christ, from which my hope was derived, when the shadows of death appeared to encompass me. The assurances which it contains of thy forbearance and mercy, and of eternal redemption through thy Son, were the only support of my spirit. O give me grace to cling, with faster hold than ever, to this Rock of salvation, to abide in the love of Jesus, to follow him, undismayed, and constantly to hope through him for justification and celestial happiness.

Preserver of my being! thou hast now shown me how frail I am; hast given me a striking proof of the precariousness of life; and I know that ere long I shall bid farewell to all whom I now behold. O may I be prepared for that sickness, from which I shall not recover. May I walk by faith, and not by sight. May I be concerned to be always ready, and to be found in that frame of mind, which will enable me to welcome death as the messenger of peace.

Holy Father! hear my prayers, I beseech thee; forgive my sins, and make me thine for evermore, through him who was made perfect by suffering. Amen.

AFTER THE DEATH OF A PARENT.

O THOU, in whose sight we all are children! thou livest for ever and ever! But unto us thou hast said, Dust ye are, and unto dust ye shall return. Eternal God, I would adore thee in all thy doings. Even when thou causest trouble and heaviness to fall upon me, it is that I may learn righteousness from thy judgments, and receive profit from thy correction. Thou art now calling me to drink very deeply of the cup of sorrow. The fond parent thou gavest me for my guidance, my instruction, my support and comfort, thou hast now taken away, and left me without the protection I have always felt. The places which once knew, are to know my parent no longer. The voice which spoke wisdom to my early days, and guided my inexperienced feet, I am to hear no more. O God most holy ! believing thou knowest when it is best to call thy creatures to thyself, I would exercise an entire submission. Give me the oil of joy for mourning, and the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness. In the midst of my grief may the spirit of Christ possess my soul. Sanctify to me this severe affliction ! and enable me to treasure up the sacred words of counsel which my parent gave me. Grant me strength to follow every good example which was placed before me ; and often to call to mind the unwearied exertions which were made to promote my welfare. O God, when I have completed my days on earth, I urgently pray to be united with this parent in thy heavenly family. Hear me in my affliction, and comfort me, through Jesus Christ, my Redeemer. Amen.

AFTER THE DEATH OF A HUSBAND OR WIFE.

O THOU, whose ways are to us inscrutable! great, eternal God! Thou gavest and thou takest away. Thou liftest up and thou castest down. Thou art God alone—infinately wise and infinitely good. Thou seest the end from the beginning, and in thy purposes of love thou canst not err. Thou hast taken from me the chosen partner of my life; the object of my most affectionate regards; my support and comfort under the labors and anxieties of this mortal state. O God, by what painful experience art thou teaching me the instability of all earthly enjoyments! But I would not murmur at thy dealings, believing that thy chastisements are chastisements of love; and that by all these things, thou art intending to do me good. God forbid, that my present grief should render me unmindful of thy past goodness. I desire to repose myself under the care of thy providence, assured that I cannot be destitute, while thou art my helper; or miserable, having thee for my portion. Whatever outward blessings thou shalt see fit to deny me, O deny me not the comfort of thy love. Provide me with friends to assist me in my deserted condition ; and give me grace to behave with propriety in all my relations. O God, wilt thou be my friend, my father, my life, my health, my rest and my joy. Under thy chastisements, I desire to submit to thy directions, to refer to thee my actions, and to resign into thine hands all my interests in time and eternity ; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

AFTER THE DEATH OF A BROTHER OR SISTER.

SOVEREIGN Disposer of all events ! I come into thy presence with the voice of grief ; I come to thee as my Father, and wilt thou hear me as thy child. Thou hast taken from me one, in whom I was comforted, who shared with me the joys of early life, and who experienced with me the kindness of affectionate parents. Thou hast strikingly taught me, that the tenderest friendship has no power to retain the departing spirit. But, O God, I desire to bow in humble resignation to thine appointment, and read the solemn lesson thou wouldst teach me. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away ; blessed be the name of the Lord. Give me that composure of spirit, which shall enable me to receive the consolations of religion; for I well know how dark soever this night of affliction seems, if thou sayest, — Let there be light, — there shall be light. Gracious Monitor, prepare me to follow this departed friend of my bosom. O may I be wiser and holier by thy dealings with me. Soothe my sorrows by the comforting words of Jesus Christ, who is the resurrection and the life. Like him may I bear what thy wisdom shall see fit to ordain; and in all my afflictions, however severe, be able to say, Not my will, O God, but thine be done. Now unto thee, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who died that we might live, and who wept that we might rejoice, be glory forever. Amen.

AFTER THE DEATH OF A CHILD.

O THOU, who hast appointed unto all once to die, and who alone knowest what is really best for me! I fly to thee, beseeching thee to sanctify to me the bereavement, which fills my heart with grief. Thou hast united me to the objects of my innocent affection, by the tenderest ties; and I bless thee that thou wast pleased to give me my departed child, and to bestow on me the satisfactions and joys which a parent feels. Thou hast by the arrow of death, taken away from me this beloved being; and I would bow with resignation to thy sovereign appointment. I commit its body to the grave, and its soul to thy infinite mercy; and I rejoice and thank thee that our Lord Jesus Christ has declared, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

Compassionate Father! console my sorrows, I pray thee, and prevent me from despising thy chastenings, or fainting under thy rebuke. Teach me more perfectly to do and suffer thy will, and to draw instruction from the adversities I experience. May I hear the voice of Providence, saying to me, — What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter. I would piously wait the great explanation. May I willingly give up my child from these arms below into the arms of a better Parent above. Affect me with just convictions of the vanity of human life, and the uncertainty of earthly comforts. Dispose me to work out my own salvation with fear and trembling; and to give the most serious attention to the religious instruction and improvement of those whom thou hast preserved to me. Instead of attempting fully to explain the unsearchable mysteries of thy government, may my heart rest assured, that all things shall work together for good to them that love thee; and may I steadily look forward to the resurrection of the just, and the reunion, of those who die in the Lord, through our exalted Saviour and Redeemer. Amen.

PRAYER BY SIR W. JONES.

ETERNAL, incomprehensible Mind, who by thy boundless power, before time began, createdst innumerable worlds for thy glory and innumerable orders of beings for their happiness; which thine infinite goodness prompted thee to desire, and thy infinite wisdom enabled thee to know! We thy creatures vanish into nothing, before thy supreme Majesty; we hourly feel our weakness; we daily bewail our vices; we continually acknowledge our folly. Thee only we adore with awful veneration; thee we thank with the most fervent zeal; thee we praise with astonishment and rapture; to thy power we humbly submit; of thy goodness we devoutly implore protection; on thy wisdom we firmly and cheerfully rely. We do but open our eyes, and instantly we perceive thy divine existence; we do but exert our reason, and in a moment we discover thy divine attributes; but our eyes could not behold thy splendor, nor could our minds comprehend thy divine essence; we see thee only through thy stupendous and all-perfect works; we know thee only by that ray of sacred light, which it has pleased thee to reveal through Jesus Christ. Nevertheless, if creatures too ignorant to conceive and too depraved to pursue the means of their own happiness, may, without presumption, express their wants to their Creator, let us humbly supplicate thee to remove from us that evil, which thou hast permitted for a time to exist, that the ultimate good of all may be complete; and to secure us from that vice, which thou sufferest to spread snares around us, that the triumph of virtue may be more conspicuous. Irradiate our minds with all useful truth; instil into our hearts a spirit of general benevolence; give understanding to the foolish; meekness to the proud; temperance to the dissolute; fortitude to the feeble-hearted; hope to the desponding; faith to the unbelieving; diligence to the slothful; patience to those who are in pain, and thy celestial aid to those who are in danger:—comfort the afflicted; relieve the distressed; supply the hungry with salutary food; and the thirsty with a plenteous stream. Impute not our doubts to indifference, nor our slowness of belief to hardness of heart; but be indulgent to our imperfect nature; and supply our imperfections by thy heavenly favor. Suffer not, we anxiously pray, suffer not oppression to prevail over innocence, nor the might of the avenger over the weakness of the just. Whenever we address thee in our retirement from the vanities of the world, if our prayers are foolish, pity us, if presumptuous, pardon us; if acceptable to thee, grant them, all powerful God, grant them; and, as with our living voice, and with our dying lips, we will express our submission to thy decrees, adore thy providence, and bless thy dispensations, so in all future states, to which we reverently hope thy goodness will raise us, grant that we may continue praising, admiring, venerating, worshipping thee more and more, through worlds without number and ages without end. Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil; for thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory forever. Amen.

PRINCE EUGENE'S PRAYER.

I BELIEVE in thee, O my God! do thou strengthen my faith: I hope in thee, confirm my hopes: I love thee, inflame my love more and more: I repent of all my sins, but do thou increase my repentance! As my first beginning, I worship thee; as my last end, I long for thee; as my Eternal Benefactor, I praise thee; as my Supreme Protector, I pray unto thee; that it may please thee, O Lord, to guide and lead me by thy providence, to keep me in obedience to thy justice; to comfort me by thy mercy, and to protect me by thy almighty power. I submit unto thee all my thoughts, words and actions, as well as my afflictions, pains and sufferings; and I desire to have thee always in my mind, to do all my works in thy name, and for thy sake to bear all adversity with patience. I will nothing but what thou willest, O God, because it is agreeable unto thee. O give me grace that I may be attentive in my prayer, temperate in my diet, vigilant in my conduct, and unmoveable in all good purposes. Grant, most merciful Lord, that I may be true and faithful to those that have entrusted me with their secrets; that I may be courteous and kind toward all men, and that both in my words and actions, I may show unto them a good example. Dispose my heart to admire and praise thy goodness, to hate all errors and evil works, to love my neighbor, and to improve the world. Assist me, good God, in subduing lust by mortification, covetousness by liberality, anger by mildness, and lukewarmness by zeal and fervency. Enable me to conduct myself with prudence in all transactions, and to show courage in danger, patience in adversity, and in prosperity an humble mind. Let thy grace illuminate my understanding, direct my will, sanctify my body, and bless my soul. Make me diligent in curbing all irregular affections, zealous in imploring thy grace, careful in keeping thy commandments, and constant in working out my own salvation. Finally, O God, make me sensible how little is the world, how great thy heavens, how short time, and how long will be the blessed eternity. O that I may prepare myself for death! that I may dread thy judgments, that I may avoid the torments of a guilty conscience, and obtain of thee, O God! eternal life, through my blessed Saviour, Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

FORMS OF SERVICE FOR PUBLIC WORSHIP.

Morning Service.

INTRODUCTORY PRAYER.

OUR Father who art in heaven! thy children and thy creatures would come to express to thee the language of their common wants, and their common weakness. May our prayers ascend to thee in the strong urgency of christian faith. While we are assembled to think of our eternal concerns, we would remember that we are surrounded, supported and inspected by thee. We desire now, O Lord, to learn thy will; to give thee the praise and homage that are thy due; to confess before thee our manifold transgressions; to implore thy pardoning mercy through Jesus Christ, and to gain some new strength for our christian course. In these our endeavors, we ask thy divine assistance. And as we know not whether we shall spend another Sabbath on earth, may we this day ask ourselves, if we are prepared to meet our God.

We come as the disciples of Jesus Christ, through whose name be glory to thee in the church forever. Amen.

PRAYER BEFORE SERMON.

PRAISE waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion, and unto thee shall the vow be performed. Almighty and most merciful Father! thou art our God, early would we seek thee; our unwearyed Benefactor, and we would bless thee; our father's God, and we will exalt thee. We would come to acknowledge thee, the only proper object of religious worship. We would come as the disciples of thy Son, to ask for mercy, because we are sinners; to implore the influence of thy Spirit, because we are weak; and to entreat for thine assistance, because on thee we continually depend. May we be duly impressed with the solemn duties of prayer. May we remember thine eye is upon us and never turned away. O thou who searchest the heart, we desire to worship thee, who art a Spirit, in spirit and in truth. We thank thee for the light of another of thy holy Sabbaths. Thy mercies, gracious Lord, are new upon us every morning, and fresh every evening. And now, that our gratitude may be awakened, we would remember the favors which have crowned our days. Ever since thou gavest us life, we have been pensioners on thy bounty. Thou hast been bountiful to us beyond our necessities, and merciful beyond our hopes. Each day has come to us, bearing thine unremitted favors. Thy goodness, O Father! has been greater towards us, than we can express. Thou hast permitted nature, year after year, to furnish out its treasures, for our support; and thy hand hath been scattering liberally about us, the varied blessings of life. We rejoice and praise thee, that in these second causes, which we see operating around us, we are led to thee, the first Great Cause of all; that from these unnumbered streams we are led to the exhaustless Fountain of being and beneficence. Incite us to study thee in thy works, and see how much we have to thank thee for; and may the multitude of blessings which surround us, be motives that shall bind us in obedience to thy commands. We would admire and adore that wisdom so evidently displayed in the structure of our bodies. But glory be to thy name, that in each of these bodies thou hast placed the bright image of thyself; a rational, immortal principle. How good wast thou, blessed God, to give us immortality; to create us in the image of thine own eternity! O make us duly grateful to thee for the gift of mind ; for that reason which controls our passions and regulates our propensities ; and for those moral powers, which determine our duties, nourish our good affections, and prepare us for happiness, by making us holy. Grant, holy God, that we may use all our powers as thou designest they should be used, in searching after truth, and in the cultivation of the affections of love to thee and love to our fellow men. But while we adore thy wisdom as displayed in these thy works, our souls would kindle into praise for the crowning gift of Christianity. Never can we sufficiently thank thee, for the gift of a Saviour. Glory be to thy name, that in the records of Christianity, which have come down to us, we also are permitted to hear the same glad tidings that angels announced ; — that there is now peace on earth and good will towards man. In an especial manner, we thank thee, that by him, life and immortality are brought to light ; that now we are assured we shall not rest forever in the grave, but that beyond the darkness of the tomb, there shall break forth a bright and glorious morning of the resurrection, when all who are in their graves shall come forth to appear before God. God of mercy and of grace, prepare us all for that day.

But while we remember thy various goodness, it becometh us to remember with deep humility and sincere contrition, how little we have deserved thy many favors. Thou hast been doing much for us, but we have been doing little for ourselves. We have offended against thy holy laws. Thou knowest how often we have sinned. But we have hope in thy grace, through Jesus Christ. Through him, the appointed way, we come for mercy. Through him we would plead, and through him we would throw ourselves on thine infinite grace. God, be merciful to us, sinners! — And now, Holy Father, our desires are before thee, that in future we may do better. May we from this day determine to watch the hidden springs of action, and see where we are not pure; and to break off our sins by repentance, and our iniquities by turning unto thee. And since we are invited to immortality, may we, hereafter, have our conversation in heaven, and every day be preparing to join the great assembly of the just made perfect, in the regions of light, purity and joy. Enable us, therefore, we earnestly pray thee, to imitate our Saviour. May we, as far as we are able, in the great duties of religion, feel as he felt, think as he thought, and do as he did. May Christ be formed in us the hope of glory. We desire to love thee more, and to serve thee better; to love our Saviour more, and to serve him better; to love each other more, and to serve each other better; and to be more ready to do to others, as we wish others should do to us. O God, may we be Christians in spirit and in deed. Give us, therefore, we entreat thee, more spiritual light and knowledge; more love of sacred things; more faith and hope; more strength against temptation and sin; more purity and heavenly-mindedness; more indifference to the fleeting objects of earth, and more genuine piety. O may we put on Christ Jesus, and become completely furnished unto every good work.

Our Father who art in heaven, we look to thee, who givest strength to the weak and power to the helpless, for aid in the solemn services of thy house. Wilt thou be very near us in mercy; direct our thoughts, engage our hearts, elevate our affections and forgive us our sins; and to thee shall be the praise forever, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

PRAYER AFTER SERMON.

ALMIGHTY God, the Fountain of wisdom, who knowest our necessities before we ask, and our ignorance in asking ; we beseech thee to have compassion upon our infirmities ; and those things, which for our unworthiness we dare not, and for our blindness we cannot ask, vouchsafe to give us, as disciples of thy Son. Through him, we pray God to grant that the words we have now heard with our outward ears, may, through thy grace, be so grafted inwardly in our hearts, that they may bring forth in us the fruit of good living, to the honor and praise of thy holy name. Forgive what thou hast seen amiss in us, during our waiting upon thee in thy house. We would now commit ourselves to thy care, ascribing to thee, the kingdom, power and glory forever. Amen.

BENEDICTION.

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

Evening Service.

INTRODUCTORY PRAYER.

ASSIST us, O Lord, in all our doings, by thy most gracious favor, and further us with thy continual help ; that in all our works, begun, continued, and ended in thee, we may glorify thy holy name, and finally, by thy mercy, obtain everlasting life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

PRAYER BEFORE SERMON.

HIGH and holy Lord our God! As children before a Parent, as subjects before a Sovereign, as sinners before a Being of infinite purity, we bow at thy footstool in prayer. In the spirit of faith, in the spirit of love, gratitude and hope, we desire to make known our requests to our Father in heaven. May we be deeply penetrated with the thought that thine eye is this moment upon us. With the voice of praise and thanksgiving, we would again enter thy courts, O thou Most High, and give thee glory, that we are permitted to see the light of another of thy holy days. By these successive returns of duty, thou art reminding us of how much we owe to him who made us, and to him who hath redeemed us. We are united to thee, O Father, by many and tender ties, for thou art our Creator, Preserver, unwearied Benefactor. We would acknowledge thee in all thou hast enabled us to enjoy; and we would acknowledge thee in all thou hast brought us to suffer. Thou in wisdom gavest us life, and in kindness dost sustain us. All our springs are in thee. God of mercy and of grace, thy goodness is as wide as providence, and thy loving kindness is from age to age. May true gratitude be awakened in our souls.

We rejoice, merciful God, and thank thee, for the high rank we have in the scale of being; for the gift of rational and moral faculties; yet, above all, we magnify and bless thy holy name, for the inestimable gift of a Saviour; for the means of grace and the hope of glory. Praise be to God in the highest, for the gift of a Redeemer, who lived teaching us how to live; and died, opening beyond the grave the glories of immortality. For these, and for many unfelt blessings, Father, we thank thee.

But while we call to mind thy rich mercies to us, we would, with the deepest humiliation and penitence, confess we have abused thy multiplying favors. We have disregarded thine authority, and forgotten our obligations. We lament the coldness of our devotions; the insensibility of our hearts; the frequency of our sins. But, O Lord, we come through him, who died that we might live, and would devoutly pray thee to blot out our transgressions, and hereafter to receive us graciously, and love us freely. Lead us to that repentance which the Gospel requires.

And now, O God, our desires are before thee, that in future we may understand our religion and our duties more thoroughly. Give us to be more pure and holy, more wise and devout; more benevolent to our fellow men; more grateful and obedient to thee. May we have the new heart and the new life that Christ requires. Grant us therefore to have a more strong, lively and rational faith in our glorified Redeemer; a faith, that shall have an efficacy and a permanence. May it act in us, as a practical persuasion of christian truth, and a strong encouragement to a holy life. Renew us gracious God, in the temper of our minds, so that we may be able to put on Christ Jesus, to break down the power of our earth-born passions, and to walk as children of the light. Under a firm conviction of thine overruling Providence, may we live as seeing thee, who art invisible, and as acting in the presence of God; and may we be so pure in heart, that thy blessing and favor shall go with us through life; and thus, by faith in him who came to enlighten and save the world, may we receive the pardon of our sins; and through his resurrection, be raised at last to enjoy in heaven an eternity of increasing blessedness and glory.

O thou, who art the Father of all the families on earth; hear our earnest supplications, that the religion of thy Son may be extended over every region, and rule in every heart. May the solitary place be made glad, and the desert rejoice and blossom, and the earth be filled with the glory of the Lord. Be, in much mercy, with the ministers of the gospel, and may they preach Jesus Christ and him crucified, so as to make men wise to salvation.

And wilt thou who art the high and mighty Ruler of the universe, bless with thine all-powerful aid, our rulers; may they be indeed ministers of good. Give to them wisdom to perceive, and integrity to pursue, the measures most conducive to our best interests; and may we be that happy people, whose God is the Lord.

We pray for the sick, that thou wouldst be their great Physician; and for the afflicted, that thou wouldst give them that consolation which the world cannot give nor take away.

*

We would again commend ourselves to thee. Bow thine heavens, O Lord, and come down. Be in the midst of us to hear the prayers which we offer as the disciples of Jesus Christ; ascribing to thee, the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, praises everlasting. Amen.

PRAYER AFTER SERMON.

EVER living and ever blessed Lord our God! we again come to seek a parent's face and a parent's blessing. We would acknowledge our entire dependence on thee. We thank thee for the privileges of public worship; and wilt thou, who hast given us grace at this time, with one accord, to make our common supplications to thee, and hast promised, that where two or three are gathered together in thy Son's name, thou wilt grant their requests, fulfil, now, O Lord, the desires and petitions of thy servants, as may be most expedient for them; granting us in this world knowledge of thy truth, and in the world to come life everlasting. Amen.

BENEDICTION.

THE grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of his Holy Spirit, be with you all forever. Amen.

MORNING PRAYER FOR A SCHOOL.

GOD of the morning! we would raise our thoughts to thee, in adoration of thy perfections, and in thankful remembrance of thy goodness to the children of men. Every morning and every moment affords evidence of thy greatness, the glory and the benignity of thy character. Thou createdst all things, and for thy pleasure they were created. The heavens are thine; the earth also is thine; we ourselves are thy offspring, and we rejoice that we may address thee as our Father. Our natural and moral powers, and all our means of happiness and improvement, are the effects of thy paternal kindness. It is thou alone who makest us to dwell in safety, and to enjoy the blessings which thy goodness hath bestowed. Thou carest for all; thou blessest all. It is owing to thy protection and favor that we behold this day, with the advantages and pleasures which accompany it. And now that we are assembled here, we would commit ourselves to the direction of thy good providence. We pray for thy continued support and guidance. May we feel, as we ought, our dependence on thee; our constant and increasing obligations. May we remember that thine eye is never for a moment withdrawn from us; that thou art intimately acquainted with all that we do, with all that we say, and with all that we think. May this impression habitually influence us, and dispose us to give a right direction to all our powers.

Author of all good! let thy blessing rest upon these youths. Make them to go in the path of thy commandments. May they early acquaint themselves with thee, the God of their fathers. May they have correct sentiments of thy paternal character. Suffer them not to forget their duty to thee, who hast never forgotten to be good and merciful unto them. Suffer them not, Source of all good influences, to misuse their time, or to abuse their talents, by indulging in negligence, or in vicious and irregular habits. Keep them in thy fear. Let them not depart from innocence and virtue. May Jesus Christ be their chosen model. May they properly estimate and improve their advantages for gaining knowledge. May they be inspired with a generous and noble ardor to excel in what will make them wise, and useful, and happy. May they search for knowledge as a treasure of immense value. May they have that fear of thee, which is the instruction of wisdom. We pray that a meek, docile and humble spirit may mark their principles and character, and that thou wouldst keep them from the evil of sin. By their improvement in good learning, by the correctness of their morals, and by the habitual regularity of their deportment, may they be solicitous to gratify the desires, and hopes, and expectations of their parents and friends; and, especially, may they secure the approbation and acceptance of thee, their best friend and benefactor. God of truth, will it please thee to guide their feet in the way of truth and holiness, to make them instruments of much good in the world, and to prepare them all for that inheritance which can never be lost nor impaired. Hear us through Jesus Christ, our Redeemer and Advocate. Amen.

EVENING PRAYER FOR A SCHOOL.

FATHER in heaven! we thank thee for the pleasures and blessings of the day which is now drawing near its close. By thy care and kindness, another day has been allowed us for the pursuit of useful knowledge, and may we not be insensible of our increased obligations to love and serve thee, and to be faithful in the use of the talents, which thou hast given us. If any of us have this day been careless and inconsiderate; if we have misimproved or wasted these valuable hours; we pray thee to forgive us, on our sorrow for our faults. Let us consider our ways and be wise. May the young more fully appreciate their privileges, and by reflecting with regret on the time they may have thoughtlessly thrown away, may they be excited to unwearied attention for the future. Let those who are habitually industrious, who are frugal of their time, never grow weary in this way of well doing. May these youths wisely consider, that time is a treasure, which, if lost, can never be regained; and that the present time is all, of which they can promise themselves assured possession. May they be solicitous to perform what duty requires of them, and may they consider diligent application to their studies, as a duty not to be disregarded.

We thank thee, Source of wisdom and virtue, for the pleasures which are intimately associated with the improvement of the mind and heart. May each one present deserve, and, deserving, share these pleasures. And now that they are about to depart from this place, may they think seriously on the flight of time, that every day carries them nearer to the maturity of life, and to its closing scene; and may thoughts and reflections like these have powerful influence, in leading their thoughts to God, in promoting that sober mindedness and piety which are peculiarly ornamental in early life. God of mercy! have them, we beseech thee, in thy holy keeping. May Jesus Christ be in them the hope of glory. May their early impressions be such as will guard them against the allurements of vice, and against those evil communications which corrupt the heart and vitiate the morals.

God of our fathers! bless the parents of these youths. Make them faithful in the watching and instruction of their offspring. May they give them such wise counsel, and set before them such virtuous examples, that their children, by obedient lives and well ordered conversation, may be prepared for whatever shall await them here, and finally secure thy favor which is life, and thy loving kindness which is better than life.

O thou who art always ready to pardon the penitent, forgive us our sins. Forgive us that we so often disregard our duty and violate thy commands. May we be truly sorry for every thing that we have said, or thought, or done, which is offensive to thee; and hereafter let us deviate no more from the path of religious wisdom. May we remember thine eye is ever upon us, and that we are all accountable to thee. Having done thy will on earth, and finished the work assigned us, may we be prepared to partake in the felicities of the heavenly state, through Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

MORNING PRAYER FOR A SABBATH SCHOOL.

Our Father who art in heaven! we thank thee for preserving us to another holy Sabbath. Thou givest all things; thou doest all things; thou governest all things; thou knowest all we think; thou seest all we do; and thou hearest all our prayers. As the disciples of Jesus Christ, we would now worship thee in spirit and in truth. Our various blessings come from thee;—we are in health, while others are sick; we are alive, while others are dead; we have food to eat and raiment to put on, while others are suffering with want. We would feel gratitude to thee for our parents and friends; for our health and strength; for the means of instruction; for the holy Bible; for the christian Sabbath; and for public worship. For all these methods of preparing us for heaven, Holy Father! we thank thee.

Thou hast promised that the children of thy church shall be taught of God. We now anxiously ask thy blessing upon this school. Give to the instructors the spirit of kindness, diligence and piety, so that as fellow-workers with thee they may impart to these pupils the principles of good learning and pure religion. Especially bless these youth. Take them to thy peculiar care. Are any of them without parents, wilt thou be the Father of the fatherless ; are any in need, wilt thou supply their wants ; are any discouraged, wilt thou give them hope ; and are any accustomed to vice, wilt thou reclaim them. Engage them early to love thee with all their hearts and to be kindly affectioned one to another, remembering the holy child Jesus, who, as he increased in stature, increased also in favor with God and man. Create in them, we entreat thee, a strong thirst after religious knowledge. May they lift up their voice for understanding, and search for it as silver, and seek it as the most precious treasure. May they attend to their instructions at this time with inquiring minds, and consider religion as the best ornament of their age. O God ! take possession of their hearts ; defend them from all the snares and temptations, the pollution and defilements of the world ; and let thy good spirit root out all sinful affections from their hearts, and sow the incorruptible seed of thy grace, that they may be partakers of thy divine nature and bring forth in their lives the fruits of righteousness and true holiness.

Almighty God ! Bless the several families to which these children belong ; and may every house be a house of prayer, and every heart an altar to thee.

Prepare us all for the sacred instructions of the sanctuary. While in the house of God, may we possess serious minds, penitent hearts, and pure devotion; and by these services on earth may we be made fit for the higher services of thy heavenly temple, which we ask through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

EVENING PRAYER FOR A SABBATH SCHOOL.

ALMIGHTY and eternal God! we approach thy mercy-seat in the name of him whom thou hearest always. Thine eye that looks upon all things, is this moment fixed upon us. We thank thee for the instruction of another Sabbath. Let thy divine blessing follow the ministrations of the sanctuary. What gratitude ought we to feel, that thou hast made us capable of knowing, loving and worshipping thee! Thou hast given us more understanding than the beasts of the field, and made us wiser than the fowls of the air. They know thee not; they love thee not; they cannot speak thy praises;—but we can raise our thoughts to heaven, we can worship the Lord our God; we can ask thee to make us wiser and better every day, to enable us to serve thee while we live, and to receive us into heaven when we die.

Eternal Father ! Without thy grace all our wisdom is folly, and without thy help all our efforts are vain. Give divine efficacy to the religious lessons which have now been dispensed. May the instructors be encouraged by the success of their labors ; and so inform the minds, amend the hearts, and cherish the best affections of their pupils, that they shall be a generation to serve thee. Send down thy heavenly grace upon the hearts of these children. May they remember thee their Creator in the days of their youth, and give to thee their affections. Thou knowest how long they are to live ; we earnestly pray that they may become religious children, — and when they recollect that Jesus Christ came into the world to labor, and suffer, and die for them, may his love engage them to love him again. May they study his blessed gospel, imbibe his divine spirit, and copy his spotless example. May they never think, or say, or do, what Christ forbids. May they carefully shun whatever is offensive in thy sight ; all wicked words and actions ; whatever is profane or immodest in language ; whatever is unkind or revengeful in temper ; and whatever is false or deceitful in practice. Protect them, O God ! from vicious companions and bad examples ;—rescue them from every danger ; save them from every sin, and keep them from the evil there is in the world. May all remember the shortness of life, the certainty of death, and the solemnity of their final judgment.

Lord of life! as we are now about to separate, we ask thy protection. Before we go to rest this night, may we give up our souls to thee in prayer, and wilt thou refresh us for the duties of the coming day; and may we all live as we shall wish we had done when we come to die. We offer our prayers through Jesus Christ, our Lord and Redeemer, ascribing to thee all glory forever. Amen.

FUNERAL PRAYER.

O THOU, who livest whilst mortals die; who alone possessest independent immortality;—Eternal God! we bow before thee as the Supreme Disposer of all events. Believing that nothing can come to pass through the whole extent of thy works without thy knowledge and influence, we desire to learn well the lesson thou art now teaching us. Thou doest thy will in the armies of heaven above, and among the inhabitants of the earth below. None can stay thine hand, or say unto thee, What doest thou?

Thou hast been pleased, in great wisdom and in awful justice, to appoint unto all men once to die, and after death, the judgment. Thou hast said to the whole human race, Dust ye are, and to dust ye shall return. Grant that when we see this awful sentence put into execution, when we are conveying our friends, relations, or acquaintance to the silent grave; we may be seriously reminded of our own mortality, and thereby be excited to work the work of thee our God, while it is day, since the night of death is coming, in which no man can work.

O may we remember that now is the accepted time, and now is the day of our salvation. May our lives be those of the righteous, and our last end be like his; and when our turn shall come to enter this house, appointed for all the living, may we have in our mouths the triumphant song of the Christian, O death! where is thy sting? O grave! where is thy victory?

Thanks be to God, who hath given us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Thanks be to God, who hath begotten us to the lively hope of immortality in his Son. Thanks be to God, that death could not retain the Saviour, but that a power stronger than death, a power higher than nature, raised him from the dead, thereby establishing our hope. Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God. Glory be to thee in the highest, that life and immortality are now brought to light; and that we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Thou hast taught us, O Lord! by reason, experience and revelation, that our life on earth is a pilgrimage, a state of trial, discipline and preparation. This is but the road that conducts to a higher destination. Here we cannot do and become what, according to our capacities, we are capable of doing and becoming. Thou hast reserved a future state of action as the scene to develop our immortal energies. Here we can enjoy no pure satisfaction, no unmingled glory. Here all is subject to inconstancy and death. Here we have no abiding city, no secured possession, no lasting rest. Here all is rather means than ends, rather sowing than reaping, rather preparation than enjoyment, rather commencement than completion. Here, O Father! thou hast placed us at school, and we are here schooling for eternity. To acquire a proficiency in wisdom, piety and holiness, is thy great requisition from us. To this tend all our wants and connections, our business and our struggles, our miscarriages and success. In view of this discipline, we do now anxiously pray, that every lot and incident in our lives may make us wiser, holier and happier. May we connect every thing here with every thing hereafter. May we feel that we pursue life under the governance and protection of thee, an almighty Benefactor; and that thy dispensations must end in happiness. Under this firm persuasion, may we pursue the duties and bear the sorrows of our earthly pilgrimage; and through the influence of Christ's example, finish the work thou hast sent each one of us to do.

Unchangeable God! in the awful presence of death, we feel our entire dependence on thee; and while we witness that the glory of man passeth away as the flower of the grass; we feel the value of the assurance that thy word shall never pass away. Thou remainest to the living and the dead, the same God; the Protector and Father of all; faithfully keeping those whom thou takest away, and offering consolation to those who are left. To whom but thee shall we address ourselves in this hour of our sorrow.

Sanctify, O Lord, we beseech thee, this bereaving dispensation of thy providence, to those from whom thou hast taken a near relative by death. O may they be comforted in this day of affliction, by the consolations of religion. May they remember that thou knowest when it is best to call thy children to thyself; and that thy chastisements are chastisements of love. May they, and may we, consider this instance of mortality, as a friendly admonition to us, to be also ready.

Lord of life! we would now commit this body to the ground; earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust; looking for the general resurrection in the last day, and the life of the world to come, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Father of mercies! while thou art continuing us here, we would cultivate an habitual resignation to thy holy will; believing thou art all wisdom in thyself, all goodness toward thy creatures. Having our hearts thus fixed, stayed upon thee, may we be prepared to meet all the events of life with devout composure; and prepared to follow those who have gone before us.

O may we have a firm confidence in thee, the Rock of ages, the resting place of all generations; and be always disposed to say, Not our wills, but thine, be done.— The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.

Holy Father! may we pass the rest of our time in thy fear and love; and when called to lie down in the grave, may we lie down in christian hope, and when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, O may we hear the welcome invitation of the Saviour,— Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Hear us, O God, through him who died that we might live; through whom to thee be glory and dominion forever. Amen.

SELECTION OF HYMNS.

THE FOLLOWING SELECTION OF HYMNS WAS MADE AT THE REQUEST OF A FRIEND.

L. L. M.

A Morning Hymn.

- 1 AWAKE, my soul! and with the sun
Thy daily stage of duty run;
Shake off dull sloth, and joyful rise
To pay thy morning sacrifice.
- 2 By influence of the light divine,
Let thine own light to others shine;
Reflect all heaven's propitious rays,
In ardent love and cheerful praise.
- 3 Lord! I my vows to thee renew,
Scatter my sins as morning dew;
Guard my first springs of thought and will,
And with thyself my spirit fill.
- 4 Direct, control, suggest this day,
All I design, or do, or say;
That all my powers, with all their might,
In thy sole glory may unite.
- 5 All praise to thee who safe has kept,
And hast refreshed me while I slept;
Grant, O Lord! when I from death shall wake,
I may of endless life partake.

The Example of Christ.

- 1 AND is the Gospel peace and love ?
So let our conversation be :
The serpent blended with the dove,
Wisdom and meek simplicity.
- 2 Whene'er the angry passions rise,
And tempt our thoughts or tongues to strife,
On Jesus let us fix our eyes,
Bright pattern of the Christian life !
- 3 O how benevolent and kind !
How mild ! how ready to forgive !
Be his the temper of our mind,
And his the rules by which we live.
- 4 To do his heavenly Father's will
Was his employment and delight :
Humility and holy zeal
Shone through his life divinely bright !
- 5 Dispensing good where'er he came,
The labors of his life were love ;
Then if we bear the Saviour's name,
By his example let us move.

Christ risen, and Death vanquished.

- 1 ANGEL, roll the rock away !
Death, yield up thy mighty prey !
See, he rises from the tomb,
Glowing in immortal bloom ! Hallelujah !
- 2 Shout, ye saints, in rapturous song,
Let the notes be sweet and strong ;
Hail the son of God, this morn
From his sepulchre new-born !

- 3 Powers of heaven, celestial choirs,
Sing, and sweep your sounding lyres !
Sons of men, in joyful strain,
Hail your mighty Saviour's reign !
- 4 Every note with rapture swell,
And the Saviour's triumph tell :
Where, O death, is now thy sting ?
Where thy terrors, vanquished king ?

Candor.

- 1 ALL-SEEING God ! 't is thine to know
The springs whence wrong opinions flow ;
To judge, from principles within,
When frailty errs, and when we sin.
- 2 Who among men, great Lord of all !
Thy servant to his bar shall call ;
Judge him for modes of faith, thy foe,
And doom him to the realms of wo ?
- 3 Who with another's eye can read,
Or worship by another's creed ?
Trusting thy grace, we form our own,
And bow to thy commands alone.
- 4 If wrong, correct ; accept, if right ;
While faithful we improve our light,— Condemning none, but zealous still
To learn and follow all thy will.
- 5 When shall our happy eyes behold
All Christians fashioned in thy mould ;
And charity our lineage prove
Derived from thee, O God of love !

Zeal and Vigor in the Christian Race Phil iii. 12—14.

- 1 AWAKE, my soul ! stretch every nerve,
And press with vigor on ;
A heavenly race demands thy zeal,
And an immortal crown.
- 2 A cloud of witnesses around
Hold thee in full survey ;
Forget the steps already trod,
And onward urge thy way.
- 3 'T is God's all-animating voice
That calls me from on high ;
'T is his own hand presents the prize
To thine aspiring eye ;—
- 4 That prize, with peerless glories bright,
Which shall new lustre boast,
When victors' wreaths and monarchs' gems
Shall blend in common dust.
- 5 My soul, with all thy wakened powers,
Survey the immortal prize ;
Nor let the glittering toys of earth
Allure thy wandering eyes.

On the Death of a Child.

- 1 As the sweet flower which scents the morn,
But withers in the rising day,
Thus lovely seem'd the infant's dawn !
Thus swiftly fled his life away !
- 2 Ere sin could blight, or sorrow fade,
Death timely came with friendly care ;
The opening bud to heaven conveyed,
And bade it bloom forever there.

- 3 Yet the sad hour that took the boy
 Perhaps has spared a heavier doom,
 Snatched him from scenes of guilty joy,
 Or from the pangs of ills to come.
- 4 He died before his infant soul
 Had ever burned with wrong desire ;
 Had ever spurned at Heaven's control,
 Or ever quenched its sacred fire.
- 5 He died to sin, he died to care ;
 But for a moment felt the rod ;
 Then springing on the viewless air,
 Spread his light wings, and soared to God.

Trust amidst trials.

- 1 As on the world I gaze with fearful eye,
 And mark the vast expanse to wander through,
 My full heart heaves with many a deep drawn sigh,
 And almost trembles at the awful view.
- 2 Where lies my path amid this wondrous waste,
 Hung with dark clouds, or circled with serene ?
 What is the bourne to which I daily haste ?
 What the dread changes of the future scene ?
- 3 Lost in the mists of dark futurity,
 Forever hid from my unbidden gaze,
 They rest, Almighty One !—they rest with Thee :
 Wise and inscrutable are all thy ways.
- 4 The humble creature thou hast deigned to make,
 Here also rests. Thy mercies I have proved ;
 Deep in this heart a holy trust they wake,
 To bid me bear the ills of life unmoved.
- 5 Vain terrors, peace !—Go spirit mailed in worth,
 Hallowed, not injured, by the trials given,

And look upon the varied woes of earth,
But as the pains which purify for heaven.

The Seaman's Prayer.

- 1 ALMIGHTY Ruler of the skies,
How various are thy works ! how wise !
Thy power throughout all space extends,
Sinks thro' all depth, all height transcends !
- 2 Not earth alone beholds her shores
Enriched by thy exhaustless stores ;
Alike, throughout their liquid reign,
The spreading seas thy gifts contain ;
- 3 On high, the concave we behold
In living blue, or sparkling gold ;
Whilst waving, azure fields around
Spread to th' horizon's utmost bound.
- 4 The winds and waves obey thy will ;
The needle owes thy power and skill ;
And, steered by thy directing hand,
Our bark shall gain the wished-for land.

Holy Resolution.

- 1 AH, wretched souls, who strive in vain !
Slaves to the world, and slaves to sin !
A nobler toil may I sustain,
A nobler satisfaction win.
- 2 I would resolve with all my heart,
With all my powers to serve the Lord ;
Nor from his precepts e'er depart,
Whose service is a rich reward.

- 3 O be his service all my joy !
 Around let my example shine ;
 Till others love the bless'd employ,
 And join in labors so divine.
- 4 Be this the purpose of my soul,
 My solemn, my determined choice,
 To yield to his supreme control,
 And in his kind commands rejoice.
- 5 O may I never faint nor tire,
 Nor wander from thy sacred ways !
 Great God, accept my soul's desire,
 And give me strength to live thy praise.

Temptation without and within.

- 1 AWAKE, my soul, lift up thine eyes,
 See how thy foes against thee rise,
 In long array, a numerous host ;
 Awake, my soul, or thou art lost !
- 2 See how rebellious passions rage,
 And fierce desires and lusts engage ;
 See pleasure's silken banner spread,
 And willing souls are captive led !
- 3 I tread upon enchanted ground,
 Perils and snares beset me round ;
 O let me then guard every part ;
 But most, the traitor in my heart !
- 4 O teach thy servant how to wield,
 Blest Saviour, thy immortal shield ;
 Put on thy armor from above,
 Of heavenly truth and heavenly love.
- 5 The terror and the charm repel,
 The smiles of earth, the frowns of hell ;
 The tempter once thou didst subdue ;
 O make me more than conqueror too !

Support in Death. — Ps. xxiii.

- 1 Behold the gloomy vale,
Which thou, my soul! must tread,
Beset with terrors fierce and pale,
That leads thee to the dead.
- 2 Ye pleasing scenes, adieu!
Which I so long have known;
My friends, a long farewell to you!
For I must pass alone.
- 3 But see! a ray of light,
With splendor all divine,
Breaks through these dreary realms of night,
And makes its horrors shine.
- 4 Where death, where darkness reigns,
Jehovah is my stay;
His rod my trembling feet sustains,
His staff defends my way.
- 5 Great Shepherd! lead me on;
My soul disdains to fear;
Death's gloomy phantoms all are flown,
Now life's great Lord is near.

The Reunion of virtuous Friends after Death.

- 1 BLESS'D hour, when virtuous friends shall meet,
Shall meet to part no more,
And with celestial welcome greet,
On an immortal shore.
- 2 The parent finds the long-lost child;
Brothers on brothers gaze;
The tear of resignation mild
Is changed to joy and praise.

- 3 Each tender tie, dissolved with pain,
 With endless bliss is crowned;
 All that was dead, revives again;
 All that was lost, is found.
- 4 And while remembrance, lingering still,
 Draws joy from sorrowing hours;
 New prospects rise, new pleasures fill
 The soul's expanded powers.
- 5 Congenial minds, arrayed in light,
 High thoughts shall interchange;
 Nor cease with ever new delight,
 On wings of love to range.
- 6 Their Father marks their generous flame,
 And looks complacent down;
 The smile that owns their filial claim
 Is their immortal crown.

To-morrow.

- 1 BOAST not thyself of days to come,
 Nor cherish present sorrow;
 Know thou art hastening to the tomb,
 And thine is not to-morrow.
- 2 The present day thy Maker gives,
 Not future cares to borrow;—
 Know God is good, and ever lives;
 To him belongs to-morrow.
- 3 Kindred and friends around thee die;
 Rank after rank they follow!
 Thy moments too how quick they fly—
 Thou mayst be gone to-morrow!
- 4 Vain are the projects mortals form;
 With toil their brows they furrow;
 Unlooked for comes a ruthless storm,
 And blights their promised morrow.

- 5 Life passes like a tale that's told,
 And days fly like an arrow;
 Whate'er of earthly good we hold
 May all take wing to-morrow!
- 6 But though man dies and turns to dust,
 For this why should we sorrow?
 God will restore to life the just,
 And give a blissful morrow.

The Autumn Evening.

- 1 BEHOLD the western evening light!
 It melts in deep'ning gloom;
 So calmly christians sink away,
 Descending to the tomb.
- 2 The winds breathe low, — the withering leaf
 Scarce whispers from the tree!
 So gently flows the parting breath,
 When good men cease to be.
- 3 How beautiful on all the hills
 The crimson light is shed!
 'T is like the peace the christian gives
 To mourners round his bed.
- 4 How mildly on the wandering cloud,
 The sunset beam is cast!
 'T is like the memory left behind
 When loved ones breathe their last.
- 5 And now above the dews of night
 The yellow star appears!
 So faith springs in the hearts of those Whose eyes are bathed in tears.
- 6 But soon the morning's happier light
 Its glory shall restore;
 And eyelids that are sealed in death
 Shall wake to close no more.

Fidelity to our Saviour.

- 1 CAN I forsake that gracious friend,
On whom my noblest hopes depend?
Forbid it, from my wand'ring heart
His cherished image e'er should part!
- 3 First let the wheels of life stand still,
Ere I forget his righteous will;
Ere I submit to guilty shame,
And bring dishonor on his name.
- 3 Faithful to him and to his laws,
With zeal would I maintain his cause,
The cause of truth and righteousness,
Midst trial, suff'ring and distress.
- 4 If bonds or death obstruct my way,
Unmoved, their terrors I'll survey;
And the last hours improve for thee,
The last of life or liberty.
- 5 Welcome those bonds which may unite
My soul to him, its guide and light;
Welcome that death whose painful strife
Bears me to Christ, my better life.

Christ's Invitation. — Matt. xi. 28.

- 1 COME! said Jesus' sacred voice;
Come, and make my paths your choice;
I will guide you to your home;
Weary pilgrim, hither come!
- 2 Thou, who houseless, sole, forlorn,
Long hast borne the proud world's scorn,
Long hast roamed the barren waste,
Weary pilgrim, hither haste!

19*

- 3 Ye, who tossed on beds of pain,
 Seek for ease, but seek in vain ;
 Ye, whose swollen and sleepless eyes
 Watch to see the morning rise ;
- 4 Ye, by fiercer anguish torn,
 In remorse for guilt who mourn,
 Here repose your heavy care ;
 Who the stings of guilt can bear !
- 5 Sinner, come ! for here is found
 Balm that flows for every wound ;
 Peace that ever shall endure,
 Rest eternal, sacred, sure.

On the Death of a Child at Day-break.

“Let me go, for the day breaketh.” — Gen. xxxii. 36.

- 1 CEASE here longer to detain me,
 Kindest mother, drowned in woe,
 Now thy kind caresses pain me ;
 Morn advances, — let me go.
- 2 See yon orient streak appearing !
 Harbinger of endless day ;
 Hark ! a voice, the darkness cheering,
 Calls my new-born soul away !
- 3 Lately launched, a trembling stranger,
 On this world's wild boisterous flood,
 Exposed to pains and tossed with danger,
 Gladly I return to God.
- 4 Now my cries shall cease to grieve thee,
 Now my trembling heart find rest ;
 Kinder arms than thine receive me,
 Softer pillow than thy breast.
- 5 Weep not o'er these eyes that languish,
 Upward turning toward their home ;

Raptured they'll forget all anguish,
While they wait to see thee come.

- 6 There, my mother, pleasures centre ; —
Weeping, parting, care, or wo
Ne'er our Father's house shall enter —
Morn advances — let me go.
- 7 As, through this calm and holy dawning,
Silent glides my parting breath
To an everlasting morning —
Gently close my eyes in death.
- 8 Blessings, endless, richest blessings,
Pour their streams upon thy heart !
(Though no language yet possessing) Breathes my spirit ere we part.
- 9 Yet to leave thee sorrowing rends me,
Now again his voice I hear ;
Rise ! may every grace attend thee ;
Rise, and seek to meet me there.

The pleasures of Religion.

- 1 COME, ye who love the Lord !
And let your joys be known ;
Join in a song with sweet accord,
And thus surround his throne.
- 2 The sorrows of the mind
Be banished from this place !
Religion never was designed
To make your pleasures less.
- 3 God, your eternal Friend,
No present good denies ;
And when the scenes of time shall end,
Will call you to the skies.

- 4 There shall you see his face,
 And never, never sin ;
 There, from the rivers of his grace,
 Drink endless pleasures in.
- 5 The sons of God have found
 Glory begun below ;
 Celestial fruits on earthly ground,
 From faith and hope may grow.
- 6 Then let our sorrows cease,
 And every tear be dry ;
 We 're travelling through the paths of peace
 To fairer worlds on high.

"This do in remembrance of me." — 1 Cor. x. 24.

- 1 "EAT, drink, in memory of your friend!"
 Such was our Master's last request ;
 Who all the pangs of death endured,
 That we might live forever blessed.
- 2 Yes, we 'll record thy matchless love,
 Thou dearest, tenderest, best of Friends !
 Thy dying love, the noblest praise
 Our hearts can offer thee, transcends.
- 3 'T is pleasure more than earth can give Thy goodness through these veils to see ;
 Thy table food celestial yields,
 And happy they who sit with thee.

The only living and true God. — Ps. 86.

- 1 ETERNAL God, almighty Cause
 Of earth and sea and worlds unknown ;
 All things are subject to thy laws,
 All things depend on thee alone.

- 2 Thy glorious being singly stands,
Of all within itself possess ;
Controlled by none are thy commands ;
Thou from thyself alone art blest.
- 3 To thee alone ourselves we owe,
To thee alone our homage pay ;
All other gods we disavow,
Deny their claims, renounce their sway.
- 4 In thee, O Lord, our hope shall rest,
Fountain of peace and joy and love !
Thy favor only makes us blest ;
Without thee, all would nothing prove.
- 5 Worship to thee alone belongs,
Worship to thee alone we give ;
Thine be our hearts and thine our songs,
And to thy glory we would live.
- 6 Spread thy great name through heathen lands,
Their idol deities dethrone ;
Subdue the world to thy commands,
And reign, as thou art, God alone.

Joy and Gratitude.

- 1 ETERNAL Love ! how large the sum,
Of blessings from thy hand ;
To banish sorrow and be blest
Is thy supreme command.
- 2 Joy is our duty, glory, health,
The sunshine of the soul ;
The best return that we can make
To him who plans the whole. YOUNG.
- 3 Whatever, Lord, of earthly bliss,
Thy sovereign will denies,
Accepted at thy throne of grace,
Let this petition rise :

4 Give me a calm, a thankful heart,
 From every murmur free ;
 The blessings of thy grace impart,
 And make me live to thee.

5 Let the blest hope that thou art mine
 My life and death attend !
 Thy presence through my journey shine,
 And crown my journey's end.

Divine goodness.

- 1 ETERNAL Source of every joy !
 Well may thy praise our lips employ ;
 Whilst in thy temple we appear,
 Thy goodness crowns the circling year.
- 2 Wide as the earth and planets roll,
 Thy hand supports and cheers the whole :
 By thee the sun is taught to rise,
 And darkness when to veil the skies.
- 3 The flowery spring, at thy command,
 Embalms the air and paints the land ;
 The summer rays with vigor shine,
 To raise the corn and cheer the vine.
- 4 Seasons and months and weeks and days
 Demand successive hymns of praise ;
 Still be the cheerful homage paid,
 With morning light and evening shade.
- 5 O may our more harmonious tongues,
 In worlds unknown pursue the songs,
 And in those brighter courts adore,
 Where days and years revolve no more.

Secret Devotion. — Matt. vi. 6.

- 1 FATHER Divine! thy piercing eye
Looks through the shades of night;
In deep retirement thou art nigh
With heart-discerning sight.
- 2 There shall that piercing eye survey
My duteous homage paid,
With every morning's dawning ray,
And every evening's shade.
- 3 I'll leave behind each earthly care;
To thee my soul shall soar;
While grateful praise and fervent prayer
Employ the silent hour.
- 4 So shall the Sun in smiles arise;
The day shall close in peace;
So wilt thou train me for the skies,
Where joy shall never cease.

Paraphrase of the Lord's Prayer.

- 1 FATHER of all! Eternal God!
Supremely good and great!
Thy children formed and blessed by thee,
Approach thy heavenly seat.
- 2 Thy name in hallowed strains be sung;
We join the solemn praise;
To thy great name, with heart and tongue,
Our cheerful homage raise.
- 3 Thy mild, thy wise and righteous reign,
Let every being own;
And in our minds, thy work divine,
Erect thy gracious throne.

- 4 As angels in the heavenly worlds
Thy blessed commands fulfil,
So may thy creatures here below
Perform thy holy will.
- 5 On thee we day by day depend,
And on thy care rely ;
Give us each day our daily bread,
And every want supply.
- 6 Extend thy grace to every fault ;
O let thy love forgive !
Teach us divine forgiveness too,
Nor let resentments live.
- 7 Where tempting snares bestrew the way,
Permit us not to tread ;
And threatening evils, Lord avert
From our unguarded head.
- 8 Thy sacred name we thus adore,
With cheerful, humble mind ;
And praise thy goodness, power, and truth,
Eternal, unconfined !

The Universal Prayer.

- 1 FATHER of all ! whose cares extend
To earth's remotest shore !
Through every age let praise ascend ;
Let every clime adore.
- 2 What conscience dictates to be done,
Or warns me not to do,
This, teach me more than death to shun,
That, more than life pursue.
- 3 If I am right, thy grace impart,
Still in the right to stay ;
If I am wrong, O teach my heart
To find the better way !

- 4 Save me alike from foolish pride,
Or impious discontent ;
At aught thy wisdom has denied,
Or aught thy goodness lent.
- 5 Teach me to feel another's wo,
To hide the faults I see ;
That mercy I to others show,
That mercy show to me.
- 6 This day, be bread and peace my lot ;
But all beneath the sun,
Thou know'st if best bestowed or not ;
And let thy will be done.
- 7 To thee, whose temple is all space,
Whose altar, earth, sea, skies,
One chorus let all beings raise,
All nature's incense rise !

The excellency of the Holy Scriptures.

- 1 FATHER of mercies ! in thy word
What endless glory shines !
Forever be thy name adored,
For these celestial lines !
- 2 Here may the wretched sons of want Exhaustless riches find ;
Riches above what earth can grant,
And lasting as the mind.
- 3 Here, the fair tree of knowledge grow
And yields a free repast ;
Sublimier sweets than nature knows,
Invite the longing taste.
- 4 Here, springs of consolation rise,
To cheer the fainting mind ;
And thirsty souls receive supplies,
And sweet refreshment find.

- 5 O may thy Gospel ever be
 Our study and delight ;
 And still new beauties may we see,
 And still increasing light !

The Parent's Prayer.

- 1 FATHER of all, whose sovereign will Hath called thy servant to fulfil
 The parent's tender part !
 With gifts and graces from above,
 With calmest care, and wisest love,
 Instruct my simple heart.
- 2 O may I every moment see
 The end for which alone to me
 Thou hast my children given !
 A blessed instrument divine,
 Through thee to make and keep them thine,
 And train them up for heaven.
- 3 My first concern their souls to rear,
 And, principled with godly fear,
 In virtue's paths to lead ;
 The hunger after thee excite,
 And stir them up with all their might
 To seek their living bread.
- 4 Thou, Lord ! my every wish prevent,
 And guard whom thou to me hast lent,
 And guide them by thine eye ;
 Conduct — or to thyself receive :
 O let them to thy glory live,
 Or innocently die !

Family Duties and Blessings.— Gen. xviii. 19.

- 1 FATHER of men ! thy care we bless,
Which crowns our families with peace ;
From thee they sprung, and by thy hand
Their root and branches are sustained.
- 2 To God, most worthy to be praised,
Be our domestic altars raised ;
Though Lord of heaven he deigns to dwell
With saints in their obscurest cell.
- 3 To him let each united house,
Morning and night present its vows :
Our servants there, and rising race,
Be taught his precepts and his grace.
- 4 Then shall the charms of wedded love
Still more delightful blessings prove ;
And parents' hearts shall overflow,
With joys that parents only know.
- 5 O may each future age proclaim
The honors of thy glorious name ;
While pleased and thankful, we remove
To join the family above !

Prudence.

- 1 FATHER of light ! conduct my feet
Through life's dark dangerous road ;
Let each advancing step still bring Me nearer to my God.
- 2 Let heaven-eyed prudence be my guide,
And when I go astray,
Recall my feet from folly's path,
To wisdom's better way.
- 3 Teach me in every varied scene
To keep my end in sight ;

And whilst I tread life's mazy track,
Let wisdom guide me right.

- 4 That heavenly wisdom from above
Abundantly impart;
And let it guard, and guide, and warm,
And penetrate my heart;
- 5 Till it shall lead me to thyself,
Fountain of bliss and love;
And all my darkness be dispersed,
In endless light above.

The Lord's Prayer.

- 1 FATHER! and is thy table spread?
And does thy cup with love o'erflow?
Thither be all thy children led,
And let them all its sweetness know.
- 2 O let thy table honored be,
And furnished well with joyful guests;
And may each soul salvation see,
That here its sacred pledges tastes.
- 3 Let crowds approach, with hearts prepared;
With warm desire let all attend;
Nor, when we leave our Father's board,
The pleasure or the profit end.
- 4 Revive thy dying churches, Lord!
And bid our drooping graces live;
And more that energy afford,
A Saviour's death alone can give.
- 5 Nor let thy spreading gospel rest,
Till through the world thy truth has run,
Till with this bread all men be blest,
Who see the light or feel the sun!

Prayer of youthful resignation and faith.

- 1 Frail though my young devotions be,
I humbly dare look up to thee,
My Father, and my God!
For I have felt affection's power,
And yet in sorrow's darkest hour,
Have marked a parent's rod.

- 2 I pray not for this world's vain hope,
The soul desires a larger scope,
Destined to live forever ;
I ask not many years to live,
But that in those thou will'st to give,
I may forget thee never.

- 3 In every varying moment still May my whole duty be thy will ;
And may I meet each trial
With fortitude resigned and pure,
A spirit anchored to endure,
And holy self-denial.

An Evening Hymn.

- 1 GLORY to thee, my God! this night,
For all the blessings of the light ;
Keep me, O keep me! King of kings!
Beneath thine own almighty wings.

- 2 Forgive me, Lord! through thy dear Son,
The ill that I this day have done,
That with the world, myself, and thee,
I, e'er I sleep, at peace may be.

- 3 O may my soul on thee repose,
And with sweet sleep mine eyelids close ;
Sleep that shall me more vigorous make
To serve my God when I awake.

- 4 Praise God from whom all blessings flow !
 Praise him, all creatures here below !
 Praise him above, ye heavenly choir !
 O may his praise my soul inspire !

Penitential.

- 1 God of mercy ! God of love !
 Hear our sad, repentant songs ;
 Listen to thy suppliant race,
 Thou to whom all grace belongs !
- 2 Deep regret for follies past,
 Talents wasted, time misspent ;
 Hearts debased by worldly cares,
 Thankless for the blessings lent ;
- 3 Foolish fears and fond desires,
 Vain regrets for things as vain ;
 Lips too seldom taught to praise,
 Oft to murmur and complain ;
- 4 These, and every secret fault,
 Filled with grief and shame we own ;
 Humbled at thy feet we bow,
 Seeking pardon from thy throne.
- 5 God of mercy ! God of grace !
 Hear our sad repentant songs ;
 O restore thy suppliant race,
 Thou to whom all grace belongs !

Steadfastness and Watchfulness implored.

- 1 GREAT God ! my Father and my Friend,
 On whom I cast my constant care,
 On whom for all things I depend !
 To thee I raise my humble prayer.

- 2 Endue me with a holy fear;
The frailty of my heart reveal;
Sin and its snares are always near,
Thee may I always nearer feel.
- 3 O that to thee my constant mind
May with a steady flame aspire;
Pride in its earliest motions find,
And check the rise of wrong desire!
- 4 O that my watchful soul may fly
The first perceived approach of sin;
Look up to thee when danger's nigh,
And feel thy fear control within!
- 5 Search, Gracious God! my inmost heart:
From guilt and error set me free;
Thy light and truth and peace impart,
And guide me safe to heaven and thee.

Goodness of God.

- 1 GOD is good! Each perfumed flower,
The smiling fields, the dark green wood,
The insect fluttering for an hour,—
All things proclaim, that — God is good.
- 2 I hear it in the rushing wind;
Hills that have for ages stood,
And clouds, with gold and silver lined,
Are still repeating — God is good.
- 3 Each little rill that many a year
Has the same verdant path pursued,
And every bird, in accents clear,
Repeats the song, that — God is good.
- 4 The restless main, with haughty roar,
And each wild wave, and billow rude,

Retreats submissive from the shore,
And joins the chorus — God is good.

- 5 Unnumbered hosts of twinkling stars,
Which do the keenest sight elude,
The rising sun each day declares
In rays of glory — God is good.
- 6 The moon that walks in brightness, says,
That God is good — and man, endued
With power to speak his Maker's praise,
Should still repeat, that — GOD IS GOOD.

Benevolence.

- 1 HAIL, love divine! joys ever new,
While thy kind dictates we pursue,
Our souls delighted share;
Too high for sordid minds to know,
Who on themselves alone bestow
Their wishes and their care.
- 2 By thee inspired, the generous breast,
In blessing others only blessed,
With kindness large and free,
Delights the widow's tears to stay,
To teach the blind their smoothest way,
And aid the feeble knee.
- 3 O God! with sympathetic care,
In other's joys and griefs to share,
Do thou our hearts incline.
Each low, each selfish wish control,
Warm with benevolence the soul,
And make us wholly thine.

Advantages of early Religion.

- 1 HAPPY is he whose early years
 Receive instruction well ;
 Who hates the sinner's path, and fears
 The road that leads to hell.
- 2 For youth devoted to the Lord,
 Is pleasing in his eyes ;
 A flower when offered in the bud,
 Is no vain sacrifice.
- 3 'T is easier work, if we begin
 To fear the Lord betimes ;
 While sinners who grow old in sin,
 Are hardened in their crimes.
- 4 It saves us from a thousand snares
 To mind religion young ;
 With joy it crowns succeeding years,
 And makes our virtue strong.
- 5 To thee, almighty God ! to thee
 Our hearts we now resign ;
 'T will please us to look back and see
 That our whole lives were thine.
- 6 O may the work of prayer and praise
 Employ our daily breath !
 Thus we're prepared for future days,
 Or fit for early death.

The Beatitudes. — Matt. v. 3—12.

- 1 HAPPY the unrepining poor ;
 For them the heavenly rest is sure,
 Whose patient minds, in every ill,
 Submissive meet their Maker's will.

- 2 Happy the contrite, who lament
Their wasted hours in sin misspent ;
Reclaimed from sin, they shall obtain
Eternal joys for transient pain.
- 3 Happy the meek, by wisdom taught
To check each proud resentful thought ;
For them earth spreads the feast of life,
Unmixed with bitterness or strife.
- 4 Happy the souls that grow in grace,
Hunger and thirst for righteousness ;
For them a full and rich supply
Shall be prepared in worlds on high.
- 5 Happy the men who mercy show
To all that need, or friend or foe ;
To them like mercy shall be shown,
When God's just sentence all shall own.
- 6 Happy the pure in heart ! for they Still holding on in virtue's way,
When faith and hope are changed to sight,
Shall see their God in cloudless light.
- 7 Happy the men of peaceful life,
Who win to peace the sons of strife ;
They shall be called the sons of God,
The heirs of his serene abode.
- 8 And happy those who take the cross,
For truth encounter pain and loss,
And suffer shame for Christ, their Lord ;
For great in heaven is their reward !

The Mission of Christ.— Luke iv. 18, 19.

- 1 HARK, the glad sound ! the Saviour comes,
The Saviour promised long ;
Let every heart a throne prepare,
And every voice a song.

- 2 On him the spirit largely poured,
Exerts its holy fire ;
Wisdom and might and zeal and love
His sacred breast inspire.
- 3 He comes the prisoners to release,
In wretched bondage held ;
The gates of brass before him burst,
The iron fetters yield.
- 4 He comes, from thickest films of vice
To clear the mental ray ;
And on the eyeballs of the blind,
To pour celestial day.
- 5 He comes, the broken heart to bind,
The bleeding soul to cure ;
And with the treasures of his grace,
Enrich the humble poor.
- 6 Our glad hosannas, Prince of peace,
Thy welcome shall proclaim ;
And heaven's eternal arches ring
With thy beloved name !

Humble Adoration.

- 1 Holy, holy, holy Lord !
Be thy glorious name adored ;
Lord ! thy mercies never fail ;
Hail, celestial goodness, hail !
- 2 Though unworthy, Lord ! thine ear,
Deign our humble songs to hear ;
Purer praise we hope to bring,
When around thy throne we sing.
- 3 While on earth ordained to stay,
Guide our footsteps in thy way ;
Then on high we 'll joyful raise
Songs of everlasting praise.

- 4 Lord ! thy mercies never fail ;
 Hail ! celestial goodness, hail !
 Holy, holy, holy Lord !
 Be thy glorious name adored.

Hymn for a Sunday School.

- 1 HEAR, Lord ! the song of praise and prayer,
 In heaven thy dwelling place,
 From infants made the public care
 And taught to seek thy face !
- 2 Thanks for thy word and for thy day ;
 And grant us we implore,
 Never to waste in sinful play
 Thy holy sabbaths more.
- 3 Thanks that we hear — but O impart
 To each, desires sincere,
 That we may listen with our heart,
 And learn as well as hear !
- 4 Wisdom and bliss thy word bestows,
 A sun that ne'er declines ;
 And be thy mercies showered on those Who placed us where it shines !

Pious Friendship.

- 1 How blessed the sacred tie that binds
 In union sweet, according minds !
 How swift the heavenly course they run,
 Whose hearts, whose faith, whose hopes are one !
- 2 To each, the soul of each how dear !
 What jealous love, what holy fear !

How doth the generous flame within Refine from earth, and cleanse from sin!

- 3 Their streaming eyes together flow
For human guilt and mortal wo ;
Their ardent prayers together rise,
Like mingling flames in sacrifice.
- 4 Together both they seek the place
Where God reveals his awful face ;
How high, how strong, their raptures swell,
There 's none but kindred souls can tell.
- 5 Nor shall the glowing flame expire
When nature droops her sickening fire ;
Then shall they meet in realms above,
A heaven of joy because of love.

Family Affection founded on Religious Principles. — Ps. cxxxiii.

- 1 How pleasing, Lord! to see,
How pure is the delight,
When mutual love, and love to thee,
A family unite.
- 2 From these celestial springs
Such streams of comfort flow,
As no increase of riches brings,
Nor honors can bestow.
- 3 All in their stations move,
And each performs his part,
In all the cares of life and love,
With sympathizing heart.
- 4 Formed for the purest joys,
By one desire possessed,
One aim the zeal of all employs—
To make each other blessed.

5 No bliss can equal theirs,
 Where such affections meet ;
 While mingled praise and mingled prayers
 Make their communion sweet.

6 'T is the same pleasure fills

 Where joy like morning dew distils,
 And all the air is love.

 No storms his peaceful tent invade ;
 He rests beneath th' almighty wing,

 Repel each passion rude and wild,
 And bless us, as we aim to bless.

Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. — Rev. xiii. 14.

- 1 HEAR what the voice from heaven proclaims,
 For all the pious dead ;
 Sweet is the savor of their names,
 And soft their dying bed.
- 2 They sleep in Jesus, and are blessed :
 How calm their slumbers are !
 From suff'rings and from sins released
 And freed from ev'ry care.

Christian Patience, Consolation and Hope.

- 1 Is there no kind, no lenient art,
 To heal the anguish of the heart?
 To ease the heavy load of care,
 Which nature must, but cannot bear?
- 2 Can reason's dictates be obeyed?
 Too weak, alas! her strongest aid;
 O let religion then be nigh,
 Whose consolations never die!
- 3 Her powerful aid supports the soul,
 And nature owns her strong control;
 While she unfolds the sacred page,
 Our fiercest griefs resign their rage.
- 4 Then gentle patience smiles on pain,
 And dying hope revives again;
 Hope wipes the tear from sorrow's eye,
 And faith points upward to the sky.
- 5 The promise guides her ardent flight,
 And joys, unknown to sense, invite
 Those blissful regions to explore,
 Where pleasure blooms to fade no more.

Justice.

- 1 If high or low our station be,
 Of noble or ignoble name,

By uncorrupt integrity,
Thy blessing, Lord, we humbly claim.

2 The upright man no want shall fear ;
Thy providence shall be his trust ;
Thou wilt provide his portion here,
Thou friend and guardian of the just.

3 May we, with most sincere delight,
To all, the test of duty pay ;
Tender of every social right,
Obedient to thy righteous sway.

4 Such virtue thou wilt not forget,
In that blest world, where virtue shares
A fit reward, though not of debt,
But what thy boundless grace prepares.

The Communion.

1 JESUS, the friend of man,
Invites around his board,
Those who his spirit share, to hold
Communion with their Lord.

2 Here we show forth that love
Which spake in every breath,
Prompted each action of his life,
And triumphed in his death.

3 Our heavenly Father calls
Christ and his members one ;
Alike the children of his love,
And he the first-born son.

4 One faith, one hope, one Lord,
One God alone we know ;
Brethren we are ; let ev'ry heart,
With kind affections glow.

5 Let all our powers unite,
 His honored name to raise ;
 Let grateful joy fill every mind,
 And ev'ry voice be praise.

 And the descending rain!
 To heaven, from whence it fell,
 It turns not back again ;
 But waters earth Through-ev'ry pore,
 And calls forth all Her secret store.

2 Arrayed in beauteous green

 Millions of souls Shall feel its power
 And bear it down To millions more.

A Living and a Dead Faith.

1 MISTAKEN souls, that dream of heaven,
 And make their empty boast
 Of inward joys, and sins forgiven,
 And yet are slaves to lust !

2 Vain are our fancies' airy flights,
 If faith be cold and dead ;
 Nought but a living power unites
 To Christ the living Head.

3 'T is faith that purifies the heart ;
 'T is faith that works by love ;
 That bids all sinful joys depart,
 And lifts the thoughts above ;

4 'T is faith that conquers earth and hell
 By a celestial power ;
 This is the grace that shall prevail,
 In the decisive hour.

5 Faith must obey our Father's will
 As well as trust his grace,
 And strive to keep his favor still,
 By growing holiness.

Retirement and Meditation.

- 1 My God! permit me not to be
A stranger to myself and thee;
Amidst ten thousand thoughts I rove,
Forgetful of my highest love.
- 2 Why should my hopes be fixed on earth,
And thus debase my heavenly birth?
Why should I cleave to things below,
And let my God, my Father go?
- 3 Call me away from flesh and sense;
Thy gracious word can draw me thence:
I would obey the voice divine,
And all inferior joys resign.

The remnant of my days;
Why was this fleeting breath renewed
But to renew thy praise?
- 2 Thine arms of everlasting love
Did this weak frame sustain,
When life was hovering o'er the grave,
And nature sunk in pain.
- 3 Calmly I watched my ebbing life;
I knew thy time was best;
Nor feared t' obey my Father's call,
To his eternal rest.

- 4 Into thy hands, my gracious God,
 Did I my soul resign,
 And humbly trusted in thy grace,
 For pardoning love is thine.
- 5 Back from the borders of the grave,

 That blessed abode of peace and love !
 How gladly would I mount and fly
 On angels' wings to joys on high !
- 2 But ah ! still longer must I stay,
 Ere darksome night is changed to day ;
 More crosses, sorrows, conflicts bear,
 Exposed to trials, pains, and care.
- 3 Then let these troubles still abound ;
 Let thorns and briars strew the ground ;
 Let storms and tempests dreadful come,
 Till I arrive at heaven my home.
- 4 My Father knows what road is best,
 And how to lead to peace and rest ;
 To him I cheerful give my all,
 Go where he guides, and wait his call.
- 5 When he commands my soul away,
 Not kingdoms then should tempt my stay ;

With rapture I shall wake and rise
To join my friends above the skies.

The Resurrection of Christ.

- 1 Our Lord is risen from the dead,
Our Saviour is gone up on high ;
The powers of hell are captive led,
Dragged to the portals of the sky.
- 2 There his triumphal chariot waits,
And angels chant their solemn lay ;
'Lift up your heads, ye heavenly gates !
Ye everlasting doors, give way !'
- 3 Loose all your bars of massy light,
And wide unfold the ethereal scene
He burst the bands of death and night,
And heaven receives the conqueror in.
- 4 Whom did the Lord of life subdue ?
The tyrant death his arm o'ercame,
The world and hell his power o'erthrew ;
And Jesus is the conqueror's name.
- 5 Who is the King of glory ? Who ?
The Christ, with God's own power possessed,
And made our King and Saviour too ;
Thanks be to God, forever blessed !

Resignation, or Good out of Evil.

- 1 O RESIGNATION ! heavenly power !
Our warmest thoughts engage ;
Thou art the safest guide of youth,
The sole support of age.

- 2 Teach us the hand of love divine
 In evils to discern ;
 'T is the first lesson which we need,
 The latest which we learn.
- 3 Is resignation's lesson hard ?
 On trial we shall find
 It makes us give up nothing more Than anguish of the mind ;
- 4 Resign, and all the pain of life
 That moment we remove ;
 The heavy load of grief and care,
 Devolves on one above.
- 5 Thy will is welcome, let it wear
 Its most tremendous form ;
 Though tempests rise, we know that thou
 Canst save us from the storm.

Death of a virtuous Friend.

- 1 O STAY thy tears for they are blest,
 Those days are past,— whose toil is done ;
 Here midnight cares disturb our rest,
 Here sorrow dims the noon-day sun.
- 2 For laboring virtue's anxious toil,
 For patient sorrow's stifled sigh,
 For faith that marks the conqueror's spoil,
 Heaven grants the recompense — to die.
- 3 How blest are they, whose transient years
 Pass like an evening meteor's flight ;
 Nor dark with guilt, nor dim with tears ;
 Whose course is short, unclouded, bright.
- 4 Oh ! cheerless were our lengthened way,
 But heaven's own light dispels the gloom ;
 Streams downward from eternal day,
 And casts a glory round the tomb.

- 5 Then stay those tears, — the blessed above
 Have hailed a spirit's heavenly birth ;
 Sung a new song of joy and love,
 And why should anguish reign on earth?

Lord's Supper.

- 1 O HERE, if ever, God of love !
 Let strife and tumult cease ;
 And ev'ry thought harmonious move,
 And ev'ry heart be peace.
- 2 Not here, where met to think on him,
 Whose latest thoughts were ours,
 Shall mortal passions come, to dim
 The prayer devotion pours.
- 3 No, gracious master, not in vain
 Thy life of love hath been ;
 The peace thou gav'st may yet remain,
 Though thou no more art seen.
- 4 "Thy kingdom come ;" we watch, we wait,
 To hear thy cheering call ;
 When heaven shall ope its glorious gate,
 And God be all in all.

Importunate Prayer. "Ask and ye shall receive." — Matt. vii. 7, &c.

- 1 OUR Father, throned above the sky,
 To thee our empty hands we spread ;
 Thy children at thy footstool lie,
 And ask thy blessings on their head.
- 2 With cheerful hope and filial fear,
 In that august and precious name,

By thee ordained, we now draw near,
And would the promised blessing claim.

- 3 Does not an earthly parent hear
The cravings of his famished son ?
Will he reject the filial prayer,
Or mock him with a cake of stone ?
- 4 Our heavenly Father, how much more
Will thy divine compassion rise ;
And open thy unbounded store
To satisfy thy children's cries ?
- 5 Yes, we will ask, and seek, and press
For gracious audience to thy seat ;
Still hoping, waiting for success,
If persevering to entreat.
- 6 For Jesus in his faithful word
The patient supplicant has blest ;
And all thy saints with one accord
The prevalence of prayer attest.

Trust in God, under the Trials of Virtue.

- 1 PLACED on the verge of youth, my mind
Life's opening scenes surveyed ;
I viewed its ills of various kind,
Afflicted and afraid.
- 2 But chief my fear the dangers moved
That virtue's path inclose ;
My heart the wise pursuit approved,
But oh, what toils oppose !
- 3 For see, while yet her unknown ways
With doubtful step I tread,
A hostile world its terrors raise,
Its snares delusive spread.

- 4 Oh! how shall I, with heart prepared,
Those terrors learn to meet?
How from the thousand snares to guard
My inexperienced feet?
- 5 Let faith suppress each rising fear,
Each anxious doubt exclude;
My Maker's will has placed me here, —
A Maker wise and good.
- 6 He to my every trial knows
Its just restraint to give;
Attentive to behold my woes
And faithful to relieve.
- 7 Then why thus heavy, oh, my soul?
Say, why distrustful still,
Thy thoughts with vain impatience roll
O'er scenes of future ill?
- 8 Though griefs unnumbered throng thee round,
Still in thy God confide;
Whose finger marks the seas their bound,
And curbs the rolling tide.

Universal Praise.

- 1 PRAISE ye the Lord, immortal choir,
Who fill the realms above;
Praise him who formed you of his fire,
And feeds you with his love.
- 2 Shine to his praise, ye crystal skies,
The floor of his abode;
Or veil the lustre of your eyes,
Before a brighter God.
- 3 Thou central globe of golden light,
Whose beams create our days;
Join with the silver queen of night,
To own your borrowed rays.

- 4 Blush and refund the honors paid
 To your inferior names ;
 Tell the blind world your orbs are fed
 By his exhaustless flames.
- 5 Winds, ye shall bear his name aloud,
 Through the ethereal blue !
 For when his chariot is a cloud,
 He makes his wheels of you.
- 6 Thunder and hail, and fire and storms,
 The troops of his command,
 Appear in all your awful forms,
 And speak his potent hand.

Praise in Prosperity and Adversity.

- 1 PRAISE to God, immortal praise,
 For the love that crowns our days ;
 Bounteous Source of every joy,
 Let thy praise our songs employ.
- 2 For the blessings of the field,
 For the stores the gardens yield,
 For the vine's exalted juice,
 For the generous olive's use ;
- 3 Flocks that whiten all the plain,
 Yellow sheaves of ripened grain,
 Clouds that drop their fattening dews,
 Suns that temperate warmth diffuse ;
- 4 All that Spring with bounteous hand
 Scatters o'er the smiling land ;
 All that liberal Autumn pours
 From her rich o'erflowing stores ;
- 5 These to thee, our God, we owe,
 Source whence all our blessings flow ;
 And for these our souls shall raise
 Grateful vows and solemn praise.

- 6 Yet should rising whirlwinds tear
From its stem, the opening ear ;
Should the fig-tree's blasted shoot
Drop its green, untimely fruit ;
- 7 Should the vine put forth no more,
Nor the olive yield her store ;
Though the sickening flock should fall,
And the herds desert the stall ;
- 8 Yet to thee our souls shall raise
Grateful vows and solemn praise ;
And, when every blessing 's flown,
Love thee for thyself alone.

The Last Day.

- 1 ' STAND still, refulgent orb of day !'
The Jewish victor cries :
So shall at last an angel say,
And rend it from the skies.
- 2 A flame intenser than the sun
Shall melt his golden urn ;
Time's empty glass no more shall run,
Nor human years return.
- 3 Then with immortal splendor bright,
That glorious orb shall rise,
Which through eternity shall light
The new-created skies.
- 4 On the bright ranks of happy souls,
Those blissful beams shall shine ;
While the loud song of triumph rolls
In harmony divine.
- 5 Oh ! let not sordid, base desire,
The soul's dark, rayless night,
Unfit us for heaven's sacred choir,
Or God's eternal light !

Sorrow should lead to obedience.

- 1 SEVERER woes my spirit steep ;
I weep not as I used to weep ;
The tear bedews my cheek no more,
But lives within my heart's warm core.
- 2 What though it may not reach the eye,
It thrills my frame with agony ;
And though the sigh must be repressed,
It swells within my aching breast.
- 3 Oh ! Christian, are they cherished there,
The food of anguish and despair ?
And is not life too frail and brief
For time to feed on secret grief ?
- 4 Hast thou no duties to pursue ?
No sacred claims before thy view ?
No task appointed for the day,
That hours may thus be mourned away ?
- 5 No preparation for the morrow,
To steal one passing pang from sorrow ?
No fellow creature to befriend,
That thus life's interests seem to end ?
- 6 No good to do ? — no hope to cheer,
That wan and worn thou lingerest here ?
Is nought of blessing to thee given ?
No home on earth ? — no trust in Heaven ?
- 7 Oh, if those holy hopes on thee
Have poured their sacred agency ;
However dark thy path may be,
With this world's passing misery ; —
- 8 Go, and be faithful, — murmur not
Over the sorrows of thy lot ;
But, meekly, happy, kiss the rod,
All-grateful that thou hast a God ; —

- 9 And let all earthly grief be still,
 In the high aim to do his will ;
 All fear, all doubt, all woe discard ;
 And he will be 'Thy great reward.'

Children offered to God. — Mark, x. 14.

- 1 SEE Israel's gentle shepherd stand,
 With all-engaging charms ;
 See how he takes the tender lambs,
 And folds them in his arms.
- 2 'Permit them to approach,
 Forbid them not,' he cried ;
 'Of such my Father's kingdom is,
 And such with him abide.'
- 3 We bring them, gracious Lord !
 And yield them up to thee ;
 Rejoiced that we ourselves are thine,
 Thine let our offspring be.
- 4 Hear him, ye little flock ;
 Ye children, seek his face ;
 And fly with transport to receive
 The blessings of his grace !
- 5 If orphans they are left,
 Thy guardian love we trust ;
 That love can heal our bleeding hearts,
 When weeping o'er their dust.

Approaching Death and Judgment. — Heb. x. 24, 25.

- 1 THE day approaches, oh, my soul !
 The great decisive day,
 Which from the verge of mortal life,
 Shall bear thee far away.

- 2 Another day more awful dawns ;
 And lo ! the Judge appears ;
 All nations stand before his bar,
 With mingled hopes and fears.
- 3 Yet does one short, preparing hour,
 One precious hour remain ;
 Rouse then, my soul ! with all thy power,
 Nor let it pass in vain.

The prayer of the dying Christian.

- 1 THE hour of my departure's come ;
 I hear the voice that calls me home ;
 At last, O Lord ! let trouble cease,
 And let thy servant die in peace.
- 2 The race appointed I have run ;
 The combat's o'er, the prize is won ;
 And now my witness is on high,
 And now my record's in the sky.
- 3 I leave the world without a tear,
 Save for the friends I hold so dear ;
 To heal their sorrows, Lord ! descend,
 And to the friendless, prove a friend.
- 4 I come, I come at thy command ;
 I yield my spirit to thy hand !
 Stretch forth thine everlasting arms,
 And shield me in the last alarms.
- 5 The hour of my departure's come,
 I hear the voice that calls me home ;
 Now, O my God ! let trouble cease ;
 Now let thy servant die in peace.

Instrumental Duties of Religion, vain without obedience.

- 1 THE uplifted eye and bended knee
Are but vain homage, Lord ! to thee ;
In vain our lips thy praise prolong,
The heart a stranger to the song.
- 2 Can rites, and forms, and flaming zeal,
The breaches of thy precepts heal ?
Or fasts and penance reconcile
Thy justice, and obtain thy smile ?
- 3 The pure, the humble, contrite mind,
Sincere, and to thy will resigned,
To thee a nobler offering yields,
Than fragrant groves, or fertile fields.
- 4 Love God and man — this great command
Doth on eternal pillars stand ;
This did thine ancient prophets teach,
This did the great Messiah preach.

Love to God and Man. — Matt. xxii. 37 — 40.

- 1 THUS saith the first and great command,—
Let all thy inward powers unite
To love thy Maker and thy God
With utmost vigor and delight.
- 2 Then shall thy neighbor, next in place,
Thy heart's sincere affection prove ;
And let thy wishes for thyself
Measure to him the debt of love.
- 3 But while these sacred truths we own,
How cold remain our bosoms still !
Wake our best passions, God of love !
And mould our spirits to thy will.

For the Lord's Supper.

- 1 THIS feast was Jesus' high behest,
This cup of thanks his last request :
Ye who can feel his worth, attend,
Eat, drink, in memory of our friend.
- 2 Around the patriot's bust ye throng,
Him ye exalt in swelling song ;
For him the wreath of glory bind,
Who freed from vassalage his kind ;
- 3 And shall not he your praises reap,
Who rescues from the iron-sleep ?
The great deliverer, whose breath
Unbinds the captives ev'n of death ?
- 4 Shall he, who, fellow-men to save,
Became a tenant of the grave,
Unthanked, uncelebrated rise,
Pass unremembered to the skies ?
- 5 Christians ! unite with loud acclaim
To hymn the Saviour's welcome name ;
On earth extol his wondrous love ;
Repeat his praise in worlds above.

Children dying in their infancy in the arms of Jesus. — Matt. xix. 14.

- 1 THY life I read, my dearest Lord,
With transport all divine ;
'Thine image trace in every word,
Thy love in every line.
- 2 Methinks I see a thousand charms
Spread o'er thy lovely face,
While infants in thy tender arms
Receive the smiling grace.

- 3 'I take these little lambs,' said he,
 'And lay them on my breast;
 'Protection they shall find in me,
 'In me be ever blest.
- 4 'Death may the bands of life unloose,
 'But can't dissolve my love;
 'Millions of infant souls compose
 'The family above.
- 5 'Their feeble frames my power shall raise,
 'And mould with heavenly skill;
 'I'll give them tongues to sing my praise,
 'And hands to do my will.'
- 6 His words the happy parents hear,
 And shout with joys divine;
 Dear Saviour, all we have, and are,
 Shall be forever thine.

Divine Protection, Resignation and Gratitude.

- 1 WHEN I survey life's varied scene,
 Amidst the darkest hours,
 Bright rays of comfort shine between,
 And thorns are mixed with flowers.
- 2 This thought can all my fears control,
 And bid my sorrows fly;
 No harm can ever reach my soul,
 Beneath my Father's eye.
- 3 Whate'er thy sacred will ordains,
 Oh, give me strength to bear!
 And let me know my Father reigns,
 And trust his tender care.
- 4 If pain and sickness rend this frame,
 And life almost depart;
 Is not thy mercy still the same,
 To cheer my drooping heart?

- 5 Is blooming health my happy share ?
 Oh, may I bless my God !
 Thy goodness let my song declare
 And spread thy praise abroad.
- 6 While such delightful gifts as these
 Are kindly dealt to me,
 Be all my hours of health and ease
 Devoted, Lord, to thee.
- 7 If cares and sorrows me surround,
 Their power why should I fear ?
 My inward peace they cannot wound,
 If thou, my God, art near.
- 8 Thy sovereign ways are all unknown
 To my weak, erring sight ;
 Yet let my soul, adoring, own
 That all thy ways are right.

The Miracles of Christ.

- 1 WHAT works of wisdom, power, and love,
 Do Jesus' high commission prove ;
 Attest his heaven-derived claim,
 And glorify his Father's name !
- 2 On eyes that never saw the day,
 He pours the bright celestial ray ;
 And deafened ears, by him unbound,
 Catch all the harmony of sound.
- 3 Lameness takes up its bed, and goes
 Rejoicing in the strength that flows
 Through every nerve ; and free from pain,
 Pours forth to God the grateful strain.
- 4 The shattered mind his word restores,
 And tunes afresh the mental powers ;
 The dead revive, to life return,
 And bid affection cease to mourn.

- 5 Canst thou, my soul ! these wonders trace,
 And not admire Jehovah's grace ?
 Canst thou behold thy Prophet's power,
 And not the God he served adore ?

Habitual Devotion.

- 1 WHILE thee I seek, protecting Power !
 Be my vain wishes stilled ;
 And may this consecrated hour
 With better hopes be filled.
- 2 Thy love the powers of thought bestowed ;
 To thee my thoughts would soar :
 Thy mercy o'er my life has flowed ;
 That mercy I adore !
- 3 In each event of life, how clear
 Thy ruling hand I see !
 Each blessing to my soul more dear,
 Because conferred by thee.
- 4 In every joy that crowns my days,
 In every pain I bear,
 My heart shall find delight in praise,
 Or seek relief in prayer.
- 5 When gladness wings my favored hour,
 Thy love my thoughts shall fill ;
 Resigned when storms of sorrow lower,
 My soul shall meet thy will.
- 6 My lifted eye, without a tear
 The gathering storm shall see ;
 My steadfast heart shall know no fear :
 That heart shall rest on thee !

The Shortness of Life.

- 1 WHILE with ceaseless course the sun
Hasted through the closing year,
Many souls their race have run,
Never more to meet us here!
 - 2 Finished here probation's day,
They have done with all below;
We a little longer stay,
But how little none can know.
 - 3 As the winged arrow flies,
Quick the destined mark to find;
As the lightning from the skies
Darts, and leaves no trace behind;
 - 4 So our brief and transient days
To their end speed swiftly on;
Soon to pass life's little space,
Here to-day, to-morrow gone.
 - 5 Thanks for mercies past, receive;
Pardon of our sins renew;
Teach us, Lord! by faith to live,
With eternity in view.
 - 6 Bless thy word to young and old;
Fill our hearts with filial love;
And, when life's short tale is told,
May we dwell with thee above!

The one thing needful. — Luke x. 42.

- 1 WHY should we waste, in trifling cares,
The lives divine compassion spares,
While in the various range of thought,
The one thing needful is forgot?

2 Shall God invite us from above,
 Shall Jesus urge his dying love,
 Shall wakened conscience give us pain,
 And all these pleas unite in vain?

3 Not so our eyes will always view
 The objects which we now pursue ;
 Not so eternity appear,
 When death's decisive hour is near.

4 Almighty God ! thine aid impart
 To fix conviction on the heart :
 Thy power can clear the darkest eyes,
 And make the haughtiest scorner wise.

Consolation to surviving Friends.

Weep not for me, but weep for yourselves. — Luke xxiii. 28.

- 1 WHY weep for those, frail child of woe,
 Who 've fled and left thee mourning here ?
 Triumphant o'er their latest foe,
 They glory in a brighter sphere.
- 2 Weep not for them ; — beside thee now
 Perhaps they watch with guardian care,
 And witness tears that idly flow
 O'er those who bliss of angels share.
- 3 Or round their Father's throne, above,
 With raptured voice his praise they sing ;
 Or on his messages of love
 They journey with unwearied wing.
- 4 Space cannot check, thought cannot bound
 The high exulting souls, whom He
 Who formed those million worlds around,
 Takes to his own eternity.

- 5 Weep, weep no more ; their voices raise
 The song of triumph high to God ;
 And, wouldst thou join their song of praise,
 Walk humbly in the path they trod.

Peace of Conscience.

- 1 WHILST some in folly's pleasure roll,
 And seek the joys which hurt the soul,
 Be mine that silent calm repast,
 A peaceful conscience to the last :
- 2 That tree which bears immortal fruit,
 Without a canker at the root ;
 That Friend who never fails the just,
 When other friends desert their trust.
- 3 With this companion in the shade,
 My soul no more shall be dismayed ;
 I will defy the midnight gloom,
 And the pale monarch of the tomb.
- 4 Though God afflicts, I'll not repine,
 The noblest comforts still are mine ;
 Comforts which shall o'er death prevail,
 And journey with me through the vale.
- 5 Amidst the various scenes of ills,
 Each stroke some kind design fulfills ;
 And shall I murmur at my God,
 When sovereign love directs the rod ?
- 6 His hand will smooth my rugged way,
 And lead me to the realms of day —
 To milder skies and brighter plains,
 Where everlasting pleasure reigns.

Humility.

- 1 WHEREFORE should man, frail child of clay,
Who, from the cradle to the shroud,
Lives but the insect of a day —
O why should mortal man be proud?
- 2 His brightest visions just appear,
Then vanish, and no more are found ;
The stateliest pile his pride can rear,
A breath may level with the ground.
- 3 By doubt perplex'd, in error lost,
With trembling step he seeks his way :
How vain of wisdom's gifts the boast !
Of reason's lamp how faint the ray !
- 4 Follies and crimes, a countless sum,
Are crowded in life's little span :
How ill, alas, does pride become
That erring, guilty creature, man !
- 5 God of my life, Father divine !
Give me a meek and lowly mind ;
In modest worth, O let me shine,
And peace in humble virtue find.

The Providence of God in the Seasons.

- 1 WITH songs and honors sounding loud,
Address the Lord on high ;
Over the heavens he spreads his cloud,
And waters veil the sky.
- 2 He sends his showers of blessings down
To cheer the plains below ;
He makes the grass the mountains crown,
And corn in vallies grow.

23*

- 3 His steady counsels change the face
Of the declining year ;
He bids the sun cut short his race,
And wintry days appear.
- 4 He sends his word and melts the snow ;
The fields no longer mourn ;
He calls the warmer gales to blow,
And bids the spring return.
- 5 The changing wind, the flying cloud,
Obey his mighty word :
With songs and honors sounding loud,
Praise ye the Sovereign Lord !

Brotherly kindness from the precept and example of Christ.

- 1 YE followers of the Prince of Peace,
Who round his table draw !
Remember what his spirit was,
What his peculiar law.
- 2 The love which all his bosom fill'd,
Did all his actions guide ;
Inspir'd by love, he liv'd and taught,
Inspired by love he died.
- 3 And do you love him ? do you feel
Your warm affections move ? —
This is the proof which he demands,
That you each other love.
- 4 Let each the sacred law fulfil ;
Like his be ev'ry mind :
Be ev'ry temper form'd by love,
And ev'ry action kind.
- 5 Let none who call themselves his friends
Disgrace the honor'd name ;
But by a near resemblance prove
The title which they claim.

ELEMENTS

RELIGION AND MORALITY,

IN THE FORM OF A

CATECHISM.

CATECHISM.*

I. Question. WHO made you?

Answer. 1. God made me.

2. He also made the sun, moon, and the stars.

3. He made the sea and the dry land, the hills and the fields.

4. He made the grass, and the trees, and every thing which grows upon the earth.

5. He made the beasts, the fishes, and the birds, and every thing which has life.

6. God made all things in heaven and in earth.

II. Q. What does God give you?

A. 1. He gives me life and strength.

2. He gives me power to see and hear, to speak and move.

3. He gives me reason, and conscience, and the means of improving in knowledge and goodness.

4. He gives me my kind parents, my teachers, my friends, and my home.

5. He gives me my food, and clothes, and quiet sleep.

*This Catechism was prepared in 1813, by Rev. W. E. Channing and Rev. S. C. Thatcher, for the younger children of their societies.

6. He gives me the air, which I breathe, and the pleasant light, which shines around me.

7. God gives me all that I have.

III. Q. Does God always see you?

A. 1. He sees me at all times: all the night, and all the day.

2. He sees me when I am alone, when no other person sees me.

3. He knows all that I think, and all that I do.

4. He knows all that I want, and hears me if I pray to him for his care and blessing.

IV. Q. How must you feel and act towards God?

A. 1. I must often think of God as my FATHER IN HEAVEN, and must regard every thing which I enjoy, as his gift.

2. I must love Him better than I love any other being; and be happy to please and obey Him.

3. I must fear nothing so much as to offend Him.

4. I must never speak of Him in a careless manner, or take His name in vain.

5. I must pray to Him for what I need, especially in the morning and at night.

6. I must thank Him for what I receive, though it may not be all that I wish.

7. I must bear patiently, and try to be better for the sickness and pain, which He sees fit to bring upon me.

V. Q. How must you feel and act towards those around you?

A. 1. I must love and obey my parents, and be thankful to them for the tender care they take of me.

2. I must treat with respect those who are older than myself.

3. I must love my brothers and sisters, and must be generous and affectionate to my companions.

4. I must forgive those who have injured me; and if I have injured any, I must ask their forgiveness.

5. I must pity the wretched, and be kind to the poor.

6. I must speak the truth, keep my promises, and never try to deceive by my looks, words, or actions.

7 I must be honest, and must take nothing which belongs to others.

8. I must not be cruel, and must not willingly give pain to any thing which has life.

9. I must try to make all around me happy. God has given to all the power of doing good in some way or other.

VI. Q. What are your duties to yourself?

A. 1. I must be active and industrious.

2. I must be ready and happy to learn.

3. I must be contented and cheerful, even when I cannot have what I want.

4. I must not be fretful, wilful, or passionate.

5. I must not be proud or vain of any thing which I have, but be modest and humble.

6. I must learn to give up and avoid every thing which will do me hurt; I must be governed by reason and conscience, and not by my wishes.

VII. Q. What good do you hope for by doing what is right?

A. 1. I shall have peace in my own mind.

2 I shall not be ashamed or afraid to have my actions known.

3. I shall grow better and happier as I grow older.

4 My parents and friends will love me, and look on me with pleasure and hope.

5. Above all, my FATHER IN HEAVEN will love me, and delight to make me happy.

VIII. Q. What if you do wrong?

A. 1. I shall feel pain, and fear, and shame, at thinking I have done wrong.

2. I shall grow worse as I grow older.

3. My parents and friends will be displeased with me, and look on me with sorrow.

4. Above all, God will be offended with me, and He will punish me unless I repent.

IX. Q. What do you mean by sinning against God?

A. To sin against God is to do anything which God forbids me, or not to do what God commands me.

X. Q. Have you ever sinned against God?

A. Yes. I feel that I have sinned — I have done what I have known to be wrong.

XI. Q. How should you feel and act, when you are sensible you have sinned?

A. 1. I should remember my evil conduct with sorrow; and as far as I can, I should repair it, and resolve and strive to do so no more.

2. I should humbly confess my sins to God, and should pray to Him, through Jesus Christ, to forgive me and to assist me in doing better.

XII. Q. Who is Jesus Christ?

A. He is the well-beloved Son of God, whom his Father sent into the world to save us from error and sin, from death and misery.

XIII. Q. Can you repeat some of the principal instructions of Jesus Christ?

A. 1. He taught us the character of God: that He is the most holy and merciful, the greatest, and wisest, and best of beings.

2. He taught us that we should love God with all our hearts ; that we should love all our fellow creatures and do to others as we should wish and expect them to do to us.

3. He promised to us, that if we believe in him, and confess and forsake our sins, and obey his instructions, we shall be forgiven, and live forever in heaven.

XIV. Q. Can you give some account of the life and example of Christ ?

A. 1. He was perfectly good. He was holy, harmless, and undefiled.

2. He grew up obeying his parents, and remembered his mother with tenderness even in his dying moments.

3. He constantly thought of God, and prayed to Him ; and it was his joy to do the will of his heavenly Father.

4. He went about doing good ; healing the sick ; opening the eyes of the blind ; raising the dead ; and teaching the ignorant and poor.

5. He washed the feet of his disciples to teach them to be humble. He took little children in his arms and blessed them. He was full of compassion for the miserable, and even prayed for his murderers on the cross.

XV. Q. What did Jesus Christ suffer for us ?

A. 1. For our sakes he became poor, and led a life of toil and hardship.

2. He was reviled, mocked, and scourged by wicked men.

3. He was nailed to the cross, and shed his blood for the forgiveness of our sins.

XVI. Q. What became of Jesus after his cruel death ?

A. 1. He was buried, and, as he told his disciples before his death, he was restored to life, and rose again on the third day.

2. He ascended to heaven, where he still lives to pray for us, and continually performs kind offices for us.

XVII. Q. What do you learn by the resurrection of Christ from the dead?

A. That I and all men shall in like manner live again in another world.

XVIII. Q. Shall you ever see Jesus Christ?

A. Yes. He is appointed to raise me from the dead, and I must stand before him to be judged for my conduct in the present life.

XIX. Q. What may you hope for in another world, if you are good in this?

A. 1. I shall be welcomed into heaven by my Saviour, and shall be ever under his care.

2. I shall have no sickness, nor sorrow, nor pain; but shall have rest and joy forever.

3. I shall be like the angels in heaven, and shall have the friendship and love of all good beings.

4. I shall enjoy the presence and favor of God, and shall be always learning to love and serve Him better.

XX. Q. But what if you are wicked?

A. 1. I can then never be happy. The wicked must always be miserable.

2. I shall not be received into the light and joy of heaven.

3. God will send me from His presence, and leave me to the fearful punishment which my sins deserve.

XXI. Q. What means must you use to become good and happy in this life and the life to come?

A. 1. I must pray to God, without whose blessing I can do nothing, for His assistance and direction.

2. I must recollect at night what I have done, and thought, and felt through the day, that I may make my future life better than the past.

3. I must often think that God sees me.

4. I must shun wicked companions, and try to obtain the friendship of the good.

5. I must set the example of Jesus Christ continually before me.

6. I must make a good use of the Lord's day. I must be serious and attentive at church, and must receive with gratitude the instruction of my parents at home.

7. When I am old enough, I must partake the Lord's supper, which is designed to bring to my remembrance Jesus Christ dying for me.

8. I must often read and meditate upon the Bible, that best of books, in which God teaches us his will, and his infinite mercy, through Jesus Christ.

THE END.
